Tornado Death Toll Reaches 50

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rescue squads pressed a methodical hunt for missing persons and new forces of national guardsmen went on an alert against possible looting today in the wake of vicious tornadoes Friday that left at least 50 dead and an estimated 1,500 injured in the Midwest.

Unofficial estimates of damage ranged beyond $50 million.

Three of the 48 tornadoes the Weather Bureau said struck parts of the Midwest late Friday and Friday night punched down into heavily populated sections of northern Illinois and western Michigan.

The twisters, perhaps the worst on record in northeastern Illinois, killed 27 persons in Oak Lawn, a Chicago suburb; 20 in Belvidere, Ill., a town of 13,000 about 65 miles northwest of Chicago; 1 in Chicago; 1 in Stone Park, another Chicago suburb, and 1 in Hillside County, Mich.

Oak Lawn's death toll was placed at 24 at daybreak, but more bodies were found in the rubble.

Thousands of persons joined in the mammoth job of hunting for bodies, clearing away debris, and salvaging furniture, bedding and clothing from wrecked homes.

The workers included National Guardsmen, Army Reserve units, Civil Defense workers, Civil Air Patrolmen, policemen, firemen, and state cleanup crews with bulldozers and power shovels.

Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner arrived at a state police command post set up in Belvidere, where Mayor Clair Hetland estimated that damage in that community alone would be around $15 million.

An additional 530 National Guardsmen were sent into the tornado battered area of Oak Lawn, Ill., to reinforce 250 guardsmen who patrolled the area against possible looting during the night.

Hardest hit as the tornadoes twisted through scores of Illinois communities was Oak Lawn. Among the victims there were a number of young skaters at a roller rink which was demolished.

A big supermarket in Oak Lawn, which had been jammed with Friday evening shoppers, was reduced to rubble. Authorities feared casualties there could raise the death toll.

Nine victims at Belvidere were students. The twister hit as students boarded school buses at Belvidere High School. Some victims, however, were elementary school students who had been picked up earlier by the buses.

Buses were sent sailing through the air like leaves. Others were bounced across the ground and flattened.

One bus was carried more than a mile from the school.

Sheriff Joseph I. Woods of Cook County ordered police to guard against looting in debris-strewn Oak Lawn.

"All looters...will be shot on sight," he said.

"I think it's a good ruling," said Fred Dumke, Oak Lawn village president. "Anyone who would loot at a time like this ..." His voice trailed off as he walked into a temporary morgue in a Veterans of Foreign Wars hall.

In the hall's meeting room, rows of bodies were lined up against the west wall.

People stood in clusters, talking and consoling each other. They walked by the bodies, lifted sheets and shook their heads. A few fainted.

Outside the hall and for blocks around it, all was confusion Friday night. Red, white and blue lights flashed from police cars, fire trucks and other emergency vehicles.

Bull horns blared from police cars: "Get off the streets."

Eight Missouri Counties Feel Tornadoes' Sting

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Tornadoes smashed homes and farm buildings in eight Northern Missouri counties Friday, injuring at least seven persons.

At the little town of Humphreys in Sullivan County a twister tossed a trailer 100 feet, destroyed four homes, damaged nine others and barely missed a grade school.

Some children in the school were cut by flying glass as teachers made them lie on the floor.

Mrs. R.G. Wilson and her son, Russell, 4, were cut and bruised in the trailer. Near Humphreys four men were hurt in a shed that was demolished. Otto Helms, 53; Donald Hudson, 51; Charles Crowdis, 36, and James Lloyd, 50, were taken to the hospital at Milan.

Also in Sullivan County, Mrs. Nannie Ida Markham, 94-year-old invalid, suffered shock as part of her home was wrecked. She was taken to the Bethany hospital.

One of the most destructive twisters roared across northern Carroll County, lashing six farms in a line. Sheriff Paul Johnson said buildings and livestock were wiped out on the farms of Afton Rea and Rual Heath. Losses were heavy on the farms of Glenn Shields, Shorty Pool, R. W. Johnson said Ernest Dodson, the sheriff said.

Other counties hit included Caldwell, Grundy, Macon, Knox, Linn and Clinton.

Storm Gives Suburb War Zone Look

By FRANK S. JOSEPH

OAK LAWN, Ill. AP — Walking toward the corner of 95th Street and Southwest Highway in Oak Lawn is like walking into a war zone.

The intersection is the site of the worst destruction caused by a tornado which ripped apart this suburb of southwest Chicago Friday night, killing 24 persons.

Guards at every intersection swing flares, allowing some traffic through and turning away the curious. They stop every pedestrian.

"Who are you? What's your business?" they ask. If the pedestrian does not have a press card or a Red Cross arm

Surveyor Digs 2 Moon Trenches

PASADENA, Calif. AP -- Surveyor 3 dug a trench about three feet long and at least six inches deep in the surface of the moon today but uncovered nothing spectacular.

The trench, the second scooped out by a two-by-five-inch shovel in less than three hours, turned up a considerable amount of lumpy material much like that on the undisturbed surface.

Pictures of the operation, televised to controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory showed no surprises and nothing to indicate the moon's surface might be unsafe for manned landings.

Shortly after midnight, the spidery device did its first digging -- a foot-long trench in three jerky motions lasting two seconds each.

The scoop made a second pass through the trench about an

Despondent Man Attempts Suicide

Robert Bradley, 43, Haywood City, a day laborer who had been despondent the past few days, attempted suicide Friday afternoon and is reported in poor condition today at Missouri Delta Community hospital.

State highway patrol trooper Eugene Harris, Sikeston, said he spoke with Mrs. Bradley Friday at the hospital. She said her husband took a .22 caliber pistol from her purse and shot himself in the chest at their home, Harris reported.

Bronze Star To Catron Boy

Sp4 Richard R. Lucy, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lucy, Catron, was awarded the Army Bronze Star for meritorious service in Vietnam.

He is a graduate of the class of '65 of Lilbourn high school, and worked as a clerk with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D.C., before he was drafted.

Sp 4 Lucy is with the First Military Intelligence detachment of the 1st Infantry Division in Vietnam. He began his tour of duty there Sept. 9, 1966.

The citation by direction of the President for the Bronze Star stated that Lucy distinguished himself by outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam during the period from Dec. 1, 1966, to Feb. 25, 1967.

Monarch's Role in Greek Army Uprising Uncertain

ROME AP - Army leaders controlling the Greek government reopened the nation's frontiers today and lifted a curfew after a night of sporadic shooting in Athens. But an Athens dispatch said it was still not clear whether the army had the backing of King Constantine, the navy or the air force.

Diplomatic reports in London and Copenhagen, Denmark, said the king was at Tatoi Palace outside Athens at the time of the predawn coup Frday. This raised a possibility he may have been caught by surprise. A Turkish dispatch said even top army officers also may have been surprised by a coup launched by a handful of officers, joined later by others.

A pooled dispatch by AP correspondent Philip Dopoulos from Athens reported the night was filled with sporadic shooting in and around the Greek capital. The dispatch said there were unconfirmed reports that one person was killed and 10 wounded.

The diplomatic reports reaching London and Copenhagen said the army leaders who pulled off the coup in the king's name may have forced him to sign the royal proclamation putting the military in charge.

Diplomats in Turkey said their reports from Greece indicated the coup may have surprised not only the king but most of the army's top officers as well.

Martial law still was in force throughout Greece.

The coup leaders relaxed restrictions on the population and appealed for calm and order. Workers were told to return to their jobs.

The first of several foreign airliners, stranded in Athens when the army seized power Friday, reached Rome with 97 passengers.

A Danish charter airline said two of its planes landed in Athens and a British airline said it was resuming regular service to the Greek capital.

Athens radio said movie houses and other places of entertainment were expected to reopen today.

Telephone communications within the capital were restored Friday night and some of the politicians arrested during the early hours of the coup were reported released.

Tanks and battle-ready troops kept the country under close watch. Civil rights remained suspended. No disturbances were reported. With communications interrupted and news media censored, most information about the coup was coming from Athens radio or various sources outside Greece.

The Athens correspondent of the Istanbul newspaper Hurriyet said a clandestine radio station in the Greek capital was

Claud Smith Addresses Rotarians

ROTARY LEADERS AT the Friday luncheon at the country club are past president George Dye, program chairman, at left, and the speaker, Dave H. Pence, Flat River city manager.

THE SONG LEADERS at six sessions of the Rotary conference added zest to the almost 500 Rotarians in attendance. Stone Manes, Jackson, leads the singing at the senior high cafetorium last night. His accompanist is J. R. Henderson, also of Jackson.

By LEO SCHADE

Nearing the climax of the three-day district Rotary conference here last night, 350 Rotary and Rotary Anns were on hand at the senior high school cafetorium to hear an address by Claud D. Smith, Junction City, Colo., personal representative of the International Rotary president, Richard L. Evans.

Smith, speaking on "Rotary Anns and Rotary," said, "I represent the greatest Mormon in the world, a man who has led and written the longest run religious and singing program on the radio. I bring to you as an active Rotary Ann, my wife, Frances."

Mrs. Smith took the speaker's stand and explained how the name "Ann" became symbolic to Rotary.

"It was on a train ride to a Rotary convention at San Francisco many years ago when two women met, and each was named Ann, after which the men referred to their wives as Anns," Mrs. Smith noted.

"The virtues and characteristics of Rotary Anns are many," Smith said. "They have the ability to make friends, they are a loyal opposition, have a mind of their own and make their married life a happy one. A Rotarian actually is an educated man. He must be a leader in his community, is hard working and ambitious. Our wide travels have made it possible to make many friends."

Fourteen past district governors were introduced by Wyman Dillman, Caruthersville, master of ceremonies. Introduced were:

Gov. Lee G. Cochran and his wife, Jackson, whose term expires July 1; Mr. and Mrs. George Allers, Bonne Terre; Mr. and Mrs. Walker Ames, DeSoto; Mr. and Mrs. John Blue and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Oliver, all of Cape Girardeau; Mr. and Mrs. L. Wyman Dillman, Caruthersville; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Duley, Poplar Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eads, West Plains; Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Franz and Mr. and Mrs. J. Sam Holt, Thayer - Mammoth Springs; Mr. and Mrs. K. Quinn Lewis, Poplar Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Sisson; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vogt, Ellington and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Williams.

Two Rotarians, Stone Manes and J. R. Henderson, both of Jackson, led the group singing. Dan Cotner, Cape Girardeau, furnished organ music during the meal.

Featured in the Friday afternoon session were two foreign Rotary Foundation Fellowship students studying in Missouri colleges. They were Hun Koo Cho, Seoul, Korea, and P. C. (Poozhicalayil) Thomas, Secunderabad, India.

Cho, who is studying for a master's degree in business administration, said, "The name Rotary was not strange to me, as I attended some Christmas parties as a youth with family friends. I'll do my best to improve better relations between our two countries. I know that I can never give to Rotary what it has given to me."

He is sponsored by the Seoul district clubs, and is attending Washington University, St. Louis.

Thomas, 29, will receive a master's degree in journalism at University of Missouri, Columbia. His ambition is to own a small newspaper in his native India.

"We in India specialize in human beings, as we have 500 million of them. I am the son of a Christian minister and have four sisters. I chose to study in America because you have freedom of speech and expression," he explained.

"Our two countries have strange notions about one another, and I try to explain the difference. I have made many friends in different walks of life, and it has helped me to see my country from a different point of view. It must be remembered our government dates back but 20 years, and we have a long way to go.

"It is my hope that I can help mold public opinion through the published word. My only regret is that I do not have the cash means, but I do have the ambition," Thomas said.

J. Nean White, Rolla, discussed the objects of Rotary and its responsibilities.

The afternoon panel concluded with Wouter Bosch, professor of science, Rolla branch, University of Missouri. He explained the objectives of Rotary. He divided the more than 100 in attendance at the Hunter Memorial Presbyterian church into two groups. Each side of aisle was checked for answers by Jim Blyze and Harry Bahn, both of Cape Girardeau, scorekeepers. A list of 40 questions was given on Rotary history.

In the session Friday noon at the country club, with 100 Rotarians in attendance, Dave Pence, city manager of Flat River, was the principal speaker.

He was introduced by George Dye, Morley, a past president, who reviewed the Christmas gift exchange with dozens of clubs all over the world.

Fellowships Explained

Dr. E. Lawrence Bahn, president of the Cape Girardeau Rotary Club, conducted a panel discussion on Rotary Fellowship program following a luncheon meeting Friday at the El Capri.

The purpose of the fellowships -- to advance international understanding among people throughout the world -- was stated by Nolan Stinson, Clayton, past governor of district 605.

The fellowship offers one year of advanced study in another country. Scholastic standing and personality are evaluated in choosing Rotary fellows, he explained.

Eligibility requirements were discussed by Cuba Clubb, Marble Hill - Lutesville. Applicants must have a bachelor's degree and be single. The fellowships are open to men and women between 22 and 28 years old. Character traits and personality weigh heavily in the selection of fellows, he said.

Stone Manes, Jackson, explained that selection of the candidates by local clubs should be done only after a personal interview is conducted. Each club may select two candidates for the fellowships.

Wouter Bosch, Rolla, urged club members to publicize the fellowship program and put a committee to the task of selecting candidates from their area.

Rotary's avenues of club, vocational, community and international service were discussed at noon yesterday in a luncheon session at the Rustic Rock Inn.

The Rev. George Poe, Poplar Bluff, First Methodist pastor, speaking on "Do We Dare to Share?" said that there "is no such thing as a self-made man. "All of us owe a debt to the past," he said. "All of us are inheritors and indebted to others."

To discharge this obligation, he said, Rotarians should "preserve the best of the past, share the burdens of others and contribute something of value to generations to come."

Hospital Construction Progress Is Satisfactory

Construction progress on the new 90-bed wing to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, now 30 per cent completed, was found to be very satisfactory by a group of state inspectors last week, Harold Jones, administator said.

The steel and reinforced concrete for the basement and three floors has been poured. Plumbing and electrical work is proceeding as planned and the masonry contractor has begun to construct the red brick walls. Completion of the wing is scheduled for January, 1968.

The qualify of the construction program was complimented by inspectors of the department of Hospital Construction and Liscensure of the State Division of Health who examined the building April 13, Jones said.

The engineering and structural specifications were found to be well above the state's standard requirements for hospital construction, Jones said.

An engineer and an auditor conducted the building inspection. Periodic inspections will be conducted until the wing is completed.

Monthly payments for construction will now average about $125,000 until it is completed, Jones said. About $500,000 has been spent for construction to date. Cost of the project is estimated to run $3,065,000.

Money pledged and collected in the building fund drive now stands at $676,000. Still needed is $474,000, Jones said. Hill-Burton funds totaled $915,000 and one million dollars was contributed for the project by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Coleman.

Inspectors from the Division of Health and Liscensure Department inspected disaster planning and fire evacuation plans and medical records at the hospital Thursday. The divisions makes four inspections annually covering areas of safety, medical records, dietary facilities and nursing.

Representative of the Joint Commission on Accredation of Hospitals inspected the hospital from a physical standpoint and evaluated the medical practice in conjunction with hospital facilities Friday.

Eight Treated For Injuries

Eight persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital Friday:

Open Dormitory Trial Set at MU

COLUMBIA (AP) - The University of Missouri housing office has approved a trial program of allowing open house in men's and women's dormitories.

Dr. Harold Gondra, housing director, said each dormitory may have a three-hour open house period on two week-end days for the remainder of this term. The periods may not last past 5 p.m. Each living unit must approve the holding of an open house by a majority of vote.

There have been individual open houses in the past, Condra said, but this is the first time authorization has been given for the entire dormitory system.

There are 2,950 men and 2,750 women living in university residence halls. Only freshmen under 21 years of age are required to live in the halls or other approved housing. The enrollment is 18,500.

Two Injuries In Accident

Sharon L. Kirby, 17, 204 North Prairie, and Linda Werneck, 17, 605 Taylor, suffered minor injuries in an automobile accident at 9:30 p.m. Friday on East Malone.

They were treated and released at Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Police reported that Miss Kirby was driving east on East Malone and skidded into a whiteway light pole in front of a service station near Ira & Louise's Drive In. Miss Werneck was a passenger in the Kirby car.

Miss Kirby told police a passing car forced her to strike the pole. She is charged with careless and imprudent driving.

In other police activity, Elmer N. Gray, St. Louis, was charged Friday with vagrancy. He was arrested on Front street.

Tom Gross, Sikeston, was arrested Friday on Malone and charged with public intoxication, police reported.

Paul Glancy, Sikeston, was charged by police Friday with vagrancy. He was arrested on New Madrid street.

Svetlana Seeks Self-Expression in U.S.

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — An Odyssey across three continents has brought Svetlana Stalin, daughter of the late Soviet dictator, to the United States seeking a new life with freedom of self-expression.

In a simply worded statement she said disenchantment with the communism taught her since her childhood and discovery of a deep religious faith had led to the decision to defect from her Soviet homeland.

"I found it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart," she said on her arrival Friday. "I came to that conclusion myself, without anybody's help or preaching.

"But that was a great change because since that moment the main dogmas of communism lost their significance for me."

"I have come here in order to seek the self-expression that has been denied me for so long in Russia," the red-haired 42-year-old widow explained.

She said she had struggled against the break because it meant leaving her two children in Moscow and not seeing them again for a long time. "but all was in vain. I felt it was impossible to go back."

So, on the evening of March 6 she went to the American Embassy in New Delhi requesting asylum in this country and began the Odyssey that took her from India to Italy, then Switzerland and finally the United States.

Miss Stalin declined to say whether she had been granted permanent asylum here. In Washington the State Department said, "She is free to remain here as long as she wishes and is free to leave whenever she wishes."

Prior to her arrival the department notified the Soviet Embassy she was on her way. There has been concern in the capital over the possible effect on U.S.-Soviet relations.

Already here when she arrived from Zurich, Switzerland was the manuscript of an 80,000-word autobiography written in 1963 which has been turned over to Harper & Row for publication Oct. 16.

Svetlana was the last of the passengers to disembark from a jetliner at Kennedy Airport. She fairly bounced down the steps.

In a written statement she said she left Moscow last December to take the ashes of Brijesh Singh, the man described by the Soviet government as her husband, to India.

"I fully expected to return to Russia within one month's time," she wrote. "However, during my stay in India I decided that I could not return to Moscow.

"It was my own decision, based on my own feelings and experiences, without anyone's advice or help or instruction.

"In recent years, we in Russia have begun to think, to discuss, to argue, and we are not so much automatically devoted any more to the ideas which we were taught."

CHEMICAL PROGRESS WEEK

The days and weeks roll on - and just about each of them, it seems, provides the setting for some observance designed to attract the interest and curiosity of a broad public. One of the most noteworthy of these will be Chemical Progress Week, April 24 through 29.

It is literally true that chemistry, in its almost infinite aspects, touches the lives of everyone. Chemistry is responsible for the finding of myriad drugs and remedies which defeat illness and bring back health. It is the source of fertilizers and pesticides and other products which do much to make possible the amazing productivity of our farms. It takes wood by-products which once were a total waste and transforms them into thousands of wanted and useful products. Out of its test tubes come handsome and durable fabrics. It is the source of sports and outdoor gear and equipment far superior to anything known in the past. Everywhere - at home, at work, at play, or just driving the family car along the highways - the hands of the chemists enter, though they are not seen.

During Chemical Progress Week, we will all have a chance to learn a little more of the miracles for which chemistry is responsible. It is an opportunity none should miss.

THE PROBATE CAPER

"In every big transaction there is a magic moment during which a man has surrendered a treasure, and during which the man who is due to receive it has not yet done so. An alert lawyer will make that moment his own, possessing the treasure for a magic micro-second, taking a little of it, passing it on. If the man who is to receive the treasure is unused to wealth, has an inferiority complex and shapeless feelings of guilt, as most people do, the lawyer can often take as much as half the bundle, and still receive the recipient's blubbering thanks."

- Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., "God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater."

Instead of blubbering thanks, a probate lawyer today is more likely to get a cold stare from relatives of the deceased. This is in large measure due to the lonely crusade of one Norman F. Dacey, the non-lawyer author of "How To Avoid Probate." The book has been a best-seller for nearly a year (600,000 copies sold) and firmly establishes Dacey as the bete noir of the legal profession.

The New York County Lawyers Association, in fact, on April 10 asked the State Supreme Court to enjoin further sales of Dacey's book. It is contended the book constitutes the unauthorized practice of law. Even before "How To Avoid Probate" was published, the Connecticut Supreme Court enjoined Dacey from giving verbal advice on how persons could avoid having estates probated.

Dacey recently went before the Supreme Court of the United States to ask that the Connecticut court injunction be nullified. He further has charged that the Federal Trade Commission is investigating him in a manner "which is taking on the characteristics of a witch hunt." Dacey's basic advice is that property be placed in trust before the death of the owner to avoid having a will probated and paying heavy legal fees. But his real offense, in the eyes of many lawyers, was in putting dozens of detachable forms in his books that the reader can use to follow his advice - without consulting a lawyer. No magic moment there!

WHO BUYS MEN'S CLOTHES?
WHO BUYS HUBBY'S clothes?

Every men's clothing merchant knows how often wifey comes along; but few realized how much influence she really has in selecting a suit until a Sikeston reporter started asking questions.

"A guy would wear any old thing if it weren't for the missus," said one conservatively dressed male. "My wife keeps up on fashions for both of us," said another modernly dressed executive.

"We have similar taste," admitted one executive, "because I have learned to respect her judgment." Speaking of buying shorts another man said, "I wear 'em but she has to look at them," consequently he lets her make the selections.

A few of the men interviewed claimed they did their own choosing, but most of the bosses in their own firms admitted, "She shops for me and I love it."

Retailers writing advertising should remember the big influence the wife has in buying everything for the family. When her viewpoint is forgotten sales can be lost. Reading surveys made over the nation indicate that women read newspaper advertising thoroughly.

Konrad Adenauer is dead at 91.

There can't be much sorrow over the death of a man who lived so long and served his country so well. Instead there is reason for rejoicing for a long, useful life.

Adenauer as chancellor was a distinguished, far sighted leader, who brought Germany successfully through difficult times.

His friendship for and loyalty to the United States never faltered.

Chancellor for two decades he remained active in politics until the end, serving as a member of parliament.

His greatest feat was the leadership he gave to the development of Germany from the ruins of World War II. His country prospered.

He was a stalwart foe of Communism.

He worked for reconciliation of his country with France, a historic enemy.

He failed to achieve reunification of Germany.

A devout Catholic he believed that "Christianity is the answer to all ideologies" but was not narrow in his religious beliefs.

President Lyndon B. Johnson will attend the funeral.

He will be paying this grateful nation's respects to the greatest Germany of this century.

PUPILS INTRODUCED TO U.S. ECONOMY

Every so often we hear the complaint that while the economic system of the United States is the most successful in the world, the people who enjoy its benefits understand little of how it works. Americans are economic illiterates. Wealthy illiterates, but illiterates none the less.

A study made in 1963 revealed that among large school systems in the nation, fewer than one-fifth had a required course in economics. Many schools offered no economics at all. Only 22 states required economics courses for social studies teachers.

The reasoning behind the complaint is valid: In a society which is governed by individual choice made in the market place as well as in the voting booth, ignorance of economics is no less dangerous than ignorance of politics. But if the implication is that no one is doing anything about it, it couldn't be more wrong.

The study cited above was made by the Joint Council on Economic Education, an independent, nonprofit organization supported by business, labor, professions and other private segments of the economy.

Founded in 1949, the council works with affiliated but autonomous councils throughout the country to promote and improve economic education in schools at all grade levels, develop new teaching materials and upgrade teacher prepartion. It preaches no particular brand of economic theory or ideology but seeks to increase basic understanding of how our economy actualy works.

There are at present some 44 local councils in 30 states. One of the most active is the Ohio Council on Economic Education (OCEE), headquartered at Ohio University in Athens and chairmaned by the university's dynamic president, Vernon R. Alden.

During the past year, it sponsored 19 special school programs and sent out thousands of pieces of educational literature.

Guiding principle behind all this activity is the idea of an "economic education multiplier effect," explains Warmke.

Economic education begins with economists, school administrators and community leader, working with councils like the OCEE; proceeds down to teachers in local schools; from teachers to their students, and from the students to their families. The ultimate product is an informed citizenry.

At any rate, economic education is "in" in Ohio. A recent survey by the OCEE showed that six of every 10 public schools in the state offered a separate course in economics.

Nikita Khrushchev once said that he would bury us - that is, that his economic system would triumph over ours.

Not if we're smart, it won't. And if we become smart, no little credit will go the efforts of the Joint Council on Economic Education and its regional chapters.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- On his recent trip to Europe, Vice President Humphrey, being the no. 2 man in government, adopted the slogan of a well known car rental company. He tried harder.

His biggest test was his dramatic confrontation with "Le Grand Charles," the difficult and divisive Charles De Gaulle. It was the first top-level visit an American official has had with the French President in two years of strained relations.

Humphrey's aides tried to prepare him for the encounter by writing a formal little speech, which he was supposed to deliver in toasting De Gaulle.

"Fifty years ago," declared the proposed toast, "we came to the aid of France when she was threatened, and only a few years later we once more came to the aid of our friends. . . We are committed to you and to your freedom as we are committed to the freedom of our own people."

Humphrey read the draft once and crumpled it into the waste basket.

"This would be an insult," he snorted. "I want to talk about what France has done for America, not what America has done for France."

So at the banquet, the Vice President ad - libbed about visiting Yorktown and reading the names of French officers carved in the granite on our most historic monuments.

"How can I as an American ever forget the debt that we owe France for our independence!" he declared.

"What binds us is not the wars we have fought together nor the money we have exchanged," he continued, pointing out nonetheless that France gave the United States its first loan in 1777.

"What binds us," he went on, "is our common belief in liberty."

The French slogan, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity," stands together in history with the American slogan, "Liberty and the pursuit of happiness," he said.

He also called off the names of the French scholars, writers and scientists who have inspired America, and paid tribute to "Le Grand" leader who symbolizes "La Grande" nation.

"No disagreement between our countries today can possibly erase these immortal memories," declared Humphrey.

OTHER EUROPEAN TALKS

While the Vice President's visit clearly gave French-American relations a lift, it was not the most important of his talks. The most important were with the German and Italian cabinets, aimed at heading off a revival of the arms race, this time with nuclear weapons.

This is the first time in the twenty-year postwar period of very cordial relations between the United States and Italy that there has been a major disagreement between them, and the disagreement over the nonproliferation of nuclear weapons is considered especially serious because it could lead to a revival of the arms jockeying that finally led to World War II.

This is something the United States has been trying to prevent ever since we went into Western Europe with the Marshall plan and subsequently set up NATO and helped inspire the European Common Market.

The leaders of Italy remained cordial but adamant. Humphrey got the impression that they would be more difficult in the end than West Germany.

He found German leaders most concerned about the provisions in the treaty which would permit representatives from Communist countries to inspect their plants. Humphrey discussed safeguards to answer their worries which satisfied Foreign Minister Willy Brandt and seemed to make an impression on Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

The Vice President got off to a good start with Kiesinger by bringing greetings from Kiesinger's daughter, Mrs. Viola Wentzel, who is studying at Georgetown University in Washington. What really mellowed the Chancellor, however, were stories and pictures of his little granddaughter, Cecilia.

The Chancellor told how he had entered his bedroom to dress for the banquet and had found upon the dresser a "beautiful photograph" of his daughter and granddaughter posing with Humphrey.

"You have discovered my soft spot," said Kiesinger, turning to the Vice President.

FRENCH-GERMAN ALLIANCE

Humphrey responded by saying his country encouraged the new, friendly relations between Germany and France.

"But," he protested, "there is a limit." He noted that the Chancellor's daughter lived across the street in Washington from the French Embassy and that the Chancellor's little granddaughter plays on the grounds of the French Embassy.

"And her little German dog," added Humphrey in mock dismay, "plays with a French dog! Who knows what they are saying to one another?"

Humphrey, as previously reported, fell back on his long acquaintanceship with some of the social Democratic leaders of Italy and Germany whom he had known for many years. He is reasonably confident that they will influence their governments, in which they are part of coalitions, to bring about approval of the nonproliferation treaty in the end.

Note -- Italian newspapers misrepresented the beating up of the Italian who threw paint at Vice President Humphrey in front of the Rome opera house. The man was a tough Communist, who after throwing the paint started toward Humphrey. The secret service grabbed him and did manhandle him somewhat, though most of the manhandling was done by the Italian police.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LABOR SEES ROCKY-REAGAN

Break With Bob Kennedy Swings Powerful Union Chiefs to Eastern Republicans

New York: -- In some labor circles, whose intelligence sources are primary, there are those who will wager on a Rockefeller-Reagan ticket in 1968.

These labor men are hardly the contemplative type with mentally indexed references to Plato and Santayana. When they talk, they know. And they are in a position to know for they are now deep inside the Republican Party's eastern establishment ranging far beyond the Hudson.

And for two reasons. They have been wooed by Nelson Rockefeller and a few of his colleagues and they have split with Robert Kennedy and his eastern establishment. So to many of these truly powerful union chiefs there is no Democratic Party as of yore. They find that philosophically, emotionally, politically and socially they cannot communicate with "Bob" -- as the party leader today in the east -- tomorrow, perhaps, in the nation.

Not too long ago, for example, Bob Kennedy did offer his hand. He invited a dozen or so influential labor leaders to his United Nations Plaza apartment -- sort of a shirtsleeves what-the-hell, let's get to really know each other evening. The hours were only slightly less formal than a meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union resolutions committee -- except for one bottle baby.

If the stilted evening was to be off the record the labor chiefs did not so understand. Slowly, they reported back to their new Republican allies in high places during gayer hours. And these labor leaders are the men who truly can pour out the money and manpower for a candidate.

It all is not, perhaps, Bob Kennedy's fault. Some years ago, Victor Borella -- now the Special Advisor to the governor on Labor Affairs in this state (and then executive vice-president of Rockefeller Center) -- analyzed the institution called the political club. In both parties he found them threadbare and often as rotting as the floorboards in the ancient two-story taxpayer buildings which housed them.

Obviously, there was a force to fill the vacuum -- the labor movement. And he saw no reason why he couldn't turn it towards the Republicans. So Borella, an old college mate of Rockefeller's, began bringing both forces together.

It worked. The union leader said all they wanted was to go directly to the governor with their problems. Now they have his private number. He has theirs. He has found them far more practical stretegists than some of his old-line party people.

But the Rockefeller-labor alliance and the prismatic uneasiness in "Bobby's" presence -- especially among the construction union officials -- are only parts of this tangoing of labor and the Eastern Republicans.

Even the Johnsonian laborites are interested in the dialogue. For some time now Republican Mayor John Lindsay -- whose inner circle see him running for governor in 1970 and on the national GOP ticket in '72 -- has been eager to get into one of those shirtsleeve sessions with influential labor leaders to whom skis are just a minisled.

Early this month AFL-CIO President George Meany and Harry Van Arsdale, leader of a million New York workers and Rockefeller's closest labor ally, went up to the mayor's mansion and talked for a long time. It went well, this gathering of the new and elder statesmen. Lindsay did not tear Meany from Lyndon Johnson. But the secret session cracked the ice.

Some weeks earlier there had been a similar session -- this one at City Hall -- with the labor men who lead the state's balance - of - power Liberal Party. Certainly they talked about their joint campaign which elected John Lindsay mayor. But they talked of the future, too.

And no doubt, at least in this corner, they will be back with John next time around in '69. Thus once again they'll be bucking Bob Kennedy.

But this kind of battle may not have to wait two years. This Liberal Party, which certainly will back Mr. Johnson if he runs, may well split with Bob Kennedy's Democrats on the Senatorial line. The Liberals will back Sen. Jack Javits for re-election unless they get their kind of nominee from Bob Kennedy -- which is not likely since their kind is Lyndon Johnson's kind.

They're talking of Javits because they positively do not expect Ambassador Arthur Goldberg to accept the Senatorial nomination. Positively. Absolutely.

So right across the board, from right to left inside eastern labor, the union chiefs are knowledgeable indeed on the inner politics of the Republican establishment.

And of late they hear that Nelson Rockefeller's emissaries have been making contact with some of Gov. Reagan's Californians.

Who knows? Some of them may even be going by way of Arizona. One of them is genial Bill Miller, the former National Republican chairman who was Barry Goldwater's running mate.

Politics makes strange itineraries.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

CAN WE TAKE AFFLUENCE?

MONTEREY, Cal. -- I was sitting in the shadow of the lighthouse watching this character stroll across the dunes. He had a wispy red beard and he wore a sports shirt open to the belly, tattered slacks and sandals.

I had been reading in The Chronicle how the "hippies" had warned San Francisco that thousands of them will gather in that city this summer "out of a sense of hopelessness and despair."

A mile from Monterey's lighthouse is Cannery Row. John Steinbeck wrote a famous collection of stories about the bums who hung around those canneries during the hungry Thirties. At least they were all bums except "Doc" who collected sea life for biological laboratories.

The rest -- Eddie, Hughey, Frankie - worked when driven to it, for the soup in the soup lines those years was mighty thin. But they suffered from no "hopelessness and despair." They even enjoyed their precarious lives.

A COLLEGE professor recently told me this:

"I think one thing that's bugging the kids is too much security and too little struggle and danger. There are no rafts left for our Huck Finns. The Indians are tame and practically all the woods are posted. A youngster grows up smothered by 'Mustn'ts' from Mom and Teacher. The virile old world of boy-with-stick - following - man - with - club is gone."

My professor friend feels that the primitive desire for danger will not be suppressed, and will emerge in eccentric, spectacular or even anti-social ways.

"The young speeder is trying to claw his way out from under a blanket," he continued. "Much delinquency is a way of courting danger. I suspect that many who parade in sympathy for the Vietcong are finding fulfillment in the hazard of almost - but - not - quite treason."

AS I WATCHED the bearded young man wander glumly along the beautiful Pacific shore I thought of other young Americans on the other side of that ocean who are enjoying no security at all. Indeed, we have never before fought a war where the chances of unpleasant surprises were so plentiful. Yet I had never seen better morale than among the kids in Vietnam. They have responded magnificently to elemental struggle.

The beats who are scheduled to flock to San Francisco this summer to express their agony will be well taken care of. Already, a group of motherly preachers is working for their proper accommodation. It is not certain that this will be a kindness. Maybe the hippies would be happier if they were stoned.

WHAT WE have has been described as the "affluent society." It might be better described as the "borrowing society," since, in spite of our vaunted wealth, we cannot bring ourselves to cough up enough taxes to pay for our "needs." Apres nous le deluge.

But the object of the affluent society is supposed to be the elimination of want. It is hoped that our productive capacity will grow so great that we can afford to guarantee necessities to anyone, whether he is healthy or ailing, smart or stupid, lucky or unlucky, industrious or just sacked out.

The word "needs" means physical needs only. Man needs a lot more, including identification with a noble aim bigger than himself.

THE NATIONS with the highest suicide rates in Europe -- Denmark, Austria and Switzerland -- are most prosperous and are highly organized toward social welfare. The nations with the lowest -- Portugal and Ireland -- are hard-scrabble countries. Man thrives in struggle if it is sweetened by hope.

In time of war suicide rates diminish. World War II statistics are unreliable, since many a Gestapo murder was kissed off as a suicide, but between 1912 and 1916 the British rate dropped from 10 to 7.3 per 100,000, the German from 23 to 17, and the French from 23 to 15.

OLD TOM GILCREASE, the part-Indian who spent his whole oil fortune on his great Americana collection, said, "A man should leave a track." Maybe that's what we want -- to leave a track.

A man who is anything doesn't want to leave simply a pile of empty tin cans and endorsed welfare checks. He wants to identify himself with a triumphant struggle. Even Steinbeck's cannery bums took satisfaction in the feeling that they had a distinguished record of outwitting Society. If someone had handed them an easy living they might have shot themselves.

The young man in the wispy beard is going to be awfully cheated if he goes to San Francisco this summer and no cop bounces a nightstick on his noggin. It is hard to identify with no - struggle. It is a curel world that looks straight through the sandaled attention-seeker as it hands him a sandwich.

That may be why, in an affluent society that is approaching total security, the sport of sky-diving is booming.

THE MYSTERY book shelf at the library is loaded with whodunits. R. B. Spencer, 103 Winter Dr., looks at one volume.

Mysteries, History Sought at Library

Books that are read in the public library:

Best sellers, of course. Currently in favor are George Plimpton's "The Paper Lion"; John Toland's "The Last 100 Days"; Jonathon Daniels, "The Time Between the Wars"; and John Dos Passos "Shackles of Power." Expected to join the ranks is a new arrival - William Machester's controversial "Death of a President."

Books on the best seller list are on the rental shelf but they are taken off as soon as they fall from fickle public favor. One week books require the payment of no fees. They are new books but not best sellers. Variety is everywhere. Two new books are about pruple martins and how to save money by borrowing.

In continuous demand are books by Mary Stewart, Elizabeth Seifert, Allen Drury, Robert Ruark, Edwin O'Connor, Paul Wellman and Bruce Catton.

Mysteries are great favorites. So is historical non-fiction. In strong demand are Civil War and English history and books about World War II.

Favorite authors of whodunits are Erle Stanley Gardner, Agatha Christie, Rex Stout, Mignon Everhart, Mary Margaret Rinehart and among newer authors -- Joan Aiken, Charlotte Armstrong and George Bagby.

A shelf is devoted to mystery books.

Books about sports, both fiction and non-fiction, are popular.

There are calls for books on interior decoration, antiques and coin collecting.

The Vanishing American still sits on the shelves. There is a large selection of books about Indians.

Williams to Conduct Choir

Ronald R. Williams, junior high school band director, will conduct the evangelism choir in a two-week revival in Miner Baptist church, beginning May 1.

Pianists will be Mrs. Bill Pickett and Mrs. Ron McCormick. The choir will sing at 7 p.m. Revival services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Williams, a native of Manila, Ark., graduated from high school at Campbell, where his parents now live. He holds the bachelor of music education degree from Arkansas State University, Jonesboro. Before coming to Sikeston, Williams was band director at Marble Hill. Williams, his wife, and their two children live at 404 Benton St.

The evangelist for the revival will be Tom K. Simms, artist-evangelist of Galveston, Texas. He will complete a painting each evening at the beginning of the service. The painting will be given to someone present.

The church is located east of Sikeston, one block north of Highway 62, on the Blodgett Road.

Mrs. Sadler Is Circle Hostess

Circle five of the First Baptist church met with Mrs. Phillip Sadler for the regular monthly business meeting and Royal Service program in April. Present were six members, including Mrs. J. B. Hall, a new member, and one guest, Mrs. Fred Steward, president of the night circles of Woman's Missionary Society.

Mrs. Pat Herring conducted the business session. Mrs. Carl Elam, prayer chairman, read the prayer calendar and led in prayer.

Mrs. Herring announced that circles five and six had been invited to serve the youth choir the evening meal, chuck wagon style, each Wednesday in April and May. Those from circle five who will assist Mrs. Steward will be Mrs. Herring, Mrs. E. T. Freeman, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Ralph Ancell.

Plans for two meetings a month to advance the WMS were discussed. Mrs. Steward explained the purpose of a circle meeting and a general meeting of the WMS.

Mrs. Harold Bean was program leader and was assisted by Mrs. Donald Beggs, Mrs. Lou Goehri, Mrs. Sadler and Mrs. Elam. Their topic, "First and Twentieth Century Churches" was discussed with study question being "How is the Holy Spirit evident in the development of First and Twentieth Century Churches?" A study of the first church established in Europe compared to churches in the modern-day country of Tanzania in East Africa was given.

At the close, Mrs. Herring led in directed prayer for the missionaries and Christians in Tanzania.

Mrs. Sadler served coffee and cake during the social hour.

"Toothache Tree"

"Toothache tree" is another name for the prickly ash, so-called because the bark produces a cooling sensation when chewed and acts as an anesthetic for toothache.

First Performance of 'South Pacific' Given

BY RUTH DILLENDER

"South Pacific," Sikeston Little Theatre's last production of the season, opened last night with about 175 attending the performance.

Patsy Mitchell, as Ensign Nellie Forbush, and Jim Moore III, as Emile de Beque, were good in their parts, but Vivian Boyer, as Bloody Mary, and Douglas J. Morrison, as Luther Billis, stole the show. The audience roared with laughter at the antics of these two. Both were perfect for the parts they played. Nothing could have been funnier.

The music and songs were well coordinated. Mary and Gordon Beaver, duo pianists, accompanied. Vocal coordinators were Carole Clayton and Bob Williamson.

Mrs. Mitchell's best scene was the one in which she sang "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Outa My Hair." Moore's best song was "Some Enchanted Evening."

The only complaint about the show is the time it takes to change scenery. This will surely improve in the next performances. The show will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight, Friday night and next Saturday night in the junior high school auditorium. This is the best show ever presented by the Little Theatre.

The Dr. Tom L. Chidester memorial award will be presented during intermission tonight. Lynn Colley will make the presentation.

Other members of the cast were Susie Mitchell as Ngana; Lorenzo Harris, Jerome; Samuel Sanders, Henry; Sheila Topp, Bloody Mary's assistant; Danny Cannon, Stewpot; Mike Fodge, Professor; Dan Norton, Lt. Joseph Cable; Buddy Clayton, Capt. George Brackett; Jim Terrell, Cmdr. William Harbison; Mike Payne, Yeoman Herbert Quale.

Jerry Obermark, Abner, Williamson, Kenneth Johnson; Jerry Smithers, Seabee Richard West; John Hough, Seaman Tom O'Brien; Jay Sitzes, Radio Operator McCaffrey; Bob Brothers, Cpl. Hamilton Steeves; Tommy Richey, Sgt. Thomas Hassinger; Frances Heckemeyer, Lt. Genevieve Marshall.

Charlene Freeman, Ensign Dinah Murphy; Kay Hunter, Ensign Janet McGregor; Kathy Tenkhoff, Ensign Cora McRae; Patty Bush, Ensign Sue Yaeger; Jean Livingston, Ensign Lisa Manelli; Faith Ann Fodge, Ensign Connie Walewska; Shirley Davidson, Ensign Bessie Noonan; Greer Huff, Ensign Rita Lambert; Debbie Wheeler, Ensign Patricia McCormick.

Lynda Norton, Liat; Lynn Colley, Lt. "Buzz" Adams; Milton Brashears, Sgt. Jack Waters; Bill Lashmet, Pvt. Victor Jerome; Paul Parmenter, Pvt. Sven Larsen, Kathy Miller, native girl, and Rosalie Boyer, Ensign Betty Pitt.

A great deal of credit goes to a person that wasn't even seen last night, director Hope Terrell. This production involved long hours and hard work for her.

The scenery was, as always, beautiful and realistic. Jean Love and high school students were in charge of the art, scenery and special effects. Richard Fussell was technical advisor and set designer.

The stage crew was Colley, W.W. Wilkison, Ernest Elledge, John Davis, Harley Barnes, Paul Elledge, Fussell and members of the cast.

Producers were Karen Moore, Brothers and Ken Stallings. Choreographer was Thema Bush. Colley, Paul Elledge, Carrol Couch and Carolyn Hill were in charge of sound and lights.

Sandy York, Linda Litchford, Donna Wheeler, Hough, Cyd Mitchell and Tommy Jobe were members of the property crew. Hair stylists were Helen DeLine and Shirley Bye. In charge of wardrobe were Jewell Bell, Molly Wheeler, Billie Sue McCann, Martha Edwards, Brothers, Stallings, Lynn Twitty, Rosalie Boyer, Shirley Davidson and Faith Fodge.

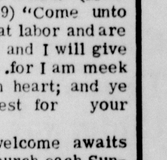
Peace

Christ has prescribed a perfect formula for peace - with self, others, and God. The rulers of this world can only search in vain - outside this formula - for this most scarce and needed commodity. All Christians of all ages attest to this fact: "Christ's way has never failed!" (Matthew 11:28, 29) "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest . . .for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest for your souls."



A. McDONOUGH PASTOR

A friendly welcome awaits you at our church each Sunday morning, Sunday evening, and Wednesday evening.

Now! Big Company Group Insurance For Smaller Businesses

Now, businesses with less than 25 employees are eligible for a new, low-cost group health and life insurance program that offers coverage you'd expect to find only in big company group insurance plans.

It's P.E.P. (Progressive Employers Program) — from Mutual of Omaha and its life insurance affiliate, United of Omaha. P.E.P. solves the salary continuance problem for the small employer and helps reduce labor turnover by providing important financial security for the employee and his family.

If you have a small business, you owe it to yourself and your employees to investigate P.E.P. — the modern answer to the small businessman's need for a flexible, low-cost employee insurance program.

Rain Idles NL Cellar Dwellers

By HAL BOCK

It was almost as if the heavens opened in mercy over Chavez Ravine.

Buried in ninth place with five losses in their first seven games, the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers could be excused if they approached their four-game series with red hot St. Louis somewhat less than enthusiastically.

After all, the first place Cardinals had won six of their first seven games and had fireballing Bob Gibson, 2-0, set to open against the punchless Dodgers Friday night.

About the only thing Los Angeles could hope for was a miracle.. . like maybe rain in California.

Now any native will tell you that rain in California is about as rare as snow in Florida. The Dodgers hadn't lost an inning to the elements in nine years since moving from that nasty Brooklyn climate. They'd played 737 consecutive games at home including exhibitions and World Series.

But Friday night, it rained in Los Angeles, and the Dodgers didn't have to play the Cardinals.

Not only did the weather keep the Dodgers idle, but it moved up the California coast and wiped out the San Francisco Giants' game against Atlanta.

That kept the Giants, 2-7, in last place, one game back of the Dodgers, and five off the pace of the Cardinals.

Three National League games were played Friday. Vada Pinson's 10th inning triple drove in two runs as Cincinnati trimmed Houston 3-1. The New York Mets broke Jim Bunning's hex against them, downing Philadelphia 6-3, and Bob Veale's two-hitter gave Pittsburgh a 6-1 victory over Chicago.

In the American League, Boston whipped New York 6-1, Detroit walloped Minnesota 12-4, Kansas City dropped Baltimore 3-1, California nipped Cleveland 6-5 and Washington edged Chicago 4-3.

The Cardinals and Dodgers were scheduled to try again tonight, with Gibson set to go against Los Angeles' Don Drysdale.

In San Francisco, the Giants were scheduled to send Gaylord Perry against Denny Lemaster of the Braves in an afternoon game.

Pinson was the Reds' hero for the second straight night as Cincinnati played its third consecutive extra inning game.

His triple drove in Art Shamsky, who had walked and Tommy Harper, who had singled. It was Pinson, who stroked a single in the 13th inning Thursday night to beat the Dodgers.

Oliva Hits Two HR's Gets Credit For One

Tony Oliva hit his first home run twice and he made sure the second one counted.

The Minnesota outfielder hit a long blast in the third inning of the Twins' 12-4 loss to Detroit Friday night and was happily romping around the bases when — what's this? — he ran right past Cesar Tovar, who for reasons best known to himself, had stopped between first and second. Oliva was out.

But in the ninth, after a 58-minute rain delay, Tony hit a towering shot into the third deck in right field. He knew this one would be good because he was the leadoff batter.

Though it was clear than Oliva had to be called out for passing Tovar, it took some searching of the rule book to clear up the rest of the situation.

Umpire John Stevens allowed Tovar to score, ruling that all he had to do was touch all the bases. Official scorer George Cantor reasoned that since Oliva did get to first base, he should get a single and a run batted-in.

In other American League games, Boston beat New York 6-1, California edged Cleveland 6-5, Washington nudged Chicago 4-3 and Kansas City took Baltimore 3-1.

Detroit scored seven times in the fourth inning, three runs coming on a homer by Jim Northrup. Al Kaline and Ray Oyler drove in two runs each for the Tigers, and Denny McLain was the winning pitcher.

Bill Rohr went the distance against the Yankees again, the only run off him coming when Elston Howard singled in Bill Robinson in the eighth. Howard spoiled Rohr's no-hit bid with a two-out single in the ninth a week ago. Dalton Jones homered for the Red Sox.

Jim Fregosi homered with two out in the ninth, also driving in pinch runner Don Wallace and giving the Angels their victory. Cleveland had gone ahead in the eighth on doubles by Leon Wagner and Duke Sims. Chuck Hinton and Fred Whitfield homered for the Indians.

Ken Harrelson's bases-loaded, two-out single in the ninth drove in Washington's winning runs. Pete Ward hit his third homer for the Sox and Tommie Agee also homered.

Five doubles and Jim Gosger's homer led the Athletics to victory. Jim (Catfish) Hunter held the Orioles to four hits and struck out eight before getting relief help from Jack Aker in the ninth.

Baseball Finals Tues.

The final game of the sub-district baseball tournament at Sikeston's VFW stadium yesterday afternoon was rained out and rescheduled for Monday at 3:30 p.m.

Sikeston and Richland are the two finalists.

Reed Named Coach

MALDEN - Vivian Reed has been named new basketball coach at Malden high school. He replaces Lavern Garner.

Reed has been coach at Campbell high school for the past five seasons, and is a native of Puxico and a graduate of Southeast Missouri State College.

Sub-District Begins At Hayti Monday

HAYTI - Subdistrict baseball tournament number three will begin Monday at Hayti North high school.

Six teams are entered in the event with games scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and finals Thursday.

Entered in the tournament are Lilbourn, Clarkton, Parma, North Pemiscot, Campbell and Hayti North.

Campbell was seeded number one for the tournament while Hayti was second, North Pemiscot third and Clarkton fourth.

Lilbourn and Clarkton get the tournament underway Monday with a 1 p.m. game followed at 3:30 p.m. by the Parma-North Pemiscot game.

Fishing Tournament Underway

BRANSON, Mo. AP - Ken White of Independence, Mo., the 1963 world fresh water fishing champion, caught 30 pounds of fish Friday in Bull Shoals lake and took the lead in the U. S. Open and Missouri fishing tournaments.

The contestants were fishing in Table Rock Lake today.

White caught a 6-pound, 9-ounce bass Friday, largest landed by the 50 fishermen in the two tournaments. The Missouri competition is restricted to residents of the state this year.

White had 431 points; Jim Roger, Lamar, Mo., 315; Chuck Keithley, Branson, 308; Don Staser, Lansing, Mich., 224, and Howard Holmes, Branson, 178.

The competition will end Sunday at Lake Taneycomo.

Central Names Coach

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Howard Garrett has been named new Cape Girardeau Central high school basketball coach, replacing Bob Godwin, who is going to Jackson.

Besides being basketball coach, he will coach tennis and cross county.

SHS Golf

By Arnie

The golfers of Sikeston high will journey to Cape Girardeau Monday to meet the Cape Central Tigers. A varsity and junior varsity match will be played.

The meet is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. at the Cape Girardeau country club, which has recently opened a new nine holes. The two matches will be played over the entire 18 holes.

The starting line - up for Sikeston's varsity squad will probably remain the same as it was for last Thursday's match against Caruthersville. In "B" team competition a few Sikeston boys will see action for the first time this year. Coach Gene Dawson's squad will total 13 boys for Monday's trip.

The Bulldogs will be shooting for their sixth straight win of the year against only one defeat. The Tiger's record for the year is 2-2.

The SHS golfers are in their fifth season and have never defeated the Tigers on the Cape course. But the Dogs are ready and will be trying hard for an upset.

Conference Track Meet Rescheduled

Yesterday's scheduled running of the Northern Division conference track meet was postponed by rain.

The meet has been rescheduled for Tuesday afternoon and evening. The preliminaries begin at 4 p.m. with the finals starting at 7:30 p.m.

Charleston and Kennett are favorites to win the meet. Cape Central is defending champion.

Golf Association

Meeting Set For 28th

The Men's Golf Association meeting and fish fry will be held at the country club April 28.

Dues of $3 will be collected, which includes the meal.

For more information call Bob Craff at GR 1-4518 or Ron Groves at GR 1-2721.

STARS

The Richest Man In Babylon

By George S. Clason

" 'Mark you well my words, for if you do not you will fail to grasp the truth that I will tell you, and you will think that your night's work has been in vain.'

"Then he looked at me shrewdly from under his shaggy brows and said in a low, forceful tone, 'I found the road to wealth when I decided that a part of all I earned was mine to keep. And so will you.'

"Then he continued to look at me with a glance that I could feel pierce me but said no more.

" 'Is that all?' I asked.

" 'That was sufficient to change the heart of a sheep herder into the heart of a money lender,' he replied.

" 'But all I earn is mine to keep, is it not?' I demanded.

" 'Far from it,' replied. 'Do you not pay the garment-maker? Do you not pay the sandal - maker? Do you not pay for the things you eat? Can you live in Babylon without spending? What have you to show for your earnings of the past month? What for the past year? Fool! You pay to everyone but yourself. Dullard, you labor for others. As well be a slave and work for what your master gives you to eat and wear. If you did keep for yourself one-tenth of all you earn, how much would you have in ten years?"

"My knowledge of the numbers did not forsake me, and I answered, 'As much as I earn in one year.'

" 'You speak but half the truth,' he retorted. 'Every gold piece you save is a slave to work for you. Every copper it earns is its child that also can earn for you. IF you would become wealthy, then what you save must earn, and its children must earn, that all may help to give to you the abundance you crave.

" 'You think I cheat you for your long night's work,' he continued, 'but I am paying you a thousand times over if you have the intelligence to grasp the truth I offer you.

" 'A PART OF ALL YOU EARN IS YOURS TO KEEP. It should not be less than a tenth no matter how little you earn. It can be as much more as you can afford. Pay yourself first. Do not buy from the clothes - maker and the sandal - maker more than you can pay out of the rest and still have enough for food and charity and penace to the gods.

" 'Wealth, like a tree, grows from a tiny seed. The first copper you save is the seed from which your tree of wealth shall grow. The sooner you plant that seed the sooner shall the tree grow. And the more faithfully you nourish and water the tree with consistent savings, the sooner may you bask in contentment beneath its shade.'

"So saying, he took his tablets and went away.

"I thought much about what he had said to me, and it seemed reasonable. So I decided that I would try it. Each time I was paid I took one from each ten pieces of copper and hid it away. And strange as it may seem, I was no shorter of funds than before. I noticed little difference as I managed to get along without it. But often I was tempted, as my hoard began to grow, to spend it for some of the good things the merchants displayed, brought by camels and ships from the land of the Phoenicians. But I wisely refrained.

MONTREAL AP - Stan Mikita of the Chicago Black Harks, the National Hockey League's scoring leader, was named Player-of-the-Year Friday and Emile Francis of the New York Rangers was chosen as top coach by the Hockey News.

RECOGNIZE THE FACE when it's not surrounded by her two cohorts, Peter and Paul? It's Mary Finestein of the singing group, "Peter, Paul and Mary," at home with her two children, Erika, 7, and Alicia, nine months.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE POKER-FACED UNDERTAKER

Mr. Grimm was a hard-hearted undertaker whose disposition was stiffer than his recently departed customers. Consequently, when the Widow Brown telephoned to say that she would be unable to pay him promptly for her husband's funeral, he donned his black stove-pipe hat and went to see her. The only one he found at home, however, was the widow's sister Marie who had just arrived from out-of-town.

Pounding his palm, the irate undertaker demanded immediate payment for the contemplated funeral. Sister Marie, however, had no money. The result? The poker-faced undertaker went out to his hearse, fetched the defunct body of Mr. Brown and left it sitting upright on the living room couch.

As it developed, the sudden appearance of the late Mr. Brown, sitting with his legs crossed in the living room, was too much for Marie. Passing out as if she was the one who was dead, she later sued the undertaker for assault.

"He assaulted me with my brother-in-law's body," she complained to a judge. "He scared me half to death with it."

"There was no reason to be afraid," retorted the undertaker. "The fact is, a girl may be safer with a dead man than a live one. A corpse can't hurt anybody."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require the money-minded undertaker pay Marie for assault?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there can be no assault without a threat to do physical harm. In this case, the undertaker in no way threatened Marie with such physical harm.

(Based upon a 1923 Illinois Supreme Court Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

Marking a check "Paid in Full," generally, has no legal effect. However, if the amount owed is in disagreement, and the check is marked: "Paid in full with regard to the disputed amount," then, if the check is accepted and deposited and/or cashed, the obligation for which the check is given will normally be deemed to have been wiped out.

Morley CAA Notes Progress

MORLEY -- The Central Scott County CAA board met for a business meeting Tuesday night, at the neighborhood service center.

Following the board meeting the area meeting was held with about 40 present.

Elbert Clark, president of CAA, presided. The co-ordinator, Mrs. Bill Anderson, gave the progress report for the month and a report on the thrift shop. The Thrift Shop aides are Mrs. Mary Jefferson and Mrs. Nell Kindred. Mrs. Jefferson told the group how she enjoyed working in the thrift shop mending, washing, and ironing clothes which are given to low income families.

Mrs. Joe Davis gave a report on the sewing room. Many volunteers come in each day and sew, making quilts and new garments which are sold at a low price. The money is used to buy more material for more clothes.

Mrs. Phillip Newman told of the progress of the children who attend the romper room.

The Riverside Regional Library of Jackson has added 300 books to the center library. These books will be picked up every few months and new ones brought to replace them.

The coordinator met with the Morley town board Monday night to discuss the neighborhood youth corps program, a summer program that will hire six junior or senior boys and girls who would like to work for three months. The board decided to work with the center on this program.

The coordinators of Scott county met in the neighborhood service center in Scott City, Wednesday morning with director, Bill Clair of the DAEOC board in Portageville, Chip Schmerbauch and J. A. Cronister. Clair reported that the money had been funded for the family service center.

Applications for one full-time aid and one half time janitor are being taken at the center. Anyone with a $3000 or less net income may apply. The janitor should be 62 or older.

A Junior Girl Scout troop was organized in Morley, with 15 girls joining. They will meet each Tuesday in the center from 3:30 until 5 p.m. The leader is Mrs. Glen Gregory, assisted by Mrs. James Straud. The girls are Vickie Reeves, Betty Ann Johnson, Lisa Gregory, Debbie Jo Hale, Elaine Emmerson, Pamela Holt, Leah Johnson, Sandra McArthur, Dorothy Walker, Shirley Walker, Evelyn Bucker, Virginia Gadsberry, Kay Boley, and Pamela Carrow.

HOG MARKET HAS BEST ADVANCE IN OVER TWO MONTHS

National Stock Yards, Ill. - Live stock markets, with a few exceptions, closed the week on a steady to stronger basis, according to St. Louis Producers Live Stock Marketing Association. Salable cattle, calves, hogs and sheep of 55,545 head were up from week ago and year ago arrivals of 53,281 and 50,962 head, respectively.

Barrow and gilt hogs dipped to a new two-year low early, but rallied late to close the period mostly 50¢ higher. Friday's top of $18.75 cwt. compared with peaks of $18.10 a week ago and a year earlier high of $23.00 cwt. Sows figured steady to 50¢ down, the decline mostly on weights over 400 lbs. Sales late were downward from $15.75.

In cattle slaughter steers regained an early loss to finish about steady, while heifers were steady to 25¢ lower, the best demand for weights 800 to 1000 lbs. Cows sold strong to 50¢ higher, instances up $1, and bulls remained steady.

High Choice and Prime 950 to 1300-lb. steers $24 to $24.-50; Choice 900 to 1250 lbs. $23.25 to $24.25; mixed Good and Choice $22.50 to $23.75; Good $22 to $23.25; Standard 950 to 1250 lbs. $20.50 to $21.-50.

A few loads and small lots Choice heifers, some with an end of Prime 900 to 1050 lbs. $23.25 to $23.50; Choice 750 to 1000 lbs. $22.50 to $23; a few 650 to 750 lbs. $22 to $22.-50; Good and low Choice 750 to 950 lbs. $21.50 to $22.50; 600 to 750 lbs. $20.50 to $22. Commercial cows late $15.50 to $18, Utility $15.50 to $18.50, a few Holsteins $19.

Feeder steers proved fairly active and steady to 50¢ lower, most decline on weights over 500 lbs. Heifers were scarce and steady to strong. Choice 725 to 500 lb. steers $25.75 to $27.70; 500 to 700 lbs. $23.-50 to $25.75.

Veal calves sold on a firm basis, choice 180 to 250 lbs. $32.00 to $35.00, a few $36.-00. Advancing for the second straight week, slaughter lambs gained 50¢ in response to a higher dressed trade. Choice 80 to 100 lb. springers $24.00 to $25.00; Choice 80 to 110 lb. woolskins $22.00 to $23.50. Slaughter ewes $5-$8.50.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

Behold, I make all things new. (Revelation 21:5)

PRAYER: O Thou omnipotent God, humbly we ask Thee to keep our hearts in open readiness to obey Thy will, that the Holy Spirit may effect His transforming work in our lives and point out to us new horizons. We give Thee thanks for the unfathomed merits of Christ Jesus, in whose name we pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I have a 20 - year - old son who has Cooley's anemia. Because of this illness he has not grown to normal size. He looks like an eight or nine - year -old child.

The illness did not affect his mind. He is a very alert young man -- beautifully creative and unusually talented. The problem is that people come over when we are shopping and ask why "the little boy" isn't in school. I know they don't mean any harm, but my son resents being treated like a child. I wish I knew what to say. My son would like some advice on the subject, too.

Now that he is driving a car he is often stopped by people who want to know how such a young child obtained a license. How should we respond to inquisitive people? -- STUMPED

Dear Stumped: Both you and your son should be as casual as possible. Simply say, "He is not in school because he has finished his schooling." It is not necessary to mention the illness or make any defensive statements. A sensible person will figure out that the young man has a growth problem and go on about his business.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the world's lousiest cook. We are in a low income bracket, which adds to the problem because my husband gets furious when I have to throw out food, which is like almost every night.

I have really tried to make decent meals but I am just a miserable cook. Everything I make turns out tasteless or too highly seasoned -- undercooked or burned. My cakes fall and my pies have to be chiseled out of the pan. I can't even get jello to jell.

I am not a kid, Ann, I am 26 years old. My cooking is ruining our marriage. Help! Please! -- DESPERATE

Dear Desperate: Anyone who can read can cook.

Buy a beginner's book on how to prepare simple meals. Follow the book to the letter. Make sure you have the right cooking equipment to start with (the book will tell you what you need). If you really want to be a good cook, nothing can stop you.

Dear Ann Landers: I didn't like your answer to the woman whose mother - in - law kept asking her to get out of the picture because she wanted snapshots of the "four generations." I think the mother-in-law hates the woman and this was just one of the mean things she did to hurt her.

For years my grandmother has been using tricks to keep my mother out of family pictures. She says, "I want just the children in the picture now". Then she hands the camera to my mother and says, "I'd like a picture of me with Joan, or Jeffery, or Susan."

My mother has taken so much abuse from my grandmother it is a rotten shame. I think you should be more sympathetic to women who have miserable mothers - in - law. -- OLDER NOW

Dear Older: Life is rough for women who have miserable mothers - in - law, but daughters - in - law can be miserable too.

I must deal with the facts as I see them, and the woman who wrote made an enormous issue over something which I felt was unimportant, and I told her so.

When romantic glances turn to warm embraces is it love or chemistry? Send for the booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell the Difference," by Ann Landers. Enclose a long, stamped, self - addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Plant Set for Sedalia

SEDALIA (AP) -- Plans for a multi-million dollar plant for the manfuacture of electrical conductors, cables and industrial wire were announced Wednesday by the Olin Mathieson Corp.

The plant will be built on a 60-acre tract about three miles west of Sedalia.

Johnsongrass Can Be Controlled in Soybeans

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. -- Johnsongrass in soybeans reduces yields; competes with soybeans for light, space, plant food and moisture; interferes with harvesting; and reduces soybean quality.

Early season control of Johnsongrass in soybeans helps to produce maximum yield. Soybean yields have been reduced 50 per cent or more where heavy infestations are present, according to Arkansas research.

The plants spread by underground rhizomes and seed. They usually grow best on deep, fertile, moist soil; however, they may be found growing under most soil conditions and on several soil types. It is best to try and control the Johnsongrass plant before it begins producing secondary rhizomes which bear shoots that develop into above - ground vegetative growth and before it stores up additional food reserve in the rhizomes. The secondary rhizomes start forming underground in the spring about three weeks after plant emergence or when plants are from about 8 to 18 inches tall.

Early Johnsongrass infestations from rhizomes and seed may be reduced by cultural methods and herbicide applicators. Where the cultural or preplant herbicide method of control is used, a grower must follow with an effective grass preemergence herbicide and cultivation for lasting effect. Dowpon herbicide applied as a preplant spring treatment when Johnsongrass plants are about 10 inches, followed with trifluralin as a preemergence application, has effectively controlled Johnsongrass control occur, so a continued effort is necessary to keep the Johnsongrass under control.

The cultural method of control consists of several diskings (6 to 10) at four to six day intervals prior to planting. Plant soybeans around June 5-15, earlier if possible after the disking treatments. Start the disking treatment as early as possible after Johnsongrass emergence. Try to begin by the last week in April so all disking treatments can be accomplished.

The herbicide treatment is made to the young rapidly growing Johnsongrass plants before soybeans are planted. Dowpon may be used at the rate of 5 pounds per acre. Apply to Johnsongrass when it is about 6 to 10 inches tall. Disk the field three to six days after treatment. Soybeans can be planted two and one-half weeks after field has been disked.

Ground Application: Mix the recommended rate of Dowpon with 20 to 30 gallons of water plus one-half pint of surfactant (wetting agent).

Airplane Application: Mix the recommended rate of Dowpon with five or more gallons of water plus one-half pint of surfactant.

Uniform Johnsongrass growth at time of application is important. An initial early disking of the soil just as the plants are emerging is often helpful in stimulating early emergence and obtaining uniform growth. Johnsongrass should be sprayed when temperatures are high (above 60 to 70 degrees) and likely to remain so for a few days. The plants will need to be growing rapidly so they can readily absorb the Dowpon.

Rain within a few hours after treatment may enhance the movement of the chemical to the rhizomes. Normally, very little leaf kill or browning of the plant will be noticed immediately after treatment. In fact, green leaves may remain on the plants up to disking time (three to six days after treatment). But, the combination of Dowpon plus disking breaks down the food reserve in the rhizomes and causes them to dry up. Do not neglect the disking treatment. However, by this time complete movement of the chemical to the rhizomes should have taken place. Thorough coverage is necessary and a wetting agent is used to increase distribution and penetration.

Additional diskings may be used during the period between the first disking after treatment and the planting of the soybeans. The additional disking will aid in the breaking up and exposing the rhizomes to drying conditions and the killing of germinating Johnsongrass seedlings. Additional diskings will help incorporate the Dowpon with moist soil for further breakdown, especially in the absense of rainfall from time of treatment to time of planting in low organic matter soils.

Treatments after Dowpon for follow-up Johnsongrass control consist of a preemergence herbicide application which may be helpful in controlling Johnsongrass seedlings, spot oiling of Johnsongrass clumps (or directional spraying at base of the soybean plant) and conventional cultivation.

Keep Johnsongrass from going to seed or producing additional rhizomes and the battle is nearly won. Although it is no easy job to keep Johnsongrass under control, it must be controlled for maximum soybean yields.

Forecasts of Weather 85 Per Cent Accurate

Leonard F. Hand

PORTAGEVILLE - People sometimes misunderstand the discomfort of the meteorologist caught in an unexpected weather change that brings three inches of snow instead of the flurries he predicted. Some see this as proof that the weather forecast is not perfect.

The surprising feature is that this proof is considered necessary. Meteorologists are being realistic, not humble or apologetic, when they suggest that forecast accuracy may be about 85 per cent.

Meteorology, like astronomy and physics, is a science. Even in those related scientific fields modern tools have led to recent discoveries that have unleashed the secrets of atomic energy and revised theories of the origin of the universe. Agricultural scientists are not yet masters of their field, else why would they conduct research.

All science is a questioning, curious, incomplete but increasingly knowledgeable investigation of man and his environment. Meteorology is a fast growing infant in the total field of science. Progress in the past 25 years has practically reformed forecast techniques. Imaginative plans for the future offer possibilities for improved accuracy, longer range outlooks, and some measure of weather control.

Because we realize that forecasts frequently require revisions to meet changing conditions, forecasters are constantly examining hourly weather reports from hundreds of spots in the nation and around the northern hemisphere for keys to the nature of storm patterns. One function of the specialized forecast program and the ESSA Weather Wire Service established in the Missouri Bootheel is to bring updated forecasts to you as rapidly as possible.

Forecasts are made to provide the best possible advance information for millions of people affected by weather. They are never intended as evidence of our mastery over nature.

House Drops Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- At the sponsor's request the Missouri House Thursday struck from its calendar a bill to abolish the death penalty.

Rep. Raymond Howard, D-St. Louis, the bill's sponsor, said support for his legislation was growing but he did not believe the state was yet ready for its enactment.

He asked instead that the House pass a bill calling for a commission to consider the need for such legislation and whether capital punishment is a deterrent to major crime.

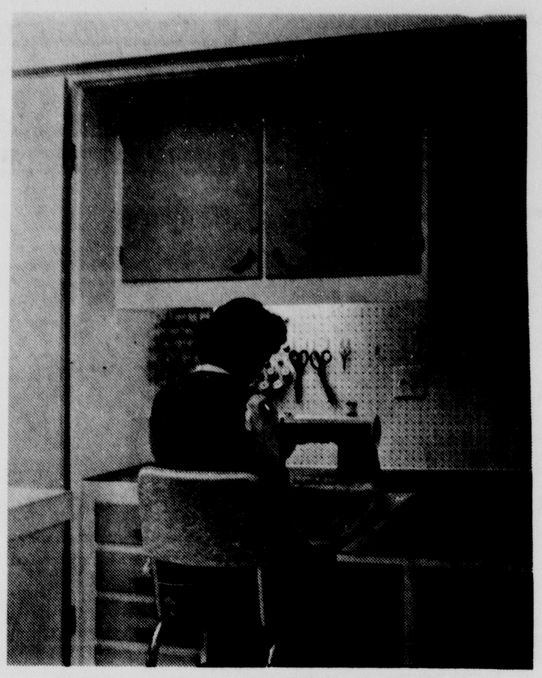
The House immediately began to debate that bill.

Offered by Rep. Jack J. Schramm, D-University City, it could set up a commission of 15 to study the problem of capital punishment. Membership would include five senators, five House members and five citizens appointed by the governor.

They could not go out of the state in pursuing their investigation.

Opponents called it a waste of state money.

The bill was advanced on a vote of 85-56, three more than the number needed for final passage later.



A HOME OFFICE-SEWING CENTER, as in this Missouri home, is an excellent use of space, says Miss Louise Woodruff, University of Missouri extension housing specialist at Columbia.

Sew With Cotton Winners

by Mary Ann Finch
Extension Area Home Economist

CHAFFEE: The elementary school was the setting Saturday for the annual Sew With Cotton judging and fashion show. The purpose of the contest is to encourage the "homemaker of tomorrow" to look her best in a quality garment she has sewn of quality cotton.

The contest is for all girls entered in FHA, 4-H, or Home Economics classes throughout the Scott county area. Each contestant is placed in a class according to age, sewing experience, and garment con struction. The garments must be made of 100% cotton.

There are five classes. The girls class for girls age 10, 11, and 12 includes skirt and blouse ensembles; the Junior Miss Class (for first year girls) includes ages 13, 14, and 15 girls. This group includes skirts and blouses or school dresses. The Junior Miss Class, ages 13, 14, and 15 and their entry is a better dress. The next group is Misses Class for ages 16 and up enrolled in high school. They may enter suits, formals, or better dresses. The fifth class is sportswear class ages 13 to 18 and they may enter beach wear, shorts, or slacks with shirt.

In the event Saturday were 50 young ladies representing many of the 4-H clubs, and schools in the county. There were entries from all of the represented towns in this county.

The winners from Scott county were; GIRLS CLASS -- Kim Sailer, JeKaren Biler, and Marjesa Crader. JUNIOR MISS (first year) -- Prissy Nunnelee, Nancy Johnson, and Carolyn Ashmore. JUNIOR MISS -- Jana Stroup, Bernice Landewee, and Vicki Gately. MISSES CLASS -- Mary Ellen Seibert (better dress) Saundra Gosche (suit), and Cindy Slusher (formal). SPORTSWEAR-- Karen Sue Harris, Connie Heisserer, and Mary Stabel.

Three winners are selected from each class to compete in the district judging to be held at the Poplar Bluff Junior High School Saturday, April 22.

County Chairman for the event this year were Miss Carolyn Anderson, Chaffee High School home economics instructor, and Miss Mary Ann Finch, Extension Area Home Economist. Chairman of the fashion show held Saturday was Mrs. Edna Frances. The narrater for the fashion show was Miss Janet Joyce of Oran High School.

Helping to stage the fashion show and instruct the girls on modeling were Miss Janet Kielhofner, Oran High School, and Miss Judy Stroup, Kelly High School.

Judges of the event were Mrs. Beulah Nichols, Extension Area Home Economist; Mrs. Norbert Halter, Charleston; Mrs. Norbert Rowling, Charleston; and Mrs. John Joe Stricker.

After the show was completed, the county winners were presented gift certificates from the Scott County Ginners. The Gins participating were E. P. Coleman Gins, Sikeston Gin, McMullian Gin, Vanduser Gin, and Farmers Gin.

FARM LABOR BULLETIN

STATE SUMMARY

Heavy rains over most of Missouri the past week brought farm work to a standstill.

St. Louis and several Southeast Missouri offices are recruiting workers for the Florida citrus harvest. Positive recruitment starts next week in 22 colleges in Missouri for the food processing industry.

An interesting sidelight on the report received from Kansas City which states that due to the scarcity of farm help, a paraplegic handicap was referred to a farm job and after a week's trial the employer was very pleased and amazed, as the man could handle a chain saw, a post hole digger plus driving a tractor and other chores. The man was, perhaps, a little slow but his work was outstanding.

St. Joseph, Marvyille, Lexington and Marshall are starting their recruitment for crews to do corn and milo rogueing and corn detasseling. About seventeen crews will be needed this summer.

Present conditions indicate that the strawberry harvest in the Monett, Kennett and Sikeston areas will be underway about May 1 with the Northwest Missouri strawberry harvest ten days to two weeks later.

Farm hand graduation at Marshall will be May 26 with a new class starting May 29.

130 openings for year - round farm hands and 68 seasonal agriculture openings were reported this week, with 34 year-round and 52 seasonal placements made the past week.

SOUTHEAST

Sikeston: 202 South Kingshighway - Telephone: Granite 1-2731. Land preparation practically completed. More moisture is needed for cotton planting and some fields planted in corn will require a rain before coming to a stand. We are continuing to recruit labor for strawberry picking for local and out-of-area growers, citrus pickers for Florida and in-plant workers for asparagus for Illinois. Farm hand openings are mostly for good equipment operators, wages $50 and up, with housing furnished.

Farm Labor Information Station & Rest Camp, Route #2, Sikeston. The Camp served 96 migrants the past week, 16 were going to Indiana, 48 to Michigan and 32 to Ohio.

Caruthersville: 112 West Fifth Street - Telephone: Edison 3-2416. Very little farm activities this week as rain the first of the week and again last night kept the fields to wet to work. A few farmers have planted some cotton. Cotton planting will get into full swing as soon as the fields become dry enough to work. No demand for farm workers at this time.

Labor Mobility Office, Poplar Bluff. We have not received our listing of the Mobility applicants available for relocation from the Mobility FPR's, therefore, we cannot submit the listing of available applicants.

West Plains: 111 Walnut Street - Telephone: 256-3158. Area received welcome rain Thursday. Local orders still remain slow. Have made two referrals of farm hands to Oskaloosa, Iowa, area. Available applicants on file at present have limited background and may need MDTA training to qualify for good farm jobs.

Cape Girardeau: 231 North Main Street-Telephone: Edgewater 5-6666. Demand for seasonal farm workers has been light. A shortage of qualified farm hands for year-round farm work still exists. Need four farm families for immediate employment. Wages $45 to $50 per week, housing furnished at no cost to worker.

Poplar Bluff: 211 Pine Street-Telephone: Sunset 5-0606. Rain has fallen over this five county area, which was badly needed. Farmers will be able to return to the fields in about two days. Some corn has been planted to date. Farm orders are coming in very slow this spring. Most farmers in this area are hiring older men for tractor driving and farm work. No labor available for referral to other areas at the present time.

Kennett: 405 St. Francis Street - Telephone: Tuxedo 8-3184. The peach crop in the Campbell area looks real good, the growers report no damage from the recent freezing weather. Several farmers in the south end of the County have planted early cotton of which some cotton is breaking through the ground. Approximately two inches of much needed general rain has fallen this week. With weather somewhat cooler than normal, work in fields has been very limited, yet no damage reported to crops. The strawberries are coming on fast and look very good. Some field spraying of wheat is going on, and the wheat crop to this date is better than has been in several years if not the best. The labor supply is meeting the demand at this time.

Wheat, Barley Are Improving

By Leo A. Duclos

PORTAGEVILLE - In the early part of April aphids began to show up in wheat and barley in Northeast Missouri counties. Flernoy Jones and Dr. Armon Keaster, entomologists with the University of Missouri Delta center, inspected a large number of fields and found several fields with aphid populations large enough that spraying was recommended.

Since the yellow drarf virus of small grains is transmitted by aphids, there was much concern for this disease. Dr. Einar Palm, extension plant pathologist, University of Missouri, Columbia, inspected research plots of Dr. Leo Duclos here at the Delta Center April 4 and noted that much of the barley show symtoms of yellow dwarf. The yellow dwarf expression in barley is bright, yellow leaves, heavy tillering and dwarfing of plants. The expression in wheat is little to no yellowing of leaves, no increased tillering and short heads.

Most of the barley grown in this area is grown under an agreement with Anheuser-Busch. Dr. Paul Hoskins, agronomist with Anheuser-Busch at St. Louis, Dr. Duclos, research geneticist, Delta Center at Portageville, and Dave McCrate, owner of the grain elevator which stored and shipped barley for Anheuser-Busch in the Portageville area made an inspection on April 7 of all the Carstens barley being grown under the agreement. Most of the fields were suffering as a result of aphids, yellow dwarf virus and drought stresses. It was questionable as to whether the crop should be saved or plowed under and land prepared for other crops. However, another inspection of all fields was made Thursday after the rains during the previous weekend and considerable improvement was seen. All fields that were sprayed showed signs of excellent control of aphid and considerably increased plant growth. All the barley will be saved with the possible exception of one or two fields.

Powdery mildew is taking its toll in wheat this year. Several spots along the ends of the field where seeding and fertilizer rates were above normal and early succulent growth occurred, show extreme symptoms of this disease. The wheat in these infected areas will either die or yield will be considerably reduced. Presently, there is no economic means of control recommended for this disease in small grains.

The disease and insect problems this year have been attributed to the mild winter and early spring. Barley and wheat are also expected to mature approximately two weeks early this year which should allow higher yields than in previous years from a full season, soybean crop following small grain.

Farmers should give considerable attention to the barley and wheat during the next few weeks since early occurrance and heavy infestation of armyworm are expected due to the mild winter. Positive identification of the armyworm should be made before spraying since the larvae of many beneficial insects resemble the armyworm.

Weatherman Favors Setting Speed Limits For Road Conditions

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) Traffic safety experts do no pay sufficient attention to need for speed reductions whe pavement is wet or icy, weather bureau spokesma says.

R. W. Harms, chief of th Milwaukee Weather Bureau told a 12-state safety confer ence Thursday that speeds o expressways and interstat highways should be held to 2 miles an hour when pavemen is ice-glazed.

Snow, he said, should mean speed limit of 35 m.p.h., an rain a limit of 50 m.p.h.

"Not enough attention is pai to weather in causing acci dents," he said, and laws re quring lowered speed are no strict enough.

High-school girl to teen-age friend: "I wrote to 16 colleges and this one had the best rating - 1,479 boys and 215 girls."

Today In U. S. History

by THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, April 22, the 112th day of 1967. There are 253 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1864, the motto "In God We Trust," was authorized for use on coins of the United States government.

On this date:

In 1870, Russian revolutionist Nikolai Lenin was born.

In 1889, Oklahoma was opened for settlement by a presidential proclamation.

In 1943, America warplanes attacked Rangoon and Mandalay.

In 1945, Soviet Marshal Stalin hailed a Russian treaty with Poland as one of great international importance.

In 1946, Mussolini's body was stolen from its unmarked grave.

Ten years ago -- Dr. Bentley Glass of Johns Hopkins University told the 94th annual meeting of the National Assembly of Science in Washington that radioactive fallout from atomic tests carried no more genetic hazard than did the luminous dials of wristwatches.

Five years ago - A Colombian airliner crashed and exploded in the mountains of Colombia, killing all 42 persons aboard.

One year ago -- A chartered airliner crashed at Ardmore, Okla., killing 82 persons.

buildings and garages in a six-block area of Oak Lawn were leveled or left with only fragments of walls standing. A witness said it looked like a war zone.

Dozens of trees were uprooted and twisted into grotesque forms. Autos had been crushed by the trees. The sound of power saws and axes could be heard in the darkened streets into the early morning hours as 1,500 workmen attempted to clear the area of debris before dawn.

When the twister struck in Belvidere many students still were in the school. Teachers and pupils rushed into the library and cafeteria.

Bill Coleman, 17, a junior at the school, said he helped take 200 other students to the cafeteria.

"We were unaware of any damage while we were in there," he said. "Then we got out and looked and there was a bus halfway through the wall."

As the tornado neared the high school, other terrified students huddled against the library walls. The force of the wind smashed the library's windows, injuring dozens, police said.

Before touching down at the school, the twister hit a new Chrysler plant, the Highland Hospital and five subdivisions.

The Highland Hospital was evacuated after it sustained extensive damage, a hospital spokesman said. One patient was reported injured.

A twister ripped through a Belvidere supermarket. Police said only the roof and its supporting beams were left standing.

Authorities at Belvidere and Oak Lawn worked through the night, sifting debris for bodies and survivors. Dozens searched the ruins of 200 structures in Oak Lawn for survivors believed trapped in the basements covered with debris.

"We have all kinds of areas to the west of here where we haven't even broken ground yet," Dumke said in Oak Lawn.

Elsewhere in Illinois, there were scattered reports of damage from tornadoes, high winds and thunderstorms in Lake Zurich, Waukegan, Libertyville, Barrington, Orion, Moline, Rock Island, Harvard and scores of other communities.

Tornadoes also touched down in Missouri, Indiana and California and were sighted over Wisconsin where none was reported to have reached the ground. One house was damaged at Madera, Calif., about 25 miles northwest of Fresno.

The Chicago Weather Bureau said the twisters came out of a squall line which at 2:45 p.m. Friday extended from Madison, Wis., to southeast of Kansas City.

The bureau said the first twister was reported 32 miles southeast of St. Joseph, Mo., at 12:08 p.m. and that several others hit areas northeast of Kansas City in the next 1½ hours.

A twister hit 20 miles south and southeast of Rockford, Ill., at 3:40, another struck Belvidere at 3:45 p.m. and the tornado in suburban Oak Lawn touched down shortly before 5:15 p.m. The same squall line caused a twister in Indiana and another was sighted 15 miles west of Lansing, Mich., at 8:40 p.m.

Numerous tornadoes were spotted in Michigan. Fifty homes were destroyed and damage was estimated at $1 million in the Grand Rapids suburbs of Grandville and Wyoming. A woman was killed when a tree fell on her car.

band, he is ordered back.

If he goes ahead he runs the risk of being shot. Sheriff Joseph Woods of Cook County declared something like a state of martial law on 95th Street, where looters plagued tornado-shattered stores.

Woods issued orders to shoot looters on sight. A pedestrian walks down 95th Street with arms stretched out to show he is not concealing anything.

The closer he gets to what once was a shopping center, the more times he is stopped. Eventually he is stopped every 50 feet.

The remains of a Fairway supermarket and what was a fancy restaurant-The Sherwood-stand at the corner.

All that is left are a few pieces of wall. It smells like dead fish and it looks like a bomb has fallen.

Hundreds of firemen help earth-moving equipment shovel away the debris.

They are looking for bodies.

"There are people in there and we haven't found them," said Oak Lawn Village President Fred Dumke.

Work in the eerie glare provided by banks of floodlights powered by emergency generators. The harsh light outlines the shadows of the few trees left standing.

Dumke has set a deadline of 72 hours to clear the debris which the disaster scattered over this pleasant suburb.

"The worst damage is at the shopping center in terms of dollars and cents," Dumke said. "In terms of lives it was the trailer park."

The trailer park resembled a huge, awkward stack of lumber. It was leveled. Many died in the rubble. Dumke could not say how many.

hour later but spokesmen said the pictures were not clear enough to show whether the trench had been deepened.

At this point, the moon was beyond the horizon of the tracking station controlling the spacecraft and the operation was suspended.

A television camera, mounted just above the scoop's extendable arm, relayed a series of photographs of the history-making operation to its controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Surveyor 3 first dropped the scoop into the soil between two of its legs, creating a rectangular hole an inch to an inch and a half deep.

After a brief delay to let the electronics of Surveyor 3's over-heating camera cool off, the shovel was moved to the right and lowered again with its scoop opened.

The trench that resulted when the scoop was pulled back appeared sharply defined in photographs. This indicated the lunar soil was strongly cohesive, something like wet sand.

It was the first time pictures were relayed to earth of a scratch on the moon's surface put there by a man-made device.

A spokesman said the texture and grain of the soil around the spacecraft appeared about as expected — not too soft for a man to walk on nor so hard it would damage a landing vehicle.

Some geologists have theorized that the extreme heat and pressure during the moon's formation may have created diamonds and other precious stones in great quantity. These theories have never been confirmed.

Scientists had planned to hammer a series of holes into the soil before the trenching maneuver, but called this off as the television camera began to overheat in the 200-degree lunar daylight.

After making the first dent, scientists controlling the spacecraft across a quarter of a million miles moved immediately into the trenching operation.

Grow, They Are Built," reviewed the accomplishments over a five year span.

"It's not contractors, banks, chambers of commerce, etc., that caused our growth, but it was the banning of every person. Let me remind you that we did a silly thing two years ago, by reducing the city tax by 35 cents, as things were rolling along," he said.

Pence added, "We started with $9,600 for the plans, and in a few years added three and one-half million dollars in new building and additions, and with it came 50,000 new customers. On six occasions we increased the taxes and one each by a vote of 87 to 95 per cent. All this came about with a committee of 125 persons.

"Picture it yourself we had so many volunteers that on occasions there was a waiting list. We now have a tax structure in Flat River of $2.42 per $100, and over $4 million assessed valuation."

There has been no statement from the king since the coup. Diplomats in the Turkish capital of Ankara said that the coup may have been begun by a small group of military officers, with the king joining later. They described the coup as a "center-right" movement that apparently encountered no resistance anywhehere in Greece.

The new government announced Friday night a program of far - reaching goals that indicated it did not plan an early return to civilian rule.

Constantine Kollias, sworn in as premier by Greek Orthodox Primate Archbishop Chrysostomos, said in a broadcast to the nation that the parliamentary elections scheduled next month would have led to bloodshed and chaos. He said the army intervened "to save the country from destruction."

The premier and "arsonist" and professional anarchists would be "isolated" while the rest can go ahead united for a radical change leading to prosperity and progress, and get rid of rottenness that had prevailed."

MU Physics Hall Dedicated

COLUMBIA (AP) - The University of Missouri's new $2.5 million physics building was dedicated today.

Chancellor John W. Schwada described the large structure as "a major step forward in the University of Missouri's program of teaching and research in a technological age in which physics is a pivotal science."

The building was accepted on behalf of the board of curators by Robert Neill of St. Louis, the board's president.

In recognition of the services of the late Dr. Oscar M. Stewart, professor of physics at the university from 1901 to 1940, Dr. Elmer Ellis, university president emeritus, presented an oil portrait of Dr. Stewart.

In his will the professor left a sum of money which now amounts to more than $350,000 to the physics department for scholarships and other uses. He died in 1944.

Tornado Death Toll Reaches 50

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rescue squads pressed a methodical hunt for missing persons and new forces of national guardsmen went on an alert against possible looting today in the wake of vicious tornadoes Friday that left at least 50 dead and an estimated 1,500 injured in the Midwest.

Unofficial estimates of damage ranged beyond $50 million.

Three of the 48 tornadoes the Weather Bureau said struck parts of the Midwest late Friday and Friday night punched down into heavily populated sections of northern Illinois and western Michigan.

The twisters, perhaps the worst on record in northeastern Illinois, killed 27 persons in Oak Lawn, a Chicago suburb; 20 in Belvidere, Ill., a town of 13,000 about 65 miles northwest of Chicago; 1 in Chicago; 1 in Stone Park, another Chicago suburb, and 1 in Hillside County, Mich.

Oak Lawn's death toll was placed at 24 at daybreak, but more bodies were found in the rubble.

Thousands of persons joined in the mammoth job of hunting for bodies, clearing away debris, and salvaging furniture, bedding and clothing from wrecked homes.

The workers included National Guardsmen, Army Reserve units, Civil Defense workers, Civil Air Patrolmen, policemen, firemen, and state cleanup crews with bulldozers and power shovels.

Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner arrived at a state police command post set up in Belvidere, where Mayor Clair Hetland estimated that damage in that community alone would be around $15 million.

An additional 530 National Guardsmen were sent into the tornado battered area of Oak Lawn, Ill., to reinforce 250 guardsmen who patrolled the area against possible looting during the night.

Hardest hit as the tornadoes twisted through scores of Illinois communities was Oak Lawn. Among the victims there were a number of young skaters at a roller rink which was demolished.

A big supermarket in Oak Lawn, which had been jammed with Friday evening shoppers, was reduced to rubble. Authorities feared casualties there could raise the death toll.

Nine victims at Belvidere were students. The twister hit as students boarded school buses at Belvidere High School. Some victims, however, were elementary school students who had been picked up earlier by the buses.

Buses were sent sailing through the air like leaves. Others were bounced across the ground and flattened.

One bus was carried more than a mile from the school.

Sheriff Joseph I. Woods of Cook County ordered police to guard against looting in debris-strewn Oak Lawn.

"All looters...will be shot on sight," he said.

"I think it's a good ruling," said Fred Dumke, Oak Lawn village president. "Anyone who would loot at a time like this ..." His voice trailed off as he walked into a temporary morgue in a Veterans of Foreign Wars hall.

In the hall's meeting room, rows of bodies were lined up against the west wall.

People stood in clusters, talking and consoling each other. They walked by the bodies, lifted sheets and shook their heads. A few fainted.

Outside the hall and for blocks around it, all was confusion Friday night. Red, white and blue lights flashed from police cars, fire trucks and other emergency vehicles.

Bull horns blared from police cars: "Get off the streets."

Eight Missouri Counties Feel Tornadoes' Sting

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Tornadoes smashed homes and farm buildings in eight Northern Missouri counties Friday, injuring at least seven persons.

At the little town of Humphreys in Sullivan County a twister tossed a trailer 100 feet, destroyed four homes, damaged nine others and barely missed a grade school.

Some children in the school were cut by flying glass as teachers made them lie on the floor.

Mrs. R.G. Wilson and her son, Russell, 4, were cut and bruised in the trailer. Near Humphreys four men were hurt in a shed that was demolished. Otto Helms, 53; Donald Hudson, 51; Charles Crowdis, 36, and James Lloyd, 50, were taken to the hospital at Milan.

Also in Sullivan County, Mrs. Nannie Ida Markham, 94-year-old invalid, suffered shock as part of her home was wrecked. She was taken to the Bethany hospital.

One of the most destructive twisters roared across northern Carroll County, lashing six farms in a line. Sheriff Paul Johnson said buildings and livestock were wiped out on the farms of Afton Rea and Rual Heath. Losses were heavy on the farms of Glenn Shields, Shorty Pool, R. W. Johnson said Ernest Dodson, the sheriff said.

Other counties hit included Caldwell, Grundy, Macon, Knox, Linn and Clinton.

Storm Gives Suburb War Zone Look

By FRANK S. JOSEPH

OAK LAWN, Ill. AP — Walking toward the corner of 95th Street and Southwest Highway in Oak Lawn is like walking into a war zone.

The intersection is the site of the worst destruction caused by a tornado which ripped apart this suburb of southwest Chicago Friday night, killing 24 persons.

Guards at every intersection swing flares, allowing some traffic through and turning away the curious. They stop every pedestrian.

"Who are you? What's your business?" they ask. If the pedestrian does not have a press card or a Red Cross arm

Surveyor Digs 2 Moon Trenches

PASADENA, Calif. AP -- Surveyor 3 dug a trench about three feet long and at least six inches deep in the surface of the moon today but uncovered nothing spectacular.

The trench, the second scooped out by a two-by-five-inch shovel in less than three hours, turned up a considerable amount of lumpy material much like that on the undisturbed surface.

Pictures of the operation, televised to controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory showed no surprises and nothing to indicate the moon's surface might be unsafe for manned landings.

Shortly after midnight, the spidery device did its first digging -- a foot-long trench in three jerky motions lasting two seconds each.

Bronze Star To Catron Boy

Sp4 Richard R. Lucy, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lucy, Catron, was awarded the Army Bronze Star for meritorious service in Vietnam.

He is a graduate of the class of '65 of Lilbourn high school, and worked as a clerk with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D.C., before he was drafted.

Sp 4 Lucy is with the First Military Intelligence detachment of the 1st Infantry Division in Vietnam. He began his tour of duty there Sept. 9, 1966.

The citation by direction of the President for the Bronze Star stated that Lucy distinguished himself by outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam during the period from Dec. 1, 1966, to Feb. 25, 1967.

Monarch's Role in Greek Army Uprising Uncertain

ROME AP - Army leaders controlling the Greek government reopened the nation's frontiers today and lifted a curfew after a night of sporadic shooting in Athens. But an Athens dispatch said it was still not clear whether the army had the backing of King Constantine, the navy or the air force.

Diplomatic reports in London and Copenhagen, Denmark, said the king was at Tatoi Palace outside Athens at the time of the predawn coup Frday. This raised a possibility he may have been caught by surprise. A Turkish dispatch said even top army officers also may have been surprised by a coup launched by a handful of officers, joined later by others.

A pooled dispatch by AP correspondent Philip Dopoulos from Athens reported the night was filled with sporadic shooting in and around the Greek capital. The dispatch said there were unconfirmed reports that one person was killed and 10 wounded.

The diplomatic reports reaching London and Copenhagen said the army leaders who pulled off the coup in the king's name may have forced him to sign the royal proclamation putting the military in charge.

Diplomats in Turkey said their reports from Greece indicated the coup may have surprised not only the king but most of the army's top officers as well.

Martial law still was in force throughout Greece.

The coup leaders relaxed restrictions on the population and appealed for calm and order. Workers were told to return to their jobs.

The first of several foreign airliners, stranded in Athens when the army seized power Friday, reached Rome with 97 passengers.

A Danish charter airline said two of its planes landed in Athens and a British airline said it was resuming regular service to the Greek capital.

Athens radio said movie houses and other places of entertainment were expected to reopen today.

Telephone communications within the capital were restored Friday night and some of the politicians arrested during the early hours of the coup were reported released.

Tanks and battle-ready troops kept the country under close watch. Civil rights remained suspended. No disturbances were reported. With communications interrupted and news media censored, most information about the coup was coming from Athens radio or various sources outside Greece.

The Athens correspondent of the Istanbul newspaper Hurriyet said a clandestine radio station in the Greek capital was

Claud Smith Addresses Rotarians

ROTARY LEADERS AT the Friday luncheon at the country club are past president George Dye, program chairman, at left, and the speaker, Dave H. Pence, Flat River city manager.

THE SONG LEADERS at six sessions of the Rotary conference added zest to the almost 500 Rotarians in attendance. Stone Manes, Jackson, leads the singing at the senior high cafetorium last night. His accompanist is J. R. Henderson, also of Jackson.

By LEO SCHADE

Nearing the climax of the three-day district Rotary conference here last night, 350 Rotary and Rotary Anns were on hand at the senior high school cafetorium to hear an address by Claud D. Smith, Junction City, Colo., personal representative of the International Rotary president, Richard L. Evans.

Smith, speaking on "Rotary Anns and Rotary," said, "I represent the greatest Mormon in the world, a man who has led and written the longest run religious and singing program on the radio. I bring to you as an active Rotary Ann, my wife, Frances."

Mrs. Smith took the speaker's stand and explained how the name "Ann" became symbolic to Rotary.

"It was on a train ride to a Rotary convention at San Francisco many years ago when two women met, and each was named Ann, after which the men referred to their wives as Anns," Mrs. Smith noted.

"The virtues and characteristics of Rotary Anns are many," Smith said. "They have the ability to make friends, they are a loyal opposition, have a mind of their own and make their married life a happy one. A Rotarian actually is an educated man. He must be a leader in his community, is hard working and ambitious. Our wide travels have made it possible to make many friends."

Fourteen past district governors were introduced by Wyman Dillman, Caruthersville, master of ceremonies. Introduced were:

Gov. Lee G. Cochran and his wife, Jackson, whose term expires July 1; Mr. and Mrs. George Allers, Bonne Terre; Mr. and Mrs. Walker Ames, DeSoto; Mr. and Mrs. John Blue and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Oliver, all of Cape Girardeau; Mr. and Mrs. L. Wyman Dillman, Caruthersville; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Duley, Poplar Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eads, West Plains; Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Franz and Mr. and Mrs. J. Sam Holt, Thayer - Mammoth Springs; Mr. and Mrs. K. Quinn Lewis, Poplar Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Sisson; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vogt, Ellington and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Williams.

Two Rotarians, Stone Manes and J. R. Henderson, both of Jackson, led the group singing. Dan Cotner, Cape Girardeau, furnished organ music during the meal.

Featured in the Friday afternoon session were two foreign Rotary Foundation Fellowship students studying in Missouri colleges. They were Hun Koo Cho, Seoul, Korea, and P. C. (Poozhicalayil) Thomas, Secunderabad, India.

Cho, who is studying for a master's degree in business administration, said, "The name Rotary was not strange to me, as I attended some Christmas parties as a youth with family friends. I'll do my best to improve better relations between our two countries. I know that I can never give to Rotary what it has given to me."

He is sponsored by the Seoul district clubs, and is attending Washington University, St. Louis.

Thomas, 29, will receive a master's degree in journalism at University of Missouri, Columbia. His ambition is to own a small newspaper in his native India.

"We in India specialize in human beings, as we have 500 million of them. I am the son of a Christian minister and have four sisters. I chose to study in America because you have freedom of speech and expression," he explained.

"Our two countries have strange notions about one another, and I try to explain the difference. I have made many friends in different walks of life, and it has helped me to see my country from a different point of view. It must be remembered our government dates back but 20 years, and we have a long way to go.

"It is my hope that I can help mold public opinion through the published word. My only regret is that I do not have the cash means, but I do have the ambition," Thomas said.

J. Nean White, Rolla, discussed the objects of Rotary and its responsibilities.

The afternoon panel concluded with Wouter Bosch, professor of science, Rolla branch, University of Missouri. He explained the objectives of Rotary. He divided the more than 100 in attendance at the Hunter Memorial Presbyterian church into two groups. Each side of aisle was checked for answers by Jim Blyze and Harry Bahn, both of Cape Girardeau, scorekeepers. A list of 40 questions was given on Rotary history.

In the session Friday noon at the country club, with 100 Rotarians in attendance, Dave Pence, city manager of Flat River, was the principal speaker.

He was introduced by George Dye, Morley, a past president, who reviewed the Christmas gift exchange with dozens of clubs all over the world.

Pence's theme, "Cities Don't

Hospital Construction Progress Is Satisfactory

Construction progress on the new 90-bed wing to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, now 30 per cent completed, was found to be very satisfactory by a group of state inspectors last week, Harold Jones, administator said.

The steel and reinforced concrete for the basement and three floors has been poured. Plumbing and electrical work is proceeding as planned and the masonry contractor has begun to construct the red brick walls. Completion of the wing is scheduled for January, 1968.

The qualify of the construction program was complimented by inspectors of the department of Hospital Construction and Liscensure of the State Division of Health who examined the building April 13, Jones said.

The engineering and structural specifications were found to be well above the state's standard requirements for hospital construction, Jones said.

An engineer and an auditor conducted the building inspection. Periodic inspections will be conducted until the wing is completed.

Monthly payments for construction will now average about $125,000 until it is completed, Jones said. About $500,000 has been spent for construction to date. Cost of the project is estimated to run $3,065,000.

Money pledged and collected in the building fund drive now stands at $676,000. Still needed is $474,000, Jones said. Hill-Burton funds totaled $915,000 and one million dollars was contributed for the project by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Coleman.

Inspectors from the Division of Health and Liscensure Department inspected disaster planning and fire evacuation plans and medical records at the hospital Thursday. The divisions makes four inspections annually covering areas of safety, medical records, dietary facilities and nursing.

Representative of the Joint Commission on Accredation of Hospitals inspected the hospital from a physical standpoint and evaluated the medical practice in conjunction with hospital facilities Friday.

Eight Treated For Injuries

Eight persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital Friday:

Fellowships Explained

Dr. E. Lawrence Bahn, president of the Cape Girardeau Rotary Club, conducted a panel discussion on Rotary Fellowship program following a luncheon meeting Friday at the El Capri.

The purpose of the fellowships -- to advance international understanding among people throughout the world -- was stated by Nolan Stinson, Clayton, past governor of district 605.

The fellowship offers one year of advanced study in another country. Scholastic standing and personality are evaluated in choosing Rotary fellows, he explained.

Eligibility requirements were discussed by Cuba Clubb, Marble Hill - Lutesville. Applicants must have a bachelor's degree and be single. The fellowships are open to men and women between 22 and 28 years old. Character traits and personality weigh heavily in the selection of fellows, he said.

Stone Manes, Jackson, explained that selection of the candidates by local clubs should be done only after a personal interview is conducted. Each club may select two candidates for the fellowships.

Wouter Bosch, Rolla, urged club members to publicize the fellowship program and put a committee to the task of selecting candidates from their area.

Rotary's avenues of club, vocational, community and international service were discussed at noon yesterday in a luncheon session at the Rustic Rock Inn.

The Rev. George Poe, Poplar Bluff, First Methodist pastor, speaking on "Do We Dare to Share?" said that there "is no such thing as a self-made man. "All of us owe a debt to the past," he said. "All of us are inheritors and indebted to others."

To discharge this obligation, he said, Rotarians should "preserve the best of the past, share the burdens of others and contribute something of value to generations to come."

Open Dormitory Trial Set at MU

COLUMBIA (AP) - The University of Missouri housing office has approved a trial program of allowing open house in men's and women's dormitories.

Dr. Harold Gondra, housing director, said each dormitory may have a three-hour open house period on two week-end days for the remainder of this term. The periods may not last past 5 p.m. Each living unit must approve the holding of an open house by a majority of vote.

There have been individual open houses in the past, Condra said, but this is the first time authorization has been given for the entire dormitory system.

There are 2,950 men and 2,750 women living in university residence halls. Only freshmen under 21 years of age are required to live in the halls or other approved housing. The enrollment is 18,500.

Two Injuries In Accident

Sharon L. Kirby, 17, 204 North Prairie, and Linda Werneck, 17, 605 Taylor, suffered minor injuries in an automobile accident at 9:30 p.m. Friday on East Malone.

They were treated and released at Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Police reported that Miss Kirby was driving east on East Malone and skidded into a whiteway light pole in front of a service station near Ira & Louise's Drive In. Miss Werneck was a passenger in the Kirby car.

Miss Kirby told police a passing car forced her to strike the pole. She is charged with careless and imprudent driving.

In other police activity, Elmer N. Gray, St. Louis, was charged Friday with vagrancy. He was arrested on Front street.

Tom Gross, Sikeston, was arrested Friday on Malone and charged with public intoxication, police reported.

Paul Glancy, Sikeston, was charged by police Friday with vagrancy. He was arrested on New Madrid street.

Svetlana Seeks Self-Expression in U.S.

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — An Odyssey across three continents has brought Svetlana Stalin, daughter of the late Soviet dictator, to the United States seeking a new life with freedom of self-expression.

In a simply worded statement she said disenchantment with the communism taught her since her childhood and discovery of a deep religious faith had led to the decision to defect from her Soviet homeland.

"I found it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart," she said on her arrival Friday. "I came to that conclusion myself, without anybody's help or preaching.

"But that was a great change because since that moment the main dogmas of communism lost their significance for me."

"I have come here in order to seek the self-expression that has been denied me for so long in Russia," the red-haired 42-year-old widow explained.

She said she had struggled against the break because it meant leaving her two children in Moscow and not seeing them again for a long time. "but all was in vain. I felt it was impossible to go back."

So, on the evening of March 6 she went to the American Embassy in New Delhi requesting asylum in this country and began the Odyssey that took her from India to Italy, then Switzerland and finally the United States.

Miss Stalin declined to say whether she had been granted permanent asylum here. In Washington the State Department said, "She is free to remain here as long as she wishes and is free to leave whenever she wishes."

Prior to her arrival the department notified the Soviet Embassy she was on her way. There has been concern in the capital over the possible effect on U.S.-Soviet relations.

Already here when she arrived from Zurich, Switzerland was the manuscript of an 80,000-word autobiography written in 1963 which has been turned over to Harper & Row for publication Oct. 16.

Svetlana was the last of the passengers to disembark from a jetliner at Kennedy Airport. She fairly bounced down the steps.

In a written statement she said she left Moscow last December to take the ashes of Brijesh Singh, the man described by the Soviet government as her husband, to India.

"I fully expected to return to Russia within one month's time," she wrote. "However, during my stay in India I decided that I could not return to Moscow.

"It was my own decision, based on my own feelings and experiences, without anyone's advice or help or instruction.

"In recent years, we in Russia have begun to think, to discuss, to argue, and we are not so much automatically devoted any more to the ideas which we were taught."

Tornado Death Toll Reaches 50

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rescue squads pressed a methodical hunt for missing persons and new forces of national guardsmen went on an alert against possible looting today in the wake of vicious tornadoes Friday that left at least 50 dead and an estimated 1,500 injured in the Midwest.

Unofficial estimates of damage ranged beyond $50 million.

Three of the 48 tornadoes the Weather Bureau said struck parts of the Midwest late Friday and Friday night punched down into heavily populated sections of northern Illinois and western Michigan.

The twisters, perhaps the worst on record in northeastern Illinois, killed 27 persons in Oak Lawn, a Chicago suburb; 20 in Belvidere, Ill., a town of 13,000 about 65 miles northwest of Chicago; 1 in Chicago; 1 in Stone Park, another Chicago suburb, and 1 in Hillside County, Mich.

Oak Lawn's death toll was placed at 24 at daybreak, but more bodies were found in the rubble.

Thousands of persons joined in the mammoth job of hunting for bodies, clearing away debris, and salvaging furniture, bedding and clothing from wrecked homes.

The workers included National Guardsmen, Army Reserve units, Civil Defense workers, Civil Air Patrolmen, policemen, firemen, and state cleanup crews with bulldozers and power shovels.

Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner arrived at a state police command post set up in Belvidere, where Mayor Clair Hetland estimated that damage in that community alone would be around $15 million.

An additional 530 National Guardsmen were sent into the tornado battered area of Oak Lawn, Ill., to reinforce 250 guardsmen who patrolled the area against possible looting during the night.

Hardest hit as the tornadoes twisted through scores of Illinois communities was Oak Lawn. Among the victims there were a number of young skaters at a roller rink which was demolished.

A big supermarket in Oak Lawn, which had been jammed with Friday evening shoppers, was reduced to rubble. Authorities feared casualties there could raise the death toll.

Nine victims at Belvidere were students. The twister hit as students boarded school buses at Belvidere High School. Some victims, however, were elementary school students who had been picked up earlier by the buses.

Buses were sent sailing through the air like leaves. Others were bounced across the ground and flattened.

One bus was carried more than a mile from the school.

Sheriff Joseph I. Woods of Cook County ordered police to guard against looting in debris-strewn Oak Lawn.

"All looters...will be shot on sight," he said.

"I think it's a good ruling," said Fred Dumke, Oak Lawn village president. "Anyone who would loot at a time like this ..." His voice trailed off as he walked into a temporary morgue in a Veterans of Foreign Wars hall.

In the hall's meeting room, rows of bodies were lined up against the west wall.

People stood in clusters, talking and consoling each other. They walked by the bodies, lifted sheets and shook their heads. A few fainted.

Outside the hall and for blocks around it, all was confusion Friday night. Red, white and blue lights flashed from police cars, fire trucks and other emergency vehicles.

Bull horns blared from police cars: "Get off the streets."

Monarch's Role in Greek Army Uprising Uncertain

ROME AP - Army leaders controlling the Greek government reopened the nation's frontiers today and lifted a curfew after a night of sporadic shooting in Athens. But an Athens dispatch said it was still not clear whether the army had the backing of King Constantine, the navy or the air force.

Diplomatic reports in London and Copenhagen, Denmark, said the king was at Tatoi Palace outside Athens at the time of the predawn coup Frday. This raised a possibility he may have been caught by surprise. A Turkish dispatch said even top army officers also may have been surprised by a coup launched by a handful of officers, joined later by others.

A pooled dispatch by AP correspondent Philip Dopoulos from Athens reported the night was filled with sporadic shooting in and around the Greek capital. The dispatch said there were unconfirmed reports that one person was killed and 10 wounded.

The diplomatic reports reaching London and Copenhagen said the army leaders who pulled off the coup in the king's name may have forced him to sign the royal proclamation putting the military in charge.

Diplomats in Turkey said their reports from Greece indicated the coup may have surprised not only the king but most of the army's top officers as well.

Martial law still was in force throughout Greece.

The coup leaders relaxed restrictions on the population and appealed for calm and order. Workers were told to return to their jobs.

The first of several foreign airliners, stranded in Athens when the army seized power Friday, reached Rome with 97 passengers.

A Danish charter airline said two of its planes landed in Athens and a British airline said it was resuming regular service to the Greek capital.

Athens radio said movie houses and other places of entertainment were expected to reopen today.

Telephone communications within the capital were restored Friday night and some of the politicians arrested during the early hours of the coup were reported released.

Tanks and battle-ready troops kept the country under close watch. Civil rights remained suspended. No disturbances were reported. With communications interrupted and news media censored, most information about the coup was coming from Athens radio or various sources outside Greece.

The Athens correspondent of the Istanbul newspaper Hurriyet said a clandestine radio station in the Greek capital was

Claud Smith Addresses Rotarians

ROTARY LEADERS AT the Friday luncheon at the country club are past president George Dye, program chairman, at left, and the speaker, Dave H. Pence, Flat River city manager.

THE SONG LEADERS at six sessions of the Rotary conference added zest to the almost 500 Rotarians in attendance. Stone Manes, Jackson, leads the singing at the senior high cafetorium last night. His accompanist is J. R. Henderson, also of Jackson.

By LEO SCHADE

Nearing the climax of the three-day district Rotary conference here last night, 350 Rotary and Rotary Anns were on hand at the senior high school cafetorium to hear an address by Claud D. Smith, Junction City, Colo., personal representative of the International Rotary president, Richard L. Evans.

Smith, speaking on "Rotary Anns and Rotary," said, "I represent the greatest Mormon in the world, a man who has led and written the longest run religious and singing program on the radio. I bring to you as an active Rotary Ann, my wife, Frances."

Mrs. Smith took the speaker's stand and explained how the name "Ann" became symbolic to Rotary.

"It was on a train ride to a Rotary convention at San Francisco many years ago when two women met, and each was named Ann, after which the men referred to their wives as Anns," Mrs. Smith noted.

"The virtues and characteristics of Rotary Anns are many," Smith said. "They have the ability to make friends, they are a loyal opposition, have a mind of their own and make their married life a happy one. A Rotarian actually is an educated man. He must be a leader in his community, is hard working and ambitious. Our wide travels have made it possible to make many friends."

Fourteen past district governors were introduced by Wyman Dillman, Caruthersville, master of ceremonies. Introduced were:

Gov. Lee G. Cochran and his wife, Jackson, whose term expires July 1; Mr. and Mrs. George Allers, Bonne Terre; Mr. and Mrs. Walker Ames, DeSoto; Mr. and Mrs. John Blue and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Oliver, all of Cape Girardeau; Mr. and Mrs. L. Wyman Dillman, Caruthersville; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Duley, Poplar Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eads, West Plains; Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Franz and Mr. and Mrs. J. Sam Holt, Thayer - Mammoth Springs; Mr. and Mrs. K. Quinn Lewis, Poplar Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Sisson; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vogt, Ellington and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Williams.

Two Rotarians, Stone Manes and J. R. Henderson, both of Jackson, led the group singing. Dan Cotner, Cape Girardeau, furnished organ music during the meal.

Featured in the Friday afternoon session were two foreign Rotary Foundation Fellowship students studying in Missouri colleges. They were Hun Koo Cho, Seoul, Korea, and P. C. (Poozhicalayil) Thomas, Secunderabad, India.

Cho, who is studying for a master's degree in business administration, said, "The name Rotary was not strange to me, as I attended some Christmas parties as a youth with family friends. I'll do my best to improve better relations between our two countries. I know that I can never give to Rotary what it has given to me."

He is sponsored by the Seoul district clubs, and is attending Washington University, St. Louis.

Thomas, 29, will receive a master's degree in journalism at University of Missouri, Columbia. His ambition is to own a small newspaper in his native India.

"We in India specialize in human beings, as we have 500 million of them. I am the son of a Christian minister and have four sisters. I chose to study in America because you have freedom of speech and expression," he explained.

"Our two countries have strange notions about one another, and I try to explain the difference. I have made many friends in different walks of life, and it has helped me to see my country from a different point of view. It must be remembered our government dates back but 20 years, and we have a long way to go.

"It is my hope that I can help mold public opinion through the published word. My only regret is that I do not have the cash means, but I do have the ambition," Thomas said.

J. Nean White, Rolla, discussed the objects of Rotary and its responsibilities.

The afternoon panel concluded with Wouter Bosch, professor of science, Rolla branch, University of Missouri. He explained the objectives of Rotary. He divided the more than 100 in attendance at the Hunter Memorial Presbyterian church into two groups. Each side of aisle was checked for answers by Jim Blyze and Harry Bahn, both of Cape Girardeau, scorekeepers. A list of 40 questions was given on Rotary history.

In the session Friday noon at the country club, with 100 Rotarians in attendance, Dave Pence, city manager of Flat River, was the principal speaker.

He was introduced by George Dye, Morley, a past president, who reviewed the Christmas gift exchange with dozens of clubs all over the world.

Hospital Construction Progress Is Satisfactory

Construction progress on the new 90-bed wing to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, now 30 per cent completed, was found to be very satisfactory by a group of state inspectors last week, Harold Jones, administator said.

The steel and reinforced concrete for the basement and three floors has been poured. Plumbing and electrical work is proceeding as planned and the masonry contractor has begun to construct the red brick walls. Completion of the wing is scheduled for January, 1968.

The qualify of the construction program was complimented by inspectors of the department of Hospital Construction and Liscensure of the State Division of Health who examined the building April 13, Jones said.

The engineering and structural specifications were found to be well above the state's standard requirements for hospital construction, Jones said.

An engineer and an auditor conducted the building inspection. Periodic inspections will be conducted until the wing is completed.

Monthly payments for construction will now average about $125,000 until it is completed, Jones said. About $500,000 has been spent for construction to date. Cost of the project is estimated to run $3,065,000.

Money pledged and collected in the building fund drive now stands at $676,000. Still needed is $474,000, Jones said. Hill-Burton funds totaled $915,000 and one million dollars was contributed for the project by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Coleman.

Inspectors from the Division of Health and Liscensure Department inspected disaster planning and fire evacuation plans and medical records at the hospital Thursday. The divisions makes four inspections annually covering areas of safety, medical records, dietary facilities and nursing.

Representative of the Joint Commission on Accredation of Hospitals inspected the hospital from a physical standpoint and evaluated the medical practice in conjunction with hospital facilities Friday.

Eight Treated For Injuries

Eight persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital Friday:

Fellowships Explained

Dr. E. Lawrence Bahn, president of the Cape Girardeau Rotary Club, conducted a panel discussion on Rotary Fellowship program following a luncheon meeting Friday at the El Capri.

The purpose of the fellowships -- to advance international understanding among people throughout the world -- was stated by Nolan Stinson, Clayton, past governor of district 605.

The fellowship offers one year of advanced study in another country. Scholastic standing and personality are evaluated in choosing Rotary fellows, he explained.

Eligibility requirements were discussed by Cuba Clubb, Marble Hill - Lutesville. Applicants must have a bachelor's degree and be single. The fellowships are open to men and women between 22 and 28 years old. Character traits and personality weigh heavily in the selection of fellows, he said.

Stone Manes, Jackson, explained that selection of the candidates by local clubs should be done only after a personal interview is conducted. Each club may select two candidates for the fellowships.

Wouter Bosch, Rolla, urged club members to publicize the fellowship program and put a committee to the task of selecting candidates from their area.

Rotary's avenues of club, vocational, community and international service were discussed at noon yesterday in a luncheon session at the Rustic Rock Inn.

The Rev. George Poe, Poplar Bluff, First Methodist pastor, speaking on "Do We Dare to Share?" said that there "is no such thing as a self-made man. "All of us owe a debt to the past," he said. "All of us are inheritors and indebted to others."

To discharge this obligation, he said, Rotarians should "preserve the best of the past, share the burdens of others and contribute something of value to generations to come."

Open Dormitory Trial Set at MU

COLUMBIA (AP) - The University of Missouri housing office has approved a trial program of allowing open house in men's and women's dormitories.

Dr. Harold Gondra, housing director, said each dormitory may have a three-hour open house period on two week-end days for the remainder of this term. The periods may not last past 5 p.m. Each living unit must approve the holding of an open house by a majority of vote.

There have been individual open houses in the past, Condra said, but this is the first time authorization has been given for the entire dormitory system.

There are 2,950 men and 2,750 women living in university residence halls. Only freshmen under 21 years of age are required to live in the halls or other approved housing. The enrollment is 18,500.

Two Injuries In Accident

Sharon L. Kirby, 17, 204 North Prairie, and Linda Werneck, 17, 605 Taylor, suffered minor injuries in an automobile accident at 9:30 p.m. Friday on East Malone.

They were treated and released at Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Police reported that Miss Kirby was driving east on East Malone and skidded into a whiteway light pole in front of a service station near Ira & Louise's Drive In. Miss Werneck was a passenger in the Kirby car.

Miss Kirby told police a passing car forced her to strike the pole. She is charged with careless and imprudent driving.

In other police activity, Elmer N. Gray, St. Louis, was charged Friday with vagrancy. He was arrested on Front street.

Tom Gross, Sikeston, was arrested Friday on Malone and charged with public intoxication, police reported.

Paul Glancy, Sikeston, was charged by police Friday with vagrancy. He was arrested on New Madrid street.

Svetlana Seeks Self-Expression in U.S.

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — An Odyssey across three continents has brought Svetlana Stalin, daughter of the late Soviet dictator, to the United States seeking a new life with freedom of self-expression.

In a simply worded statement she said disenchantment with the communism taught her since her childhood and discovery of a deep religious faith had led to the decision to defect from her Soviet homeland.

"I found it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart," she said on her arrival Friday. "I came to that conclusion myself, without anybody's help or preaching.

"But that was a great change because since that moment the main dogmas of communism lost their significance for me."

"I have come here in order to seek the self-expression that has been denied me for so long in Russia," the red-haired 42-year-old widow explained.

She said she had struggled against the break because it meant leaving her two children in Moscow and not seeing them again for a long time. "but all was in vain. I felt it was impossible to go back."

So, on the evening of March 6 she went to the American Embassy in New Delhi requesting asylum in this country and began the Odyssey that took her from India to Italy, then Switzerland and finally the United States.

Miss Stalin declined to say whether she had been granted permanent asylum here. In Washington the State Department said, "She is free to remain here as long as she wishes and is free to leave whenever she wishes."

Prior to her arrival the department notified the Soviet Embassy she was on her way. There has been concern in the capital over the possible effect on U.S.-Soviet relations.

Already here when she arrived from Zurich, Switzerland was the manuscript of an 80,000-word autobiography written in 1963 which has been turned over to Harper & Row for publication Oct. 16.

Svetlana was the last of the passengers to disembark from a jetliner at Kennedy Airport. She fairly bounced down the steps.

In a written statement she said she left Moscow last December to take the ashes of Brijesh Singh, the man described by the Soviet government as her husband, to India.

"I fully expected to return to Russia within one month's time," she wrote. "However, during my stay in India I decided that I could not return to Moscow.

"It was my own decision, based on my own feelings and experiences, without anyone's advice or help or instruction.

"In recent years, we in Russia have begun to think, to discuss, to argue, and we are not so much automatically devoted any more to the ideas which we were taught."

CHEMICAL PROGRESS WEEK

The days and weeks roll on - and just about each of them, it seems, provides the setting for some observance designed to attract the interest and curiosity of a broad public. One of the most noteworthy of these will be Chemical Progress Week, April 24 through 29.

It is literally true that chemistry, in its almost infinite aspects, touches the lives of everyone. Chemistry is responsible for the finding of myriad drugs and remedies which defeat illness and bring back health. It is the source of fertilizers and pesticides and other products which do much to make possible the amazing productivity of our farms. It takes wood by-products which once were a total waste and transforms them into thousands of wanted and useful products. Out of its test tubes come handsome and durable fabrics. It is the source of sports and outdoor gear and equipment far superior to anything known in the past. Everywhere - at home, at work, at play, or just driving the family car along the highways - the hands of the chemists enter, though they are not seen.

During Chemical Progress Week, we will all have a chance to learn a little more of the miracles for which chemistry is responsible. It is an opportunity none should miss.

THE PROBATE CAPER

"In every big transaction there is a magic moment during which a man has surrendered a treasure, and during which the man who is due to receive it has not yet done so. An alert lawyer will make that moment his own, possessing the treasure for a magic micro-second, taking a little of it, passing it on. If the man who is to receive the treasure is unused to wealth, has an inferiority complex and shapeless feelings of guilt, as most people do, the lawyer can often take as much as half the bundle, and still receive the recipient's blubbering thanks."

- Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., "God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater."

Instead of blubbering thanks, a probate lawyer today is more likely to get a cold stare from relatives of the deceased. This is in large measure due to the lonely crusade of one Norman F. Dacey, the non-lawyer author of "How To Avoid Probate." The book has been a best-seller for nearly a year (600,000 copies sold) and firmly establishes Dacey as the bete noir of the legal profession.

The New York County Lawyers Association, in fact, on April 10 asked the State Supreme Court to enjoin further sales of Dacey's book. It is contended the book constitutes the unauthorized practice of law. Even before "How To Avoid Probate" was published, the Connecticut Supreme Court enjoined Dacey from giving verbal advice on how persons could avoid having estates probated.

Dacey recently went before the Supreme Court of the United States to ask that the Connecticut court injunction be nullified. He further has charged that the Federal Trade Commission is investigating him in a manner "which is taking on the characteristics of a witch hunt." Dacey's basic advice is that property be placed in trust before the death of the owner to avoid having a will probated and paying heavy legal fees. But his real offense, in the eyes of many lawyers, was in putting dozens of detachable forms in his books that the reader can use to follow his advice - without consulting a lawyer. No magic moment there!

Jack Hogan, a Sikeston banker, says there are times when a monkey, with prehensile tail, has it all over man. "Just think how convenient that fifth hand would be at an open house, one of those stand-up affairs, when a fellow has to manage a noggin of nog, a few salted-toasted peanuts, a broken potato chip dripping with dip, a wedge of fruit cake, and a cherry-hued mint," he mused.

WHO BUYS MEN'S CLOTHES?

WHO BUYS HUBBY'S clothes?

Every men's clothing merchant knows how often wifey comes along; but few realized how much influence she really has in selecting a suit until a Sikeston reporter started asking questions.

"A guy would wear any old thing if it weren't for the missus," said one conservatively dressed male. "My wife keeps up on fashions for both of us," said another modernly dressed executive.

"We have similar taste," admitted one executive, "because I have learned to respect her judgment." Speaking of buying shorts another man said, "I wear 'em but she has to look at them," consequently he lets her make the selections.

A few of the men interviewed claimed they did their own choosing, but most of the bosses in their own firms admitted, "She shops for me and I love it."

Retailers writing advertising should remember the big influence the wife has in buying everything for the family. When her viewpoint is forgotten sales can be lost. Reading surveys made over the nation indicate that women read newspaper advertising thoroughly.

Konrad Adenauer is dead at 91.

There can't be much sorrow over the death of a man who lived so long and served his country so well. Instead there is reason for rejoicing for a long, useful life.

Adenauer as chancellor was a distinguished, far sighted leader, who brought Germany successfully through difficult times.

His friendship for and loyalty to the United States never faltered.

Chancellor for two decades he remained active in politics until the end, serving as a member of parliament.

His greatest feat was the leadership he gave to the development of Germany from the ruins of World War II. His country prospered.

He was a stalwart foe of Communism.

He worked for reconciliation of his country with France, a historic enemy.

He failed to achieve reunification of Germany.

A devout Catholic he believed that "Christianity is the answer to all ideologies" but was not narrow in his religious beliefs.

President Lyndon B. Johnson will attend the funeral.

He will be paying this grateful nation's respects to the greatest Germany of this century.

PUPILS INTRODUCED TO U.S. ECONOMY

Every so often we hear the complaint that while the economic system of the United States is the most successful in the world, the people who enjoy its benefits understand little of how it works. Americans are economic illiterates. Wealthy illiterates, but illiterates none the less.

A study made in 1963 revealed that among large school systems in the nation, fewer than one-fifth had a required course in economics. Many schools offered no economics at all. Only 22 states required economics courses for social studies teachers.

The reasoning behind the complaint is valid: In a society which is governed by individual choice made in the market place as well as in the voting booth, ignorance of economics is no less dangerous than ignorance of politics. But if the implication is that no one is doing anything about it, it couldn't be more wrong.

The study cited above was made by the Joint Council on Economic Education, an independent, nonprofit organization supported by business, labor, professions and other private segments of the economy.

Founded in 1949, the council works with affiliated but autonomous councils throughout the country to promote and improve economic education in schools at all grade levels, develop new teaching materials and upgrade teacher prepartion. It preaches no particular brand of economic theory or ideology but seeks to increase basic understanding of how our economy actualy works.

There are at present some 44 local councils in 30 states. One of the most active is the Ohio Council on Economic Education (OCEE), headquartered at Ohio University in Athens and chairmaned by the university's dynamic president, Vernon R. Alden.

During the past year, it sponsored 19 special school programs and sent out thousands of pieces of educational literature.

Guiding principle behind all this activity is the idea of an "economic education multiplier effect," explains Warmke.

Economic education begins with economists, school administrators and community leader, working with councils like the OCEE; proceeds down to teachers in local schools; from teachers to their students, and from the students to their families. The ultimate product is an informed citizenry.

At any rate, economic education is "in" in Ohio. A recent survey by the OCEE showed that six of every 10 public schools in the state offered a separate course in economics.

Nikita Khrushchev once said that he would bury us - that is, that his economic system would triumph over ours.

Not if we're smart, it won't. And if we become smart, no little credit will go the efforts of the Joint Council on Economic Education and its regional chapters.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- On his recent trip to Europe, Vice President Humphrey, being the no. 2 man in government, adopted the slogan of a well known car rental company. He tried harder.

His biggest test was his dramatic confrontation with "Le Grand Charles," the difficult and divisive Charles De Gaulle. It was the first top-level visit an American official has had with the French President in two years of strained relations.

Humphrey's aides tried to prepare him for the encounter by writing a formal little speech, which he was supposed to deliver in toasting De Gaulle.

"Fifty years ago," declared the proposed toast, "we came to the aid of France when she was threatened, and only a few years later we once more came to the aid of our friends... We are committed to you and to your freedom as we are committed to the freedom of our own people."

Humphrey read the draft once and crumpled it into the waste basket.

"This would be an insult," he snorted. "I want to talk about what France has done for America, not what America has done for France."

So at the banquet, the Vice President ad - libbed about visiting Yorktown and reading the names of French officers carved in the granite on our most historic monuments.

"How can I as an American ever forget the debt that we owe France for our independence!" he declared.

"What binds us is not the wars we have fought together nor the money we have exchanged," he continued, pointing out nonetheless that France gave the United States its first loan in 1777.

"What binds us," he went on, "is our common belief in liberty."

The French slogan, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity," stands together in history with the American slogan, "Liberty and the pursuit of happiness," he said.

He also called off the names of the French scholars, writers and scientists who have inspired America, and paid tribute to "Le Grand" leader who symbolizes "La Grande" nation.

"No disagreement between our countries today can possibly erase these immortal memories," declared Humphrey.

OTHER EUROPEAN TALKS

While the Vice President's visit clearly gave French-American relations a lift, it was not the most important of his talks. The most important were with the German and Italian cabinets, aimed at heading off a revival of the arms race, this time with nuclear weapons.

This is the first time in the twenty-year postwar period of very cordial relations between the United States and Italy that there has been a major disagreement between them, and the disagreement over the nonproliferation of nuclear weapons is considered especially serious because it could lead to a revival of the arms jockeying that finally led to World War II.

This is something the United States has been trying to prevent ever since we went into Western Europe with the Marshall plan and subsequently set up NATO and helped inspire the European Common Market.

The leaders of Italy remained cordial but adamant. Humphrey got the impression that they would be more difficult in the end than West Germany.

He found German leaders most concerned about the provisions in the treaty which would permit representatives from Communist countries to inspect their plants. Humphrey discussed safeguards to answer their worries which satisfied Foreign Minister Willy Brandt and seemed to make an impression on Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

The Vice President got off to a good start with Kiesinger by bringing greetings from Kiesinger's daughter, Mrs. Viola Wentzel, who is studying at Georgetown University in Washington. What really mellowed the Chancellor, however, were stories and pictures of his little granddaughter, Cecilia.

The Chancellor told how he had entered his bedroom to dress for the banquet and had found upon the dresser a "beautiful photograph" of his daughter and granddaughter posing with Humphrey.

"You have discovered my soft spot," said Kiesinger, turning to the Vice President.

FRENCH-GERMAN ALLIANCE

Humphrey responded by saying his country encouraged the new, friendly relations between Germany and France.

"But," he protested, "there is a limit." He noted that the Chancellor's daughter lived across the street in Washington from the French Embassy and that the Chancellor's little granddaughter plays on the grounds of the French Embassy.

"And her little German dog," added Humphrey in mock dismay, "plays with a French dog! Who knows what they are saying to one another?"

Humphrey, as previously reported, fell back on his long acquaintanceship with some of the social Democratic leaders of Italy and Germany whom he had known for many years. He is reasonably confident that they will influence their governments, in which they are part of coalitions, to bring about approval of the nonproliferation treaty in the end.

Note -- Italian newspapers misrepresented the beating up of the Italian who threw paint at Vice President Humphrey in front of the Rome opera house. The man was a tough Communist, who after throwing the paint started toward Humphrey. The secret service grabbed him and did manhandle him somewhat, though most of the manhandling was done by the Italian police.

Inside Labor

LABOR SEES ROCKY-REAGAN Break With Bob Kennedy Swings Powerful Union Chiefs to Eastern Republicans

New York: -- In some labor circles, whose intelligence sources are primary, there are those who will wager on a Rockefeller-Reagan ticket in 1968.

These labor men are hardly the contemplative type with mentally indexed references to Plato and Santayana. When they talk, they know. And they are in a position to know for they are now deep inside the Republican Party's eastern establishment ranging far beyond the Hudson.

And for two reasons. They have been wooed by Nelson Rockefeller and a few of his colleagues and they have split with Robert Kennedy and his eastern establishment. So to many of these truly powerful union chiefs there is no Democratic Party as of yore. They find that philosophically, emotionally, politically and socially they cannot communicate with "Bob" -- as the party leader today in the east -- tomorrow, perhaps, in the nation.

Not too long ago, for example, Bob Kennedy did offer his hand. He invited a dozen or so influential labor leaders to his United Nations Plaza apartment -- sort of a shirtsleeves what-the-hell, let's get to really know each other evening. The hours were only slightly less formal than a meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union resolutions committee -- except for one bottle baby.

If the stilted evening was to be off the record the labor chiefs did not so understand. Slowly, they reported back to their new Republican allies in high places during gayer hours. And these labor leaders are the men who truly can pour out the money. and manpower for a candidate.

It all is not, perhaps, Bob Kennedy's fault. Some years ago, Victor Borella -- now the Special Advisor to the governor on Labor Affairs in this state (and then executive vice-president of Rockefeller Center) -- analyzed the institution called the political club. In both parties he found them threadbare and often as rotting as the floorboards in the ancient two-story taxpayer buildings which housed them.

Obviously, there was a force to fill the vacuum -- the labor movement. And he saw no reason why he couldn't turn it towards the Republicans. So Borella, an old college mate of Rockefeller's, began bringing both forces together.

It worked. The union leader said all they wanted was to go directly to the governor with their problems. Now they have his private number. He has theirs. He has found them far more practical strategists than some of his old-line party people.

But the Rockefeller-labor alliance and the prismatic uneasiness in "Bobby's" presence -- especially among the construction union officials -- are only parts of this tangoing of labor and the Eastern Republicans.

Even the Johnsonian laborites are interested in the dialogue. For some time now Republican Mayor John Lindsay -- whose inner circle see him running for governor in 1970 and on the national GOP ticket in '72 -- has been eager to get into one of those shirtsleeve sessions with influential labor leaders to whom skis are just a minisled.

Early this month AFL-CIO President George Meany and Harry Van Arsdale, leader of a million New York workers and Rockefeller's closest labor ally, went up to the mayor's mansion and talked for a long time. It went well, this gathering of the new and elder statesmen. Lindsay did not tear Meany from Lyndon Johnson. But the secret session cracked the ice.

Some weeks earlier there had been a similar session -- this one at City Hall -- with the labor men who lead the state's balance - of - power Liberal Party. Certainly they talked about their joint campaign which elected John Lindsay mayor. But they talked of the future, too.

And no doubt, at least in this corner, they will be back with John next time around in '69. Thus once again they'll be bucking Bob Kennedy.

But this kind of battle may not have to wait two years. This Liberal Party, which certainly will back Mr. Johnson if he runs, may well split with Bob Kennedy's Democrats on the Senatorial line. The Liberals will back Sen. Jack Javits for re-election unless they get their kind of nominee from Bob Kennedy -- which is not likely since their kind is Lyndon Johnson's kind.

They're talking of Javits because they positively do not expect Ambassador Arthur Goldberg to accept the Senatorial nomination. Positively. Absolutely.

So right across the board, from right to left inside eastern labor, the union chiefs are knowledgeable indeed on the inner politics of the Republican establishment.

And of late they hear that Nelson Rockefeller's emissaries have been making contact with some of Gov. Reagan's Californians.

Who knows? Some of them may even be going by way of Arizona. One of them is genial Bill Miller, the former National Republican chairman who was Barry Goldwater's running mate.

Politics makes strange itineraries.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

CAN WE TAKE AFFLUENCE?

MONTEREY, Cal. -- I was sitting in the shadow of the lighthouse watching this character stroll across the dunes. He had a wispy red beard and he wore a sports shirt open to the belly, tattered slacks and sandals.

I had been reading in The Chronicle how the "hippies" had warned San Francisco that thousands of them will gather in that city this summer "out of a sense of hopelessness and despair."

A mile from Monterey's lighthouse is Cannery Row. John Steinbeck wrote a famous collection of stories about the bums who hung around those canneries during the hungry Thirties. At least they were all bums except "Doc" who collected sea life for biological laboratories.

The rest -- Eddie, Hughey, Frankie - worked when driven to it, for the soup in the soup lines those years was mighty thin. But they suffered from no "hopelessness and despair." They even enjoyed their precarious lives.

A COLLEGE professor recently told me this:

"I think one thing that's bugging the kids is too much security and too little struggle and danger. There are no rafts left for our Huck Finns. The Indians are tame and practically all the woods are posted. A youngster grows up smothered by 'Mustn'ts' from Mom and Teacher. The virile old world of boy-with-stick - following - man - with - club is gone."

My professor friend feels that the primitive desire for danger will not be suppressed, and will emerge in eccentric, spectacular or even anti-social ways.

"The young speeder is trying to claw his way out from under a blanket," he continued. "Much delinquency is a way of courting danger. I suspect that many who parade in sympathy for the Vietcong are finding fulfillment in the hazard of almost - but - not - quite treason."

AS I WATCHED the bearded young man wander glumly along the beautiful Pacific shore I thought of other young Americans on the other side of that ocean who are enjoying no security at all. Indeed, we have never before fought a war where the chances of unpleasant surprises were so plentiful. Yet I had never seen better morale than among the kids in Vietnam. They have responded magnificently to elemental struggle.

The beats who are scheduled to flock to San Francisco this summer to express their agony will be well taken care of. Already, a group of motherly preachers is working for their proper accommodation. It is not certain that this will be a kindness. Maybe the hippies would be happier if they were stoned.

WHAT WE have has been described as the "affluent society." It might be better described as the "borrowing society," since, in spite of our vaunted wealth, we cannot bring ourselves to cough up enough taxes to pay for our "needs." Apres nous le deluge.

But the object of the affluent society is supposed to be the elimination of want. It is hoped that our productive capacity will grow so great that we can afford to guarantee necessities to anyone, whether he is healthy or ailing, smart or stupid, lucky or unlucky, industrious or just sacked out.

The word "needs" means physical needs only. Man needs a lot more, including identification with a noble aim bigger than himself.

THE NATIONS with the highest suicide rates in Europe -- Denmark, Austria and Switzerland -- are most prosperous and are highly organized toward social welfare. The nations with the lowest -- Portugal and Ireland -- are hard-scrabble countries. Man thrives in struggle if it is sweetened by hope.

In time of war suicide rates diminish. World War II statistics are unreliable, since many a Gestapo murder was kissed off as a suicide, but between 1912 and 1916 the British rate dropped from 10 to 7.3 per 100,000, the German from 23 to 17, and the French from 23 to 15.

OLD TOM GILCREASE, the part-Indian who spent his whole oil fortune on his great Americana collection, said, "A man should leave a track." Maybe that's what we want -- to leave a track.

A man who is anything doesn't want to leave simply a pile of empty tin cans and endorsed welfare checks. He wants to identify himself with a triumphant struggle. Even Steinbeck's cannery bums took satisfaction in the feeling that they had a distinguished record of outwitting Society. If someone had handed them an easy living they might have shot themselves.

The young man in the wispy beard is going to be awfully cheated if he goes to San Francisco this summer and no cop bounces a nightstick on his noggin. It is hard to identify with no - struggle. It is a curel world that looks straight through the sandaled attention-seeker as it hands him a sandwich.

That may be why, in an affluent society that is approaching total security, the sport of sky-diving is booming.

CHEMICAL PROGRESS WEEK

The days and weeks roll on - and just about each of them, it seems, provides the setting for some observance designed to attract the interest and curiosity of a broad public. One of the most noteworthy of these will be Chemical Progress Week, April 24 through 29.

It is literally true that chemistry, in its almost infinite aspects, touches the lives of everyone. Chemistry is responsible for the finding of myriad drugs and remedies which defeat illness and bring back health. It is the source of fertilizers and pesticides and other products which do much to make possible the amazing productivity of our farms. It takes wood by-products which once were a total waste and transforms them into thousands of wanted and useful products. Out of its test tubes come handsome and durable fabrics. It is the source of sports and outdoor gear and equipment far superior to anything known in the past. Everywhere - at home, at work, at play, or just driving the family car along the highways - the hands of the chemists enter, though they are not seen.

During Chemical Progress Week, we will all have a chance to learn a little more of the miracles for which chemistry is responsible. It is an opportunity none should miss.

THE PROBATE CAPER

"In every big transaction there is a magic moment during which a man has surrendered a treasure, and during which the man who is due to receive it has not yet done so. An alert lawyer will make that moment his own, possessing the treasure for a magic micro-second, taking a little of it, passing it on. If the man who is to receive the treasure is unused to wealth, has an inferiority complex and shapeless feelings of guilt, as most people do, the lawyer can often take as much as half the bundle, and still receive the recipient's blubbering thanks."

- Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., "God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater."

Instead of blubbering thanks, a probate lawyer today is more likely to get a cold stare from relatives of the deceased. This is in large measure due to the lonely crusade of one Norman F. Dacey, the non-lawyer author of "How To Avoid Probate." The book has been a best-seller for nearly a year (600,000 copies sold) and firmly establishes Dacey as the bete noir of the legal profession.

The New York County Lawyers Association, in fact, on April 10 asked the State Supreme Court to enjoin further sales of Dacey's book. It is contended the book constitutes the unauthorized practice of law. Even before "How To Avoid Probate" was published, the Connecticut Supreme Court enjoined Dacey from giving verbal advice on how persons could avoid having estates probated.

Dacey recently went before the Supreme Court of the United States to ask that the Connecticut court injunction be nullified. He further has charged that the Federal Trade Commission is investigating him in a manner "which is taking on the characteristics of a witch hunt." Dacey's basic advice is that property be placed in trust before the death of the owner to avoid having a will probated and paying heavy legal fees. But his real offense, in the eyes of many lawyers, was in putting dozens of detachable forms in his books that the reader can use to follow his advice - without consulting a lawyer. No magic moment there!

Jack Hogan, a Sikeston banker, says there are times when a monkey, with prehensile tail, has it all over man. "Just think how convenient that fifth hand would be at an open house, one of those stand-up affairs, when a fellow has to manage a noggin of nog, a few salted-toasted peanuts, a broken potato chip dripping with dip, a wedge of fruit cake, and a cherry-hued mint," he mused.

WHO BUYS MEN'S CLOTHES?

WHO BUYS HUBBY'S clothes?

Every men's clothing merchant knows how often wifey comes along; but few realized how much influence she really has in selecting a suit until a Sikeston reporter started asking questions.

"A guy would wear any old thing if it weren't for the missus," said one conservatively dressed male. "My wife keeps up on fashions for both of us," said another modernly dressed executive.

"We have similar taste," admitted one executive, "because I have learned to respect her judgment." Speaking of buying shorts another man said, "I wear 'em but she has to look at them," consequently he lets her make the selections.

A few of the men interviewed claimed they did their own choosing, but most of the bosses in their own firms admitted, "She shops for me and I love it."

Retailers writing advertising should remember the big influence the wife has in buying everything for the family. When her viewpoint is forgotten sales can be lost. Reading surveys made over the nation indicate that women read newspaper advertising thoroughly.

Konrad Adenauer is dead at 91.

There can't be much sorrow over the death of a man who lived so long and served his country so well. Instead there is reason for rejoicing for a long, useful life.

Adenauer as chancellor was a distinguished, far sighted leader, who brought Germany successfully through difficult times.

His friendship for and loyalty to the United States never faltered.

Chancellor for two decades he remained active in politics until the end, serving as a member of parliament.

His greatest feat was the leadership he gave to the development of Germany from the ruins of World War II. His country prospered.

He was a stalwart foe of Communism.

He worked for reconciliation of his country with France, a historic enemy.

He failed to achieve reunification of Germany.

A devout Catholic he believed that "Christianity is the answer to all ideologies" but was not narrow in his religious beliefs.

President Lyndon B. Johnson will attend the funeral.

He will be paying this grateful nation's respects to the greatest Germany of this century.

PUPILS INTRODUCED TO U.S. ECONOMY

Every so often we hear the complaint that while the economic system of the United States is the most successful in the world, the people who enjoy its benefits understand little of how it works. Americans are economic illiterates. Wealthy illiterates, but illiterates none the less.

A study made in 1963 revealed that among large school systems in the nation, fewer than one-fifth had a required course in economics. Many schools offered no economics at all. Only 22 states required economics courses for social studies teachers.

The reasoning behind the complaint is valid: In a society which is governed by individual choice made in the market place as well as in the voting booth, ignorance of economics is no less dangerous than ignorance of politics. But if the implication is that no one is doing anything about it, it couldn't be more wrong.

The study cited above was made by the Joint Council on Economic Education, an independent, nonprofit organization supported by business, labor, professions and other private segments of the economy.

Founded in 1949, the council works with affiliated but autonomous councils throughout the country to promote and improve economic education in schools at all grade levels, develop new teaching materials and upgrade teacher prepartion. It preaches no particular brand of economic theory or ideology but seeks to increase basic understanding of how our economy actualy works.

There are at present some 44 local councils in 30 states. One of the most active is the Ohio Council on Economic Education (OCEE), headquartered at Ohio University in Athens and chairmaned by the university's dynamic president, Vernon R. Alden.

During the past year, it sponsored 19 special school programs and sent out thousands of pieces of educational literature.

Guiding principle behind all this activity is the idea of an "economic education multiplier effect," explains Warmke.

Economic education begins with economists, school administrators and community leader, working with councils like the OCEE; proceeds down to teachers in local schools; from teachers to their students, and from the students to their families. The ultimate product is an informed citizenry.

At any rate, economic education is "in" in Ohio. A recent survey by the OCEE showed that six of every 10 public schools in the state offered a separate course in economics.

Nikita Khrushchev once said that he would bury us - that is, that his economic system would triumph over ours.

Not if we're smart, it won't. And if we become smart, no little credit will go the efforts of the Joint Council on Economic Education and its regional chapters.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- On his recent trip to Europe, Vice President Humphrey, being the no. 2 man in government, adopted the slogan of a well known car rental company. He tried harder.

His biggest test was his dramatic confrontation with "Le Grand Charles," the difficult and divisive Charles De Gaulle. It was the first top-level visit an American official has had with the French President in two years of strained relations.

Humphrey's aides tried to prepare him for the encounter by writing a formal little speech, which he was supposed to deliver in toasting De Gaulle.

"Fifty years ago," declared the proposed toast, "we came to the aid of France when she was threatened, and only a few years later we once more came to the aid of our friends. . . We are committed to you and to your freedom as we are committed to the freedom of our own people."

Humphrey read the draft once and crumpled it into the waste basket.

"This would be an insult," he snorted. "I want to talk about what France has done for America, not what America has done for France."

So at the banquet, the Vice President ad - libbed about visiting Yorktown and reading the names of French officers carved in the granite on our most historic monuments.

"How can I as an American ever forget the debt that we owe France for our independence!" he declared.

"What binds us is not the wars we have fought together nor the money we have exchanged," he continued, pointing out nonetheless that France gave the United States its first loan in 1777.

"What binds us," he went on, "is our common belief in liberty."

The French slogan, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity," stands together in history with the American slogan, "Liberty and the pursuit of happiness," he said.

He also called off the names of the French scholars, writers and scientists who have inspired America, and paid tribute to "Le Grand" leader who symbolizes "La Grande" nation.

"No disagreement between our countries today can possibly erase these immortal memories," declared Humphrey.

OTHER EUROPEAN TALKS

While the Vice President's visit clearly gave French-American relations a lift, it was not the most important of his talks. The most important were with the German and Italian cabinets, aimed at heading off a revival of the arms race, this time with nuclear weapons.

This is the first time in the twenty-year postwar period of very cordial relations between the United States and Italy that there has been a major disagreement between them, and the disagreement over the nonproliferation of nuclear weapons is considered especially serious because it could lead to a revival of the arms jockeying that finally led to World War II.

This is something the United States has been trying to prevent ever since we went into Western Europe with the Marshall plan and subsequently set up NATO and helped inspire the European Common Market.

The leaders of Italy remained cordial but adamant. Humphrey got the impression that they would be more difficult in the end than West Germany.

He found German leaders most concerned about the provisions in the treaty which would permit representatives from Communist countries to inspect their plants. Humphrey discussed safeguards to answer their worries which satisfied Foreign Minister Willy Brandt and seemed to make an impression on Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

The Vice President got off to a good start with Kiesinger by bringing greetings from Kiesinger's daughter, Mrs. Viola Wentzel, who is studying at Georgetown University in Washington. What really mellowed the Chancellor, however, were stories and pictures of his little granddaughter, Cecilia.

The Chancellor told how he had entered his bedroom to dress for the banquet and had found upon the dresser a "beautiful photograph" of his daughter and granddaughter posing with Humphrey.

"You have discovered my soft spot," said Kiesinger, turning to the Vice President.

FRENCH-GERMAN ALLIANCE

Humphrey responded by saying his country encouraged the new, friendly relations between Germany and France.

"But," he protested, "there is a limit." He noted that the Chancellor's daughter lived across the street in Washington from the French Embassy and that the Chancellor's little granddaughter plays on the grounds of the French Embassy.

"And her little German dog," added Humphrey in mock dismay, "plays with a French dog! Who knows what they are saying to one another?"

Humphrey, as previously reported, fell back on his long acquaintanceship with some of the social Democratic leaders of Italy and Germany whom he had known for many years. He is reasonably confident that they will influence their governments, in which they are part of coalitions, to bring about approval of the nonproliferation treaty in the end.

Note -- Italian newspapers misrepresented the beating up of the Italian who threw paint at Vice President Humphrey in front of the Rome opera house. The man was a tough Communist, who after throwing the paint started toward Humphrey. The secret service grabbed him and did manhandle him somewhat, though most of the manhandling was done by the Italian police.

Some weeks earlier there had been a similar session -- this one at City Hall -- with the labor men who lead the state's balance - of - power Liberal Party. Certainly they talked about their joint campaign which elected John Lindsay mayor. But they talked of the future, too.

And no doubt, at least in this corner, they will be back with John next time around in '69. Thus once again they'll be bucking Bob Kennedy.

But this kind of battle may not have to wait two years. This Liberal Party, which certainly will back Mr. Johnson if he runs, may well split with Bob Kennedy's Democrats on the Senatorial line. The Liberals will back Sen. Jack Javits for re-election unless they get their kind of nominee from Bob Kennedy -- which is not likely since their kind is Lyndon Johnson's kind.

They're talking of Javits because they positively do not expect Ambassador Arthur Goldberg to accept the Senatorial nomination. Positively. Absolutely.

So right across the board, from right to left inside eastern labor, the union chiefs are knowledgeable indeed on the inner politics of the Republican establishment.

And of late they hear that Nelson Rockefeller's emissaries have been making contact with some of Gov. Reagan's Californians.

Who knows? Some of them may even be going by way of Arizona. One of them is genial Bill Miller, the former National Republican chairman who was Barry Goldwater's running mate.

Politics makes strange itineraries.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

CAN WE TAKE AFFLUENCE?

MONTEREY, Cal. -- I was sitting in the shadow of the lighthouse watching this character stroll across the dunes. He had a wispy red beard and he wore a sports shirt open to the belly, tattered slacks and sandals.

I had been reading in The Chronicle how the "hippies" had warned San Francisco that thousands of them will gather in that city this summer "out of a sense of hopelessness and despair."

A mile from Monterey's lighthouse is Cannery Row. John Steinbeck wrote a famous collection of stories about the bums who hung around those canneries during the hungry Thirties. At least they were all bums except "Doc" who collected sea life for biological laboratories.

The rest -- Eddie, Hughey, Frankie - worked when driven to it, for the soup in the soup lines those years was mighty thin. But they suffered from no "hopelessness and despair." They even enjoyed their precarious lives.

A COLLEGE professor recently told me this;

"I think one thing that's bugging the kids is too much security and too little struggle and danger. There are no rafts left for our Huck Finns. The Indians are tame and practically all the woods are posted. A youngster grows up smothered by 'Mustn'ts' from Mom and Teacher. The virile old world of boy-with-stick - following - man - with - club is gone."

My professor friend feels that the primitive desire for danger will not be suppressed, and will emerge in eccentric, spectacular or even anti-social ways.

"The young speeder is trying to claw his way out from under a blanket," he continued. "Much delinquency is a way of courting danger. I suspect that many who parade in sympathy for the Vietcong are finding fulfillment in the hazard of almost - but - not - quite treason."

AS I WATCHED the bearded young man wander glumly along the beautiful Pacific shore I thought of other young Americans on the other side of that ocean who are enjoying no security at all. Indeed, we have never before fought a war where the chances of unpleasant surprises were so plentiful. Yet I had never seen better morale than among the kids in Vietnam. They have responded magnificently to elemental struggle.

The beats who are scheduled to flock to San Francisco this summer to express their agony will be well taken care of. Already, a group of motherly preachers is working for their proper accommodation. It is not certain that this will be a kindness. Maybe the hippies would be happier if they were stoned.

WHAT WE have has been described as the "affluent society." It might be better described as the "borrowing society," since, in spite of our vaunted wealth, we cannot bring ourselves to cough up enough taxes to pay for our "needs." Apres nous le deluge.

But the object of the affluent society is supposed to be the elimination of want. It is hoped that our productive capacity will grow so great that we can afford to guarantee necessities to anyone, whether he is healthy or ailing, smart or stupid, lucky or unlucky, industrious or just sacked out.

The word "needs" means physical needs only. Man needs a lot more, including identification with a noble aim bigger than himself.

THE NATIONS with the highest suicide rates in Europe -- Denmark, Austria and Switzerland -- are most prosperous and are highly organized toward social welfare. The nations with the lowest -- Portugal and Ireland -- are hard-scrabble countries. Man thrives in struggle if it is sweetened by hope.

In time of war suicide rates diminish. World War II statistics are unreliable, since many a Gestapo murder was kissed off as a suicide, but between 1912 and 1916 the British rate dropped from 10 to 7.3 per 100,000, the German from 23 to 17, and the French from 23 to 15.

OLD TOM GILCREASE, the part-Indian who spent his whole oil fortune on his great Americana collection, said, "A man should leave a track." Maybe that's what we want -- to leave a track.

A man who is anything doesn't want to leave simply a pile of empty tin cans and endorsed welfare checks. He wants to identify himself with a triumphant struggle. Even Steinbeck's cannery bums took satisfaction in the feeling that they had a distinguished record of outwitting Society. If someone had handed them an easy living they might have shot themselves.

The young man in the wispy beard is going to be awfully cheated if he goes to San Francisco this summer and no cop bounces a nightstick on his noggin. It is hard to identify with no - struggle. It is a curel world that looks straight through the sandaled attention-seeker as it hands him a sandwich.

That may be why, in an affluent society that is approaching total security, the sport of sky-diving is booming.

Mysteries, History Sought at Library

Books that are read in the public library:

Best sellers, of course. Currently in favor are George Plimpton's "The Paper Lion"; John Toland's "The Last 100 Days"; Jonathon Daniels, "The Time Between the Wars"; and John Dos Passos "Shackles of Power." Expected to join the ranks is a new arrival - William Machester's controversial "Death of a President."

Books on the best seller list are on the rental shelf but they are taken off as soon as they fall from fickle public favor. One week books require the payment of no fees. They are new books but not best sellers. Variety is everywhere. Two new books are about pruple martins and how to save money by borrowing.

In continuous demand are books by Mary Stewart, Elizabeth Seifert, Allen Drury, Robert Ruark, Edwin O'Connor, Paul Wellman and Bruce Catton.

Mysteries are great favorites. So is historical non-fiction. In strong demand are Civil War and English history and books about World War II.

Favorite authors of whodunits are Erle Stanley Gardner, Agatha Christie, Rex Stout, Mignon Everhart, Mary Margaret Rinehart and among newer authors -- Joan Aiken, Charlotte Armstrong and George Bagby.

A shelf is devoted to mystery books.

Books about sports, both fiction and non-fiction, are popular.

There are calls for books on interior decoration, antiques and coin collecting.

The Vanishing American still sits on the shelves. There is a large selection of books about Indians.

Mrs. Sadler Is Circle Hostess

Circle five of the First Baptist church met with Mrs. Phillip Sadler for the regular monthly business meeting and Royal Service program in April. Present were six members, including Mrs. J. B. Hall, a new member, and one guest, Mrs. Fred Steward, president of the night circles of Woman's Missionary Society.

Mrs. Pat Herring conducted the business session. Mrs. Carl Elam, prayer chairman, read the prayer calendar and led in prayer.

Mrs. Herring announced that circles five and six had been invited to serve the youth choir the evening meal, chuck wagon style, each Wednesday in April and May. Those from circle five who will assist Mrs. Steward will be Mrs. Herring, Mrs. E. T. Freeman, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Ralph Ancell.

Plans for two meetings a month to advance the WMS were discussed. Mrs. Steward explained the purpose of a circle meeting and a general meeting of the WMS.

Mrs. Harold Bean was program leader and was assisted by Mrs. Donald Beggs, Mrs. Lou Goehri, Mrs. Sadler and Mrs. Elam. Their topic, "First and Twentieth Century Churches" was discussed with study question being "How is the Holy Spirit evident in the development of First and Twentieth Century Churches?" A study of the first church established in Europe compared to churches in the modern-day country of Tanzania in East Africa was given.

At the close, Mrs. Herring led in directed prayer for the missionaries and Christians in Tanzania.

Mrs. Sadler served coffee and cake during the social hour.

"Toothache Tree"

"Toothache tree" is another name for the prickly ash, so-called because the bark produces a cooling sensation when chewed and acts as an anesthetic for toothache.

Ronald R. Williams

Williams to Conduct Choir

Ronald R. Williams, junior high school band director, will conduct the evangelism choir in a two-week revival in Miner Baptist church, beginning May 1.

Pianists will be Mrs. Bill Pickett and Mrs. Ron McCormick. The choir will sing at 7 p.m. Revival services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Williams, a native of Manila, Ark., graduated from high school at Campbell, where his parents now live. He holds the bachelor of music education degree from Arkansas State University, Jonesboro. Before coming to Sikeston, Williams was band director at Marble Hill. Williams, his wife, and their two children live at 404 Benton St.

The evangelist for the revival will be Tom K. Simms, artist-evangelist of Galveston, Texas. He will complete a painting each evening at the beginning of the service. The painting will be given to someone present.

The church is located east of Sikeston, one block north of Highway 62, on the Blodgett Road.

First Performance of 'South Pacific' Given

BY RUTH DILLENDER

"South Pacific," Sikeston Little Theatre's last production of the season, opened last night with about 175 attending the performance.

Patsy Mitchell, as Ensign Nellie Forbush, and Jim Moore III, as Emile de Beque, were good in their parts, but Vivian Boyer, as Bloody Mary, and Douglas J. Morrison, as Luther Billis, stole the show. The audience roared with laughter at the antics of these two. Both were perfect for the parts they played. Nothing could have been funnier.

The music and songs were well coordinated. Mary and Gordon Beaver, duo pianists, accompanied. Vocal coordinators were Carole Clayton and Bob Williamson.

Mrs. Mitchell's best scene was the one in which she sang "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Outa My Hair." Moore's best song was "Some Enchanted Evening."

The only complaint about the show is the time it takes to change scenery. This will surely improve in the next performances. The show will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight, Friday night and next Saturday night in the junior high school auditorium. This is the best show ever presented by the Little Theatre.

The Dr. Tom L. Chidester memorial award will be presented during intermission tonight. Lynn Colley will make the presentation.

Other members of the cast were Susie Mitchell as Ngana; Lorenzo Harris, Jerome; Samuel Sanders, Henry; Sheila Topp, Bloody Mary's assistant; Danny Cannon, Stewpot; Mike Fodge, Professor; Dan Norton, Lt. Joseph Cable; Buddy Clayton, Capt. George Brackett; Jim Terrell, Cmdr. William Harbison; Mike Payne, Yeoman Herbert Quale.

Jerry Obermark, Abner, Williamson, Kenneth Johnson; Jerry Smithers, Seabee Richard West; John Hough, Seaman Tom O'Brien; Jay Sitzes, Radio Operator McCaffrey; Bob Brothers, Cpl. Hamilton Steeves; Tommy Richey, Sgt. Thomas Hassinger; Frances Heckemeyer, Lt. Genevieve Marshall.

Charlene Freeman, Ensign Dinah Murphy; Kay Hunter, Ensign Janet McGregor; Kathy Tenkhoff, Ensign Cora McRae; Patty Bush, Ensign Sue Yaeger; Jean Livingston, Ensign Lisa Manelli; Faith Ann Fodge, Ensign Connie Walewska; Shirley Davidson, Ensign Bessie Noonan; Greer Huff, Ensign Rita Lambert; Debbie Wheeler, Ensign Patricia McCormick.

Lynda Norton, Liat; Lynn Colley, Lt. "Buzz" Adams; Milton Brashears, Sgt. Jack Waters; Bill Lashmet, Pvt. Victor Jerome; Paul Parmenter, Pvt. Sven Larsen, Kathy Miller, native girl, and Rosalie Boyer, Ensign Betty Pitt.

A great deal of credit goes to a person that wasn't even seen last night, director Hope Terrell. This production involved long hours and hard work for her.

The scenery was, as always, beautiful and realistic. Jean Love and high school students were in charge of the art, scenery and special effects. Richard Fussell was technical advisor and set designer.

The stage crew was Colley, W.W. Wilkison, Ernest Elledge, John Davis, Harley Barnes, Paul Elledge, Fussell and members of the cast.

Producers were Karen Moore, Brothers and Ken Stallings. Choreographer was Thema Bush. Colley, Paul Elledge, Carrol Couch and Carolyn Hill were in charge of sound and lights.

Sandy York, Linda Litchford, Donna Wheeler, Hough, Cyd Mitchell and Tommy Jobe were members of the property crew. Hair stylists were Helen DeLine and Shirley Bye. In charge of wardrobe were Jewell Bell, Molly Wheeler, Billie Sue McCann, Martha Edwards, Brothers, Stallings, Lynn Twitty, Rosalie Boyer, Shirley Davidson and Faith Fodge.

Sheila Topp, Darla Scoles, Norman McMullin, Pattie McMullin and Morrison were in charge of make up.

Prompters were Karen Moore, Sandy York, Carole Clayton, Elaine Miller and Sheila Topp. They had to do some work at last night's performance in a few scenes.

Mrs. Vanover Honored at Baby Shower

Mrs. Marilyn Jobe Vanover was honored at a baby shower April 14 in the home of Mrs. Evelyn Jobe.

Mrs. Pat Hicks and Mrs. Joyce Beasley were co-hostesses.

The serving table was decorated with a white stork and pink ribbon. Punch and cake were served.

Attending or sending gifts were Mrs. Edith Bush, Mrs. Pat Jobe, Mrs. Betty Holland, Mrs. Geraldine White, Mrs. Faye Elliott, Mrs. Onis Learue, Mrs. Anita McKinney, Mrs. Joan Baccus, Mrs. Marion Warren, Mrs. Joyce McKinley.

Mrs. Mary Martin, Mrs. Noah Strickland, Mrs. Linda Strickland, Mrs. Linda Collier, Mrs. C. B. Jobe, Mrs. Jewell Brown, Mrs. Colleen McCubbins, Mrs. Linda Warren, Mrs. Bob Bradford, Mrs. Woody Winchester.

Mrs. Frank Elliott, Mrs. Janiece Ayers, Mrs. Martha Groves, Mrs. Rose Finley, Mrs. Betty Martin, Mrs. Margaret Blackburn, Mrs. Mary Ann Helms, Mrs. Imogene Miller, Mrs. Rose McKinley, Mrs. Marlene Harris.

Mrs. Hazel Voelker, Mrs. Bertha Sweet, Mrs. Betty Jobe, Mrs. Linda Jobe, Mrs. Jasper Miller, Mrs. Harvey Jobe, Mrs. Carolyn Lane, Mrs. Alberta McKinley, Mrs. Harold Ragains and Mrs. Mary Carolyn Adams.

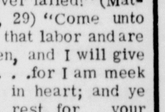
Peace

Christ has prescribed a perfect formula for peace - with self, others, and God. The rulers of this world can only search in vain - outside this formula - for this most scarce and needed commodity. All Christians of all ages attest to this fact: "Christ's way has never failed!" (Matthew 11:28, 29) "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest . . .for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest for your souls."



A. McDONOUGH PASTOR

A friendly welcome awaits you at our church each Sunday morning, Sunday evening, and Wednesday evening.

Now! Big Company Group Insurance For Smaller Businesses

Now, businesses with less than 25 employees are eligible for a new, low-cost group health and life insurance program that offers coverage you'd expect to find only in big company group insurance plans.

It's P.E.P. (Progressive Employers Program) — from Mutual of Omaha and its life insurance affiliate, United of Omaha. P.E.P. solves the salary continuance problem for the small employer and helps reduce labor turnover by providing important financial security for the employee and his family.

If you have a small business, you owe it to yourself and your employees to investigate P.E.P. — the modern answer to the small businessman's need for a flexible, low-cost employee insurance program.

"Toothache tree" is another name for the prickly ash, so-called because the bark produces a cooling sensation when chewed and acts as an anesthetic for toothache.

Ronald R. Williams

Williams to Conduct Choir

Ronald R. Williams, junior high school band director, will conduct the evangelism choir in a two-week revival in Miner Baptist church, beginning May 1.

Pianists will be Mrs. Bill Pickett and Mrs. Ron McCormick. The choir will sing at 7 p.m. Revival services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Williams, a native of Manila, Ark., graduated from high school at Campbell, where his parents now live. He holds the bachelor of music education degree from Arkansas State University, Jonesboro. Before coming to Sikeston, Williams was band director at Marble Hill. Williams, his wife, and their two children live at 404 Benton St.

The evangelist for the revival will be Tom K. Simms, artist-evangelist of Galveston, Texas. He will complete a painting each evening at the beginning of the service. The painting will be given to someone present.

The church is located east of Sikeston, one block north of Highway 62, on the Blodgett Road.

First Performance of 'South Pacific' Given

BY RUTH DILLENDER

"South Pacific," Sikeston Little Theatre's last production of the season, opened last night with about 175 attending the performance.

Patsy Mitchell, as Ensign Nellie Forbush, and Jim Moore III, as Emile de Beque, were good in their parts, but Vivian Boyer, as Bloody Mary, and Douglas J. Morrison, as Luther Billis, stole the show. The audience roared with laughter at the antics of these two. Both were perfect for the parts they played. Nothing could have been funnier.

The music and songs were well coordinated. Mary and Gordon Beaver, duo pianists, accompanied. Vocal coordinators were Carole Clayton and Bob Williamson.

Mrs. Mitchell's best scene was the one in which she sang "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Outa My Hair." Moore's best song was "Some Enchanted Evening."

The only complaint about the show is the time it takes to change scenery. This will surely improve in the next performances. The show will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight, Friday night and next Saturday night in the junior high school auditorium. This is the best show ever presented by the Little Theatre.

The Dr. Tom L. Chidester memorial award will be presented during intermission tonight. Lynn Colley will make the presentation.

Other members of the cast were Susie Mitchell as Ngana; Lorenzo Harris, Jerome; Samuel Sanders, Henry; Sheila Topp, Bloody Mary's assistant; Danny Cannon, Stewpot; Mike Fodge, Professor; Dan Norton, Lt. Joseph Cable; Buddy Clayton, Capt. George Brackett; Jim Terrell, Cmdr. William Harbison; Mike Payne, Yeoman Herbert Quale.

Jerry Obermark, Abner, Williamson, Kenneth Johnson; Jerry Smithers, Seabee Richard West; John Hough, Seaman Tom O'Brien; Jay Sitzes, Radio Operator McCaffrey; Bob Brothers, Cpl. Hamilton Steeves; Tommy Richey, Sgt. Thomas Hassinger; Frances Heckemeyer, Lt. Genevieve Marshall.

Charlene Freeman, Ensign Dinah Murphy; Kay Hunter, Ensign Janet McGregor; Kathy Tenkhoff, Ensign Cora McRae; Patty Bush, Ensign Sue Yaeger; Jean Livingston, Ensign Lisa Manelli; Faith Ann Fodge, Ensign Connie Walewska; Shirley Davidson, Ensign Bessie Noonan; Greer Huff, Ensign Rita Lambert; Debbie Wheeler, Ensign Patricia McCormick.

Lynda Norton, Liat; Lynn Colley, Lt. "Buzz" Adams; Milton Brashears, Sgt. Jack Waters; Bill Lashmet, Pvt. Victor Jerome; Paul Parmenter, Pvt. Sven Larsen, Kathy Miller, native girl, and Rosalie Boyer, Ensign Betty Pitt.

A great deal of credit goes to a person that wasn't even seen last night, director Hope Terrell. This production involved long hours and hard work for her.

The scenery was, as always, beautiful and realistic. Jean Love and high school students were in charge of the art, scenery and special effects. Richard Fussell was technical advisor and set designer.

The stage crew was Colley, W.W. Wilkison, Ernest Elledge, John Davis, Harley Barnes, Paul Elledge, Fussell and members of the cast.

Producers were Karen Moore, Brothers and Ken Stallings. Choreographer was Thema Bush. Colley, Paul Elledge, Carrol Couch and Carolyn Hill were in charge of sound and lights.

Sandy York, Linda Litchford, Donna Wheeler, Hough, Cyd Mitchell and Tommy Jobe were members of the property crew. Hair stylists were Helen DeLine and Shirley Bye. In charge of wardrobe were Jewell Bell, Molly Wheeler, Billie Sue McCann, Martha Edwards, Brothers, Stallings, Lynn Twitty, Rosalie Boyer, Shirley Davidson and Faith Fodge.

Sheila Topp, Darla Scoles, Norman McMullin, Pattie McMullin and Morrison were in charge of make up.

Prompters were Karen Moore, Sandy York, Carole Clayton, Elaine Miller and Sheila Topp. They had to do some work at last night's performance in a few scenes.

Mrs. Vanover Honored at Baby Shower

Mrs. Marilyn Jobe Vanover was honored at a baby shower April 14 in the home of Mrs. Evelyn Jobe.

Mrs. Pat Hicks and Mrs. Joyce Beasley were co-hostesses.

The serving table was decorated with a white stork and pink ribbon. Punch and cake were served.

Attending or sending gifts were Mrs. Edith Bush, Mrs. Pat Jobe, Mrs. Betty Holland, Mrs. Geraldine White, Mrs. Faye Elliott, Mrs. Onis Learue, Mrs. Anita McKinney, Mrs. Joan Baccus, Mrs. Marion Warren, Mrs. Joyce McKinley.

Mrs. Mary Martin, Mrs. Noah Strickland, Mrs. Linda Strickland, Mrs. Linda Collier, Mrs. C. B. Jobe, Mrs. Jewell Brown, Mrs. Colleen McCubbins, Mrs. Linda Warren, Mrs. Bob Bradford, Mrs. Woody Winchester.

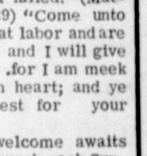
Peace

Christ has prescribed a perfect formula for peace - with self, others, and God. The rulers of this world can only search in vain - outside this formula - for this most scarce and needed commodity. All Christians of all ages attest to this fact; "Christ's way has never failed!" (Matthew 11;28, 29) "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest . . .for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest for your souls."



T. A. McDONOUGH PASTOR

A friendly welcome awaits you at our church each Sunday morning, Sunday evening, and Wednesday evening.

Now! Big Company Group Insurance For Smaller Businesses

Now, businesses with less than 25 employees are eligible for a new, low-cost group health and life insurance program that offers coverage you'd expect to find only in big company group insurance plans.

It's P.E.P. (Progressive Employers Program) — from Mutual of Omaha and its life insurance affiliate, United of Omaha. P.E.P. solves the salary continuance problem for the small employer and helps reduce labor turnover by providing important financial security for the employee and his family.

If you have a small business, you owe it to yourself and your employees to investigate P.E.P. — the modern answer to the small businessman's need for a flexible, low-cost employee insurance program.

Baseball Finals Tues.

The final game of the sub-district baseball tournament at Sikeston's VFW stadium yesterday afternoon was rained out and rescheduled for Monday at 3:30 p.m.

Sikeston and Richland are the two finalists.

Reed Named Coach

MALDEN - Vivian Reed has been named new basketball coach at Malden high school. He replaces Lavern Garner.

Reed has been coach at Campbell high school for the past five seasons, and is a native of Puxico and a graduate of Southeast Missouri State College.

Sub-District Begins At Hayti Monday

HAYTI - Subdistrict baseball tournament number three will begin Monday at Hayti North high school.

Six teams are entered in the event with games scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and finals Thursday.

Entered in the tournament are Lilbourn, Clarkton, Parma, North Pemiscot, Campbell and Hayti North.

Campbell was seeded number one for the tournament while Hayti was second, North Pemiscot third and Clarkton fourth.

Lilbourn and Clarkton get the tournament underway Monday with a 1 p.m. game followed at 3:30 p.m. by the Parma-North Pemiscot game.

Fishing Tournament Underway

BRANSON, Mo. AP -- Ken White of Independence, Mo., the 1963 world fresh water fishing champion, caught 30 pounds of fish Friday in Bull Shoals lake and took the lead in the U. S. Open and Missouri fishing tournaments.

The contestants were fishing in Table Rock Lake today.

White caught a 6-pound, 9-ounce bass Friday, largest landed by the 50 fishermen in the two tournaments. The Missouri competition is restricted to residents of the state this year.

White had 431 points; Jim Roger, Lamar, Mo., 315; Chuck Keithley, Branson, 308; Don Staser, Lansing, Mich., 224, and Howard Holmes, Branson, 178.

The competition will end Sunday at Lake Taneycomo.

Central Names Coach

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Howard Garrett has been named new Cape Girardeau Central high school basketball coach, replacing Bob Godwin, who is going to Jackson.

Besides being basketball coach, he will coach tennis and cross county.

Rain Idles NL Cellar Dwellers

By HAL BOCK

It was almost as if the heavens opened in mercy over Chavez Ravine.

Buried in ninth place with five losses in their first seven games, the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers could be excused if they approached their four-game series with red hot St. Louis somewhat less than enthusiastically.

After all, the first place Cardinals had won six of their first seven games and had fireballing Bob Gibson, 2-0, set to open against the punchless Dodgers Friday night.

About the only thing Los Angeles could hope for was a miracle.. . like maybe rain in California.

Now any native will tell you that rain in California is about as rare as snow in Florida. The Dodgers hadn't lost an inning to the elements in nine years since moving from that nasty Brooklyn climate. They'd played 737 consecutive games at home including exhibitions and World Series.

But Friday night, it rained in Los Angeles, and the Dodgers didn't have to play the Cardinals.

Not only did the weather keep the Dodgers idle, but it moved up the California coast and wiped out the San Francisco Giants' game against Atlanta.

That kept the Giants, 2-7, in last place, one game back of the Dodgers, and five off the pace of the Cardinals.

Three National League games were played Friday. Vada Pinson's 10th inning triple drove in two runs as Cincinnati trimmed Houston 3-1. The New York Mets broke Jim Bunning's hex against them, downing Philadelphia 6-3, and Bob Veale's two-hitter gave Pittsburgh a 6-1 victory over Chicago.

In the American League, Boston whipped New York 6-1, Detroit walloped Minnesota 12-4, Kansas City dropped Baltimore 3-1, California nipped Cleveland 6-5 and Washington edged Chicago 4-3.

The Cardinals and Dodgers were scheduled to try again tonight, with Gibson set to go against Los Angeles' Don Drysdale.

In San Francisco, the Giants were scheduled to send Gaylord Perry against Denny Lemaster of the Braves in an afternoon game.

Pinson was the Reds' hero for the second straight night as Cincinnati played its third consecutive extra inning game.

His triple drove in Art Shamsky, who had walked and Tommy Harper, who had singled. It was Pinson, who stroked a single in the 13th inning Thursday night to beat the Dodgers.

shortstop combination, socked consecutive homers against the Bill Mazeroski and Gene Alley, the Pirates' second-base-

Cubs in the second inning, igniting Pittsburgh's victory.

Veale became the first Pirate pitcher to go the route. One of the two hits he allowed was a homer by Adolpho Phillips, accounting for Chicago's only run.

Oliva Hits Two HR's Gets Credit For One

Tony Oliva hit his first home run twice and he made sure the second one counted.

The Minnesota outfielder hit a long blast in the third inning of the Twins' 12-4 loss to Detroit Friday night and was happily romping around the bases when — what's this? — he ran right past Cesar Tovar, who for reasons best known to himself, had stopped between first and second., Oliva was out.

But in the ninth, after a 58-minute rain delay, Tony hit a towering shot into the third deck in right field. He knew this one would be good because he was the leadoff batter.

Though it was clear than Oliva had to be called out for passing Tovar, it took some searching of the rule book to clear up the rest of the situation.

Umpire John Stevens allowed Tovar to score, ruling that all he had to do was touch all the bases. Official scorer George Cantor reasoned that since Oliva did get to first base, he should get a single and a run batted-in.

In other American League games, Boston beat New York 6-1, California edged Cleveland 6-5, Washington nudged Chicago 4-3 and Kansas City took Baltimore 3-1.

Detroit scored seven times in the fourth inning, three runs coming on a homer by Jim Northrup. Al Kaline and Ray Oyler drove in two runs each for the Tigers, and Denny McLain was the winning pitcher.

Bill Rohr went the distance against the Yankees again, the only run off him coming when Elston Howard singled in Bill Robinson in the eighth. Howard spoiled Rohr's no-hit bid with a two-out single in the ninth a week ago. Dalton Jones homered for the Red Sox.

Jim Fregosi homered with two out in the ninth, also driving in pinch runner Don Wallace and giving the Angels their victory. Cleveland had gone ahead in the eighth on doubles by Leon Wagner and Duke Sims. Chuck Hinton and Fred Whitfield homered for the Indians.

Ken Harrelson's bases-loaded, two-out single in the ninth drove in Washington's winning runs. Pete Ward hit his third homer for the Sox and Tommie Agee also homered.

Five doubles and Jim Gosger's homer led the Athletics to victory. Jim (Catfish) Hunter held the Orioles to four hits and struck out eight before getting relief help from Jack Aker in the ninth.

SHS Golf

By Arnie

The golfers of Sikeston high will journey to Cape Girardeau Monday to meet the Cape Central Tigers. A varsity and junior varsity match will be played.

The meet is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. at the Cape Girardeau country club, which has recently opened a new nine holes. The two matches will be played over the entire 18 holes.

The starting line-up for Sikeston's varsity squad will probably remain the same as it was for last Thursday's match against Caruthersville. In "B" team competition a few Sikeston boys will see action for the first time this year. Coach Gene Dawson's squad will total 13 boys for Monday's trip.

The Bulldogs will be shooting for their sixth straight win of the year against only one defeat. The Tiger's record for the year is 2-2.

The SHS golfers are in their fifth season and have never defeated the Tigers on the Cape course. But the Dogs are ready and will be trying hard for an upset.

Conference Track Meet Rescheduled

Yesterday's scheduled running of the Northern Division conference track meet was postponed by rain.

The meet has been rescheduled for Tuesday afternoon and evening. The preliminaries begin at 4 p.m. with the finals starting at 7:30 p.m.

Charleston and Kennett are favorites to win the meet. Cape Central is defending champion.

Golf Association

Meeting Set For 28th

The Men's Golf Association meeting and fish fry will be held at the country club April 28.

Dues of $3 will be collected, which includes the meal.

For more information call Bob Craff at GR 1-4518 or Ron Groves at GR 1-2721.

STARS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BATTING - Jim Fregosi, Angels, hit a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning that gave California a 6-5 comeback victory over Cleveland.

PITCHING - Bob Veale, Pirates, became the first Pittsburgh pitcher to hurl a complete game this season, limiting Chicago to two hits in a 6-1 victory.

The Richest Man In Babylon

By George S. Clason

"'Mark you well my words, for if you do not you will fail to grasp the truth that I will tell you, and you will think that your night's work has been in vain.'

"Then he looked at me shrewdly from under his shaggy brows and said in a low, forceful tone, 'I found the road to wealth when I decided that a part of all I earned was mine to keep. And so will you.'

"Then he continued to look at me with a glance that I could feel pierce me but said no more.

"'Is that all?' I asked.

"'That was sufficient to change the heart of a sheep herder into the heart of a money lender,' he replied.

"'But all I earn is mine to keep, is it not?' I demanded.

"'Far from it,' replied. 'Do you not pay the garment-maker? Do you not pay the sandal-maker? Do you not pay for the things you eat? Can you live in Babylon without spending? What have you to show for your earnings of the past month? What for the past year? Fool! You pay to everyone but yourself. Dullard, you labor for others. As well be a slave and work for what your master gives you to eat and wear. If you did keep for yourself one-tenth of all you earn, how much would you have in ten years?"

"My knowledge of the numbers did not forsake me, and I answered, 'As much as I earn in one year.'

"'You speak but half the truth,' he retorted. 'Every gold piece you save is a slave to work for you. Every copper it earns is its child that also can earn for you. IF you would become wealthy, then what you save must earn, and its children must earn, that all may help to give to you the abundance you crave.

"'You think I cheat you for your long night's work,' he continued, 'but I am paying you a thousand times over if you have the intelligence to grasp the truth I offer you.

"'A PART OF ALL YOU EARN IS YOURS TO KEEP. It should not be less than a tenth no matter how little you earn. It can be as much more as you can afford. Pay yourself first. Do not buy from the clothes-maker and the sandal-maker more than you can pay out of the rest and still have enough for food and charity and penace to the gods.

"'Wealth, like a tree, grows from a tiny seed. The first copper you save is the seed from which your tree of wealth shall grow. The sooner you plant that seed the sooner shall the tree grow. And the more faithfully you nourish and water the tree with consistent savings, the sooner may you bask in contentment beneath its shade.'

"So saying, he took his tablets and went away.

"I thought much about what he had said to me, and it seemed reasonable. So I decided that I would try it. Each time I was paid I took one from each ten pieces of copper and hid it away. And strange as it may seem, I was no shorter of funds than before. I noticed little difference as I managed to get along without it. But often I was tempted, as my hoard began to grow, to spend it for some of the good things the merchants displayed, brought by camels and ships from the land of the Phoenicians. But I wisely refrained.

Baseball Finals Tues.

The final game of the sub-district baseball tournament at Sikeston's VFW stadium yesterday afternoon was rained out and rescheduled for Monday at 3:30 p.m.

Sikeston and Richland are the two finalists.

Reed Named Coach

MALDEN - Vivian Reed has been named new basketball coach at Malden high school. He replaces Lavern Garner.

Reed has been coach at Campbell high school for the past five seasons, and is a native of Puxico and a graduate of Southeast Missouri State College.

Sub-District Begins At Hayti Monday

HAYTI - Subdistrict baseball tournament number three will begin Monday at Hayti North high school.

Six teams are entered in the event with games scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and finals Thursday.

Entered in the tournament are Lilbourn, Clarkton, Parma, North Pemiscot, Campbell and Hayti North.

Campbell was seeded number one for the tournament while Hayti was second, North Pemiscot third and Clarkton fourth.

Lilbourn and Clarkton get the tournament underway Monday with a 1 p.m. game followed at 3:30 p.m. by the Parma-North Pemiscot game.

Fishing Tournament Underway

BRANSON, Mo. AP - Ken White of Independence, Mo., the 1963 world fresh water fishing champion, caught 30 pounds of fish Friday in Bull Shoals lake and took the lead in the U. S. Open and Missouri fishing tournaments.

The contestants were fishing in Table Rock Lake today.

White caught a 6-pound, 9-ounce bass Friday, largest landed by the 50 fishermen in the two tournaments. The Missouri competition is restricted to residents of the state this year.

White had 431 points; Jim Roger, Lamar, Mo., 315; Chuck Keithley, Branson, 308; Don Staser, Lansing, Mich., 224, and Howard Holmes, Branson, 178.

The competition will end Sunday at Lake Taneycomo.

Central Names Coach

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Howard Garrett has been named new Cape Girardeau Central high school basketball coach, replacing Bob Godwin, who is going to Jackson.

Besides being basketball coach, he will coach tennis and cross county.

Rain Idles NL Cellar Dwellers

By HAL BOCK

It was almost as if the heavens opened in mercy over Chavez Ravine.

Buried in ninth place with five losses in their first seven games, the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers could be excused if they approached their four-game series with red hot St. Louis somewhat less than enthusiastically.

After all, the first place Cardinals had won six of their first seven games and had fireballing Bob Gibson, 2-0, set to open against the punchless Dodgers Friday night.

About the only thing Los Angeles could hope for was a miracle... like maybe rain in California.

Now any native will tell you that rain in California is about as rare as snow in Florida. The Dodgers hadn't lost an inning to the elements in nine years since moving from that nasty Brooklyn climate. They'd played 737 consecutive games at home including exhibitions and World Series.

But Friday night, it rained in Los Angeles, and the Dodgers didn't have to play the Cardinals.

Not only did the weather keep the Dodgers idle, but it moved up the California coast and wiped out the San Francisco Giants' game against Atlanta.

That kept the Giants, 2-7, in last place, one game back of the Dodgers, and five off the pace of the Cardinals.

Three National League games were played Friday. Vada Pinson's 10th inning triple drove in two runs as Cincinnati trimmed Houston 3-1. The New York Mets broke Jim Bunning's hex against them, downing Philadelphia 6-3, and Bob Veale's two-hitter gave Pittsburgh a 6-1 victory over Chicago.

In the American League, Boston whipped New York 6-1, Detroit walloped Minnesota 12-4, Kansas City dropped Baltimore 3-1, California nipped Cleveland 6-5 and Washington edged Chicago 4-3.

The Cardinals and Dodgers were scheduled to try again tonight, with Gibson set to go against Los Angeles' Don Drysdale.

In San Francisco, the Giants were scheduled to send Gaylord Perry against Denny Lemaster of the Braves in an afternoon game.

Pinson was the Reds' hero for the second straight night as Cincinnati played its third consecutive extra inning game.

His triple drove in Art Shamsky, who had walked and Tommy Harper, who had singled. It was Pinson, who stroked a single in the 13th inning Thursday night to beat the Dodgers.

Oliva Hits Two HR's Gets Credit For One

Tony Oliva hit his first home run twice and he made sure the second one counted.

The Minnesota outfielder hit a long blast in the third inning of the Twins' 12-4 loss to Detroit Friday night and was happily romping around the bases when — what's this? — he ran right past Cesar Tovar, who for reasons best known to himself, had stopped between first and second., Oliva was out.

But in the ninth, after a 58-minute rain delay, Tony hit a towering shot into the third deck in right field. He knew this one would be good because he was the leadoff batter.

Though it was clear than Oliva had to be called out for passing Tovar, it took some searching of the rule book to clear up the rest of the situation.

Umpire John Stevens allowed Tovar to score, ruling that all he had to do was touch all the bases. Official scorer George Cantor reasoned that since Oliva did get to first base, he should get a single and a run batted-in.

In other American League games, Boston beat New York 6-1, California edged Cleveland 6-5, Washington nudged Chicago 4-3 and Kansas City took Baltimore 3-1.

Detroit scored seven times in the fourth inning, three runs coming on a homer by Jim Northrup. Al Kaline and Ray Oyler drove in two runs each for the Tigers, and Denny McLain was the winning pitcher.

Bill Rohr went the distance against the Yankees again, the only run off him coming when Elston Howard singled in Bill Robinson in the eighth. Howard spoiled Rohr's no-hit bid with a two-out single in the ninth a week ago. Dalton Jones homered for the Red Sox.

Jim Fregosi homered with two out in the ninth, also driving in pinch runner Don Wallace and giving the Angels their victory. Cleveland had gone ahead in the eighth on doubles by Leon Wagner and Duke Sims. Chuck Hinton and Fred Whitfield homered for the Indians.

Ken Harrelson's bases-loaded, two-out single in the ninth drove in Washington's winning runs. Pete Ward hit his third homer for the Sox and Tommie Agee also homered.

Five doubles and Jim Gosger's homer led the Athletics to victory. Jim (Catfish) Hunter held the Orioles to four hits and struck out eight before getting relief help from Jack Aker in the ninth.

SHS Golf

By Arnie

The golfers of Sikeston high will journey to Cape Girardeau Monday to meet the Cape Central Tigers. A varsity and junior varsity match will be played.

The meet is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. at the Cape Girardeau country club, which has recently opened a new nine holes. The two matches will be played over the entire 18 holes.

The starting line-up for Sikeston's varsity squad will probably remain the same as it was for last Thursday's match against Caruthersville. In "B" team competition a few Sikeston boys will see action for the first time this year. Coach Gene Dawson's squad will total 13 boys for Monday's trip.

The Bulldogs will be shooting for their sixth straight win of the year against only one defeat. The Tiger's record for the year is 2-2.

The SHS golfers are in their fifth season and have never defeated the Tigers on the Cape course. But the Dogs are ready and will be trying hard for an upset.

Conference Track Meet Rescheduled

Yesterday's scheduled running of the Northern Division conference track meet was postponed by rain.

The meet has been rescheduled for Tuesday afternoon and evening. The preliminaries begin at 4 p.m. with the finals starting at 7:30 p.m.

Charleston and Kennett are favorites to win the meet. Cape Central is defending champion.

The Richest Man In Babylon

By George S. Clason

" 'Mark you well my words, for if you do not you will fail to grasp the truth that I will tell you, and you will think that your night's work has been in vain.'

"Then he looked at me shrewdly from under his shaggy brows and said in a low, forceful tone, 'I found the road to wealth when I decided that a part of all I earned was mine to keep. And so will you.'

"Then he continued to look at me with a glance that I could feel pierce me but said no more.

" 'Is that all?' I asked.

" 'That was sufficient to change the heart of a sheep herder into the heart of a money lender,' he replied.

" 'But all I earn is mine to keep, is it not?' I demanded.

" 'Far from it,' replied. 'Do you not pay the garment-maker? Do you not pay the sandal-maker? Do you not pay for the things you eat? Can you live in Babylon without spending? What have you to show for your earnings of the past month? What for the past year? Fool! You pay to everyone but yourself. Dullard, you labor for others. As well be a slave and work for what your master gives you to eat and wear. If you did keep for yourself one-tenth of all you earn, how much would you have in ten years?"

"My knowledge of the numbers did not forsake me, and I answered, 'As much as I earn in one year.'

" 'You speak but half the truth,' he retorted. 'Every gold piece you save is a slave to work for you. Every copper it earns is its child that also can earn for you. IF you would become wealthy, then what you save must earn, and its children must earn, that all may help to give to you the abundance you crave.

" 'You think I cheat you for your long night's work,' he continued, 'but I am paying you a thousand times over if you have the intelligence to grasp the truth I offer you.

" 'A PART OF ALL YOU EARN IS YOURS TO KEEP. It should not be less than a tenth no matter how little you earn. It can be as much more as you can afford. Pay yourself first. Do not buy from the clothes-maker and the sandal-maker more than you can pay out of the rest and still have enough for food and charity and penace to the gods.

" 'Wealth, like a tree, grows from a tiny seed. The first copper you save is the seed from which your tree of wealth shall grow. The sooner you plant that seed the sooner shall the tree grow. And the more faithfully you nourish and water the tree with consistent savings, the sooner may you bask in contentment beneath its shade.'

"So saying, he took his tablets and went away.

"I thought much about what he had said to me, and it seemed reasonable. So I decided that I would try it. Each time I was paid I took one from each ten pieces of copper and hid it away. And strange as it may seem, I was no shorter of funds than before. I noticed little difference as I managed to get along without it. But often I was tempted, as my hoard began to grow, to spend it for some of the good things the merchants displayed, brought by camels and ships from the land of the Phoenicians. But I wisely refrained.

RECOGNIZE THE FACE when it's not surrounded by her two cohorts, Peter and Paul? It's Mary Finestein of the singing group, "Peter, Paul and Mary," at home with her two children, Erika, 7, and Alicia, nine months.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE POKER-FACED UNDERTAKER

Mr. Grimm was a hard-hearted undertaker whose disposition was stiffer than his recently departed customers. Consequently, when the Widow Brown telephoned to say that she would be unable to pay him promptly for her husband's funeral, he donned his black stove-pipe hat and went to see her. The only one he found at home, however, was the widow's sister Marie who had just arrived from out-of-town.

Pounding his palm, the irate undertaker demanded immediate payment for the contemplated funeral. Sister Marie, however, had no money. The result? The poker-faced undertaker went out to his hearse, fetched the defunct body of Mr. Brown and left it sitting upright on the living room couch.

As it developed, the sudden appearance of the late Mr. Brown, sitting with his legs crossed in the living room, was too much for Marie. Passing out as if she was the one who was dead, she later sued the undertaker for assault.

"He assaulted me with my brother-in-law's body," she complained to a judge. "He scared me half to death with it."

"There was no reason to be afraid," retorted the undertaker. "The fact is, a girl may be safer with a dead man than a live one. A corpse can't hurt anybody."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require the money-minded undertaker pay Marie for assault?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there can be no assault without a threat to do physical harm. In this case, the undertaker in no way threatened Marie with such physical harm.

(Based upon a 1923 Illinois Supreme Court Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

Marking a check "Paid in Full," generally, has no legal effect. However, if the amount owed is in disagreement, and the check is marked: "Paid in full with regard to the disputed amount," then, if the check is accepted and deposited and/or cashed, the obligation for which the check is given will normally be deemed to have been wiped out.

Morley CAA Notes Progress

MORLEY -- The Central Scott County CAA board met for a business meeting Tuesday night, at the neighborhood service center.

Following the board meeting the area meeting was held with about 40 present.

Elbert Clark, president of CAA, presided. The co-ordinator, Mrs. Bill Anderson, gave the progress report for the month and a report on the thrift shop. The Thrift Shop aides are Mrs. Mary Jefferson and Mrs. Nell Kindred. Mrs. Jefferson told the group how she enjoyed working in the thrift shop mending, washing, and ironing clothes which are given to low income families.

Mrs. Joe Davis gave a report on the sewing room. Many volunteers come in each day and sew, making quilts and new garments which are sold at a low price. The money is used to buy more material for more clothes.

Mrs. Phillip Newman told of the progress of the children who attend the romper room.

The Riverside Regional Library of Jackson has added 300 books to the center library. These books will be picked up every few months and new ones brought to replace them.

The coordinator met with the Morley town board Monday night to discuss the neighborhood youth corps program, a summer program that will hire six junior or senior boys and girls who would like to work for three months. The board decided to work with the center on this program.

The coordinators of Scott county met in the neighborhood service center in Scott City, Wednesday morning with director, Bill Clair of the DAEOC board in Portageville, Chip Schmerbauch and J. A. Cronister. Clair reported that the money had been funded for the family service center.

Applications for one full-time aid and one half time janitor are being taken at the center. Anyone with a $3000 or less net income may apply. The janitor should be 62 or older.

A Junior Girl Scout troop was organized in Morley, with 15 girls joining. They will meet each Tuesday in the center from 3:30 until 5 p.m. The leader is Mrs. Glen Gregory, assisted by Mrs. James Straud. The girls are Vickie Reeves, Betty Ann Johnson, Lisa Gregory, Debbie Jo Hale, Elaine Emmerson, Pamela Holt, Leah Johnson, Sandra McArthur, Dorothy Walker, Shirley Walker, Evelyn Bucker, Virginia Gadsberry, Kay Boley, and Pamela Carrow.

HOG MARKET HAS BEST ADVANCE IN OVER TWO MONTHS

National Stock Yards, Ill. - Live stock markets, with a few exceptions, closed the week on a steady to stronger basis, according to St. Louis Producers Live Stock Marketing Association. Salable cattle, calves, hogs and sheep of 55,545 head were up from week ago and year ago arrivals of 53,281 and 50,962 head, respectively.

Barrow and gilt hogs dipped to a new two-year low early, but rallied late to close the period mostly 50¢ higher. Friday's top of $18.75 cwt. compared with peaks of $18.10 a week ago and a year earlier high of $23.00 cwt. Sows figured steady to 50¢ down, the decline mostly on weights over 400 lbs. Sales late were downward from $15.75.

In cattle slaughter steers regained an early loss to finish about steady, while heifers were steady to 25¢ lower, the best demand for weights 800 to 1000 lbs. Cows sold strong to 50¢ higher, instances up $1, and bulls remained steady.

High Choice and Prime 950 to 1300-lb. steers $24 to $24.-50; Choice 900 to 1250 lbs. $23.25 to $24.25; mixed Good and Choice $22.50 to $23.75; Good $22 to $23.25; Standard 950 to 1250 lbs. $20.50 to $21.-50.

A few loads and small lots Choice heifers, some with an end of Prime 900 to 1050 lbs. $23.25 to $23.50; Choice 750 to 1000 lbs. $22.50 to $23; a few 650 to 750 lbs. $22 to $22.-50; Good and low Choice 750 to 950 lbs. $21.50 to $22.50; 600 to 750 lbs. $20.50 to $22. Commercial cows late $15.50 to $18, Utility $15.50 to $18.50, a few Holsteins $19.

Feeder steers proved fairly active and steady to 50¢ lower, most decline on weights over 500 lbs. Heifers were scarce and steady to strong. Choice 525 to 500 lb. steers $25.75 to $27.70; 500 to 700 lbs. $23.-50 to $25.75.

Veal calves sold on a firm basis, choice 180 to 250 lbs. $32.00 to $35.00, a few $36.-00. Advancing for the second straight week, slaughter lambs gained 50¢ in response to a higher dressed trade. Choice 80 to 100 lb. springers $24.00 to $25.00; Choice 80 to 110 lb. woolskins $22.00 to $23.50. Slaughter ewes $5-$8.50.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

Behold, I make all things new. (Revelation 21:5)

PRAYER: O Thou omnipotent God, humbly we ask Thee to keep our hearts in open readiness to obey Thy will, that the Holy Spirit may effect His transforming work in our lives and point out to us new horizons. We give Thee thanks for the unfathomed merits of Christ Jesus, in whose name we pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I have a 20 - year - old son who has Cooley's anemia. Because of this illness he has not grown to normal size. He looks like an eight or nine - year -old child.

The illness did not affect his mind. He is a very alert young man -- beautifully creative and unusually talented. The problem is that people come over when we are shopping and ask why "the little boy" isn't in school. I know they don't mean any harm, but my son resents being treated like a child. I wish I knew what to say. My son would like some advice on the subject, too.

Now that he is driving a car he is often stopped by people who want to know how such a young child obtained a license. How should we respond to inquisitive people? -- STUMPED

Dear Stumped: Both you and your son should be as casual as possible. Simply say, "He is not in school because he has finished his schooling." It is not necessary to mention the illness or make any defensive statements. A sensible person will figure out that the young man has a growth problem and go on about his business.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the world's lousiest cook. We are in a low income bracket, which adds to the problem because my husband gets furious when I have to throw out food, which is like almost every night.

I have really tried to make decent meals but I am just a miserable cook. Everything I make turns out tasteless or too highly seasoned -- undercooked or burned. My cakes fall and my pies have to be chiseled out of the pan. I can't even get jello to jell.

I am not a kid, Ann, I am 26 years old. My cooking is ruining our marriage. Help! Please! -- DESPERATE

Dear Desperate: Anyone who can read can cook.

Buy a beginner's book on how to prepare simple meals. Follow the book to the letter. Make sure you have the right cooking equipment to start with (the book will tell you what you need). If you really want to be a good cook, nothing can stop you.

Dear Ann Landers: I didn't like your answer to the woman whose mother - in - law kept asking her to get out of the picture because she wanted snapshots of the "four generations." I think the mother-in-law hates the woman and this was just one of the mean things she did to hurt her.

For years my grandmother has been using tricks to keep my mother out of family pictures. She says, "I want just the children in the picture now". Then she hands the camera to my mother and says, "I'd like a picture of me with Joan, or Jeffery, or Susan."

My mother has taken so much abuse from my grandmother it is a rotten shame. I think you should be more sympathetic to women who have miserable mothers - in - law. -- OLDER NOW

Dear Older: Life is rough for women who have miserable mothers - in - law, but daughters - in - law can be miserable too.

I must deal with the facts as I see them, and the woman who wrote made an enormous issue over something which I felt was unimportant, and I told her so.

When romantic glances turn to warm embraces is it love or chemistry? Send for the booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell the Difference," by Ann Landers. Enclose a long, stamped, self - addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

RECOGNIZE THE FACE when it's not surrounded by her two cohorts, Peter and Paul? It's Mary Finestein of the singing group, "Peter, Paul and Mary," at home with her two children, Erika, 7, and Alicia, nine months.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE POKER-FACED UNDERTAKER

Mr. Grimm was a hard-hearted undertaker whose disposition was stiffer than his recently departed customers. Consequently, when the Widow Brown telephoned to say that she would be unable to pay him promptly for her husband's funeral, he donned his black stove-pipe hat and went to see her. The only one he found at home, however, was the widow's sister Marie who had just arrived from out-of-town.

Pounding his palm, the irate undertaker demanded immediate payment for the contemplated funeral. Sister Marie, however, had no money. The result? The poker-faced undertaker went out to his hearse, fetched the defunct body of Mr. Brown and left it sitting upright on the living room couch.

As it developed, the sudden appearance of the late Mr. Brown, sitting with his legs crossed in the living room, was too much for Marie. Passing out as if she was the one who was dead, she later sued the undertaker for assault.

"He assaulted me with my brother-in-law's body," she complained to a judge. "He scared me half to death with it."

"There was no reason to be afraid," retorted the undertaker. "The fact is, a girl may be safer with a dead man than a live one. A corpse can't hurt anybody."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require the money-minded undertaker pay Marie for assault?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there can be no assault without a threat to do physical harm. In this case, the undertaker in no way threatened Marie with such physical harm.

(Based upon a 1923 Illinois Supreme Court Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

Marking a check "Paid in Full," generally, has no legal effect. However, if the amount owed is in disagreement, and the check is marked: "Paid in full with regard to the disputed amount," then, if the check is accepted and deposited and/or cashed, the obligation for which the check is given will normally be deemed to have been wiped out.

Morley CAA Notes Progress

MORLEY -- The Central Scott County CAA board met for a business meeting Tuesday night, at the neighborhorhood service center.

Following the board meeting the area meeting was held with about 40 present.

Elbert Clark, president of CAA, presided. The co-ordinator, Mrs. Bill Anderson, gave the progress report for the month and a report on the thrift shop. The Thrift Shop aides are Mrs. Mary Jefferson and Mrs. Nell Kindred. Mrs. Jefferson told the group how she enjoyed working in the thrift shop mending, washing, and ironing clothes which are given to low income families.

Mrs. Joe Davis gave a report on the sewing room. Many volunteers come in each day and sew, making quilts and new garments which are sold at a low price. The money is used to buy more material for more clothes.

Mrs. Phillip Newman told of the progress of the children who attend the romper room.

The Riverside Regional Library of Jackson has added 300 books to the center library. These books will be picked up every few months and new ones brought to replace them.

The coordinator met with the Morley town board Monday night to discuss the neighborhood youth corps program, a summer program that will hire six junior or senior boys and girls who would like to work for three months. The board decided to work with the center on this program.

The coordinators of Scott county met in the neighborhood service center in Scott City, Wednesday morning with director, Bill Clair of the DAEOC board in Portageville, Chip Schmerbauch and J. A. Cronister. Clair reported that the money had been funded for the family service center.

Applications for one full-time aid and one half time janitor are being taken at the center. Anyone with a $3000 or less net income may apply. The janitor should be 62 or older.

A Junior Girl Scout troop was organized in Morley, with 15 girls joining. They will meet each Tuesday in the center from 3:30 until 5 p.m. The leader is Mrs. Glen Gregory, assisted by Mrs. James Straud. The girls are Vickie Reeves, Betty Ann Johnson, Lisa Gregory, Debbie Jo Hale, Elaine Emmerson, Pamela Holt, Leah Johnson, Sandra McArthur, Dorothy Walker, Shirley Walker, Evelyn Bucker, Virginia Gadsberry, Kay Boley, and Pamela Carrow.

HOG MARKET HAS BEST ADVANCE IN OVER TWO MONTHS

National Stock Yards, Ill. - Live stock markets, with a few exceptions, closed the week on a steady to stronger basis, according to St. Louis Producers Live Stock Marketing Association. Salable cattle, calves, hogs and sheep of 55,545 head were up from week ago and year ago arrivals of 53,281 and 50,962 head, respectively.

Barrow and gilt hogs dipped to a new two-year low early, but rallied late to close the period mostly 50¢ higher. Friday's top of $18.75 cwt. compared with peaks of $18.10 a week ago and a year earlier high of $23.00 cwt. Sows figured steady to 50¢ down, the decline mostly on weights over 400 lbs. Sales late were downward from $15.75.

In cattle slaughter steers regained an early loss to finish about steady, while heifers were steady to 25¢ lower, the best demand for weights 800 to 1000 lbs. Cows sold strong to 50¢ higher, instances up $1, and bulls remained steady.

High Choice and Prime 950 to 1300-lb. steers $24 to $24.-50; Choice 900 to 1250 lbs. $23.25 to $24.25; mixed Good and Choice $22.50 to $23.75; Good $22 to $23.25; Standard 950 to 1250 lbs. $20.50 to $21.-50.

A few loads and small lots Choice heifers, some with an end of Prime 900 to 1050 lbs. $23.25 to $23.50; Choice 750 to 1000 lbs. $22.50 to $23; a few 650 to 750 lbs. $22 to $22.-50; Good and low Choice 750 to 950 lbs. $21.50 to $22.50; 600 to 750 lbs. $20.50 to $22. Commercial cows late $15.50 to $18, Utility $15.50 to $18.50, a few Holsteins $19.

Feeder steers proved fairly active and steady to 50¢ lower, most decline on weights over 500 lbs. Heifers were scarce and steady to strong. Choice 725 to 500 lb. steers $25.75 to $27.70; 500 to 700 lbs. $23.-50 to $25.75.

Veal calves sold on a firm basis, choice 180 to 250 lbs. $32.00 to $35.00, a few $36.-00. Advancing for the second straight week, slaughter lambs gained 50¢ in response to a higher dressed trade. Choice 80 to 100 lb. springers $24.00 to $25.00; Choice 80 to 110 lb. woolskins $22.00 to $23.50. Slaughter ewes $5-$8.50.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

Behold, I make all things new. (Revelation 21:5)

PRAYER: O Thou omnipotent God, humbly we ask Thee to keep our hearts in open readiness to obey Thy will, that the Holy Spirit may effect His transforming work in our lives and point out to us new horizons. We give Thee thanks for the unfathomed merits of Christ Jesus, in whose name we pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I have a 20 - year - old son who has Cooley's anemia. Because of this illness he has not grown to normal size. He looks like an eight or nine - year -old child.

The illness did not affect his mind. He is a very alert young man -- beautifully creative and unusually talented. The problem is that people come over when we are shopping and ask why "the little boy" isn't in school. I know they don't mean any harm, but my son resents being treated like a child. I wish I knew what to say. My son would like some advice on the subject, too.

Now that he is driving a car he is often stopped by people who want to know how such a young child obtained a license. How should we respond to inquisitive people? -- STUMPED

Dear Stumped: Both you and your son should be as casual as possible. Simply say, "He is not in school because he has finished his schooling." It is not necessary to mention the illness or make any defensive statements. A sensible person will figure out that the young man has a growth problem and go on about his business.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the world's lousiest cook. We are in a low income bracket, which adds to the problem because my husband gets furious when I have to throw out food, which is like almost every night.

I have really tried to make decent meals but I am just a miserable cook. Everything I make turns out tasteless or too highly seasoned -- undercooked or burned. My cakes fall and my pies have to be chiseled out of the pan. I can't even get jello to jell.

I am not a kid, Ann, I am 26 years old. My cooking is ruining our marriage. Help! Please! -- DESPERATE

Dear Desperate: Anyone who can read can cook.

Buy a beginner's book on how to prepare simple meals. Follow the book to the letter. Make sure you have the right cooking equipment to start with (the book will tell you what you need). If you really want to be a good cook, nothing can stop you.

Dear Ann Landers: I didn't like your answer to the woman whose mother - in - law kept asking her to get out of the picture because she wanted snapshots of the "four generations." I think the mother-in-law hates the woman and this was just one of the mean things she did to hurt her.

For years my grandmother has been using tricks to keep my mother out of family pictures. She says, "I want just the children in the picture now". Then she hands the camera to my mother and says, "I'd like a picture of me with Joan, or Jeffery, or Susan."

My mother has taken so much abuse from my grandmother it is a rotten shame. I think you should be more sympathetic to women who have miserable mothers - in - law. -- OLDER NOW

Dear Older: Life is rough for women who have miserable mothers - in - law, but daughters - in - law can be miserable too.

I must deal with the facts as I see them, and the woman who wrote made an enormous issue over something which I felt was unimportant, and I told her so.

When romantic glances turn to warm embraces is it love or chemistry? Send for the booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell the Difference," by Ann Landers. Enclose a long, stamped, self - addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Plant Set for Sedalia

SEDALIA (AP) -- Plans for a multi-million dollar plant for the manfuacture of electrical conductors, cables and industrial wire were announced Wednesday by the Olin Mathieson Corp.

The plant will be built on a 60-acre tract about three miles west of Sedalia.

Johnsongrass Can Be Controlled in Soybeans

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. -- Johnsongrass in soybeans reduces yields; competes with soybeans for light, space, plant food and moisture; interferes with harvesting; and reduces soybean quality.

Early season control of Johnsongrass in soybeans helps to produce maximum yield. Soybean yields have been reduced 50 per cent or more where heavy infestations are present, according to Arkansas research.

The plants spread by underground rhizomes and seed. They usually grow best on deep, fertile, moist soil; however, they may be found growing under most soil conditions and on several soil types. It is best to try and control the Johnsongrass plant before it begins producing secondary rhizomes which bear shoots that develop into above - ground vegetative growth and before it stores up additional food reserve in the rhizomes. The secondary rhizomes start forming underground in the spring about three weeks after plant emergence or when plants are from about 8 to 18 inches tall.

Early Johnsongrass infestations from rhizomes and seed may be reduced by cultural methods and herbicide applicators. Where the cultural or preplant herbicide method of control is used, a grower must follow with an effective grass preemergence herbicide and cultivation for lasting effect. Dowpon herbicide applied as a preplant spring treatment when Johnsongrass plants are about 10 inches, followed with trifluralin as a preemergence application, has effectively controlled Johnsongrass control occur, so a continued effort is necessary to keep the Johnsongrass under control.

The cultural method of control consists of several diskings (6 to 10) at four to six day intervals prior to planting. Plant soybeans around June 5-15, earlier if possible after the disking treatments. Start the disking treatment as early as possible after Johnsongrass emergence. Try to begin by the last week in April so all disking treatments can be accomplished.

The herbicide treatment is made to the young rapidly growing Johnsongrass plants before soybeans are planted. Dowpon may be used at the rate of 5 pounds per acre. Apply to Johnsongrass when it is about 6 to 10 inches tall. Disk the field three to six days after treatment. Soybeans can be planted two and one-half weeks after field has been disked.

Ground Application: Mix the recommended rate of Dowpon with 20 to 30 gallons of water plus one-half pint of surfactant (wetting agent).

Airplane Application: Mix the recommended rate of Dowpon with five or more gallons of water plus one-half pint of surfactant.

Uniform Johnsongrass growth at time of application is important. An initial early disking of the soil just as the plants are emerging is often helpful in stimulating early emergence and obtaining uniform growth. Johnsongrass should be sprayed when temperatures are high (above 60 to 70 degrees) and likely to remain so for a few days. The plants will need to be growing rapidly so they can readily absorb the Dowpon.

Rain within a few hours after treatment may enhance the movement of the chemical to the rhizomes. Normally, very little leaf kill or browning of the plant will be noticed immediately after treatment. In fact, green leaves may remain on the plants up to disking time (three to six days after treatment). But, the combination of Dowpon plus disking breaks down the food reserve in the rhizomes and causes them to dry up. Do not neglect the disking treatment. However, by this time complete movement of the chemical to the rhizomes should have taken place. Thorough coverage is necessary and a wetting agent is used to increase distribution and penetration.

Additional diskings may be used during the period between the first disking after treatment and the planting of the soybeans. The additional disking will aid in the breaking up and exposing the rhizomes to drying conditions and the killing of germinating Johnsongrass seedlings. Additional diskings will help incorporate the Dowpon with moist soil for further breakdown, especially in the absense of rainfall from time of treatment to time of planting in low organic matter soils.

Treatments after Dowpon for follow-up Johnsongrass control consist of a preemergence herbicide application which may be helpful in controlling Johnsongrass seedlings, spot oiling of Johnsongrass clumps (or directional spraying at base of the soybean plant) and conventional cultivation.

Keep Johnsongrass from going to seed or producing additional rhizomes and the battle is nearly won. Although it is no easy job to keep Johnsongrass under control, it must be controlled for maximum soybean yields.

Forecasts of Weather 85 Per Cent Accurate

Leonard F. Hand

PORTAGEVILLE - People sometimes misunderstand the discomfort of the meteorologist caught in an unexpected weather change that brings three inches of snow instead of the flurries he predicted. Some see this as proof that the weather forecast is not perfect.

The surprising feature is that this proof is considered necessary. Meteorologists are being realistic, not humble or apologetic, when they suggest that forecast accuracy may be about 85 per cent.

Meteorology, like astronomy and physics, is a science. Even in those related scientific fields modern tools have led to recent discoveries that have unleashed the secrets of atomic energy and revised theories of the origin of the universe. Agricultural scientists are not yet masters of their field, else why would they conduct research.

All science is a questioning, curious, incomplete but increasingly knowledgeable investigation of man and his environment. Meteorology is a fast growing infant in the total field of science. Progress in the past 25 years has practically reformed forecast techniqes. Imaginative plans for the future offer possibilities for improved accuracy, longer range outlooks, and some measure of weather control.

Because we realize that forecasts frequently require revisions to meet changing conditions, forecasters are constantly examining hourly weather reports from hundreds of spots in the nation and around the northern hemisphere for keys to the nature of storm patterns. One function of the specialized forecast program and the ESSA Weather Wire Service established in the Missouri Bootheel is to bring updated forecasts to you as rapidly as possible.

Forecasts are made to provide the best possible advance information for millions of people affected by weather. They are never intended as evidence of our mastery over nature.

House Drops Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- At the sponsor's request the Missouri House Thursday struck from its calendar a bill to abolish the death penalty.

Rep. Raymond Howard, D-St. Louis, the bill's sponsor, said support for his legislation was growing but he did not believe the state was yet ready for its enactment.

He asked instead that the House pass a bill calling for a commission to consider the need for such legislation and whether capital punishment is a deterrent to major crime.

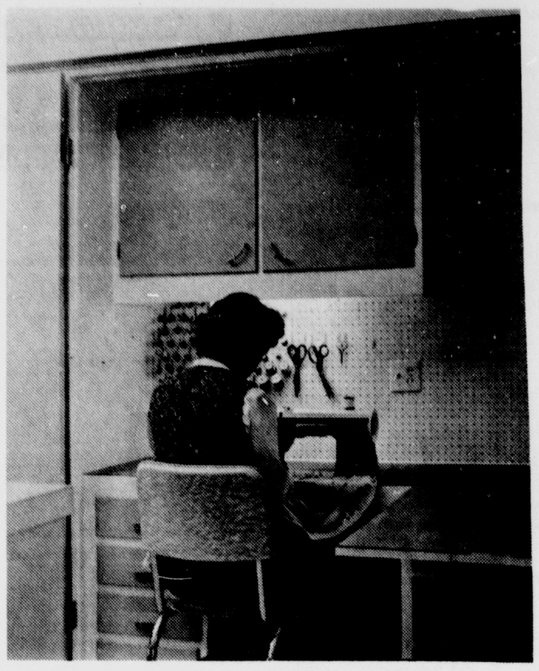
The House immediately began to debate that bill.

Offered by Rep. Jack J. Schramm, D-University City, it could set up a commission of 15 to study the problem of capital punishment. Membership would include five senators, five House members and five citizens appointed by the governor.

They could not go out of the state in pursuing their investigation.

Opponents called it a waste of state money.

The bill was advanced on a vote of 85-56, three more than the number needed for final passage later.



A HOME OFFICE-SEWING CENTER, as in this Missouri home, is an excellent use of space, says Miss Louise Woodruff, University of Missouri extension housing specialist at Columbia.

Sew With Cotton Winners

by Mary Ann Finch
Extension Area Home Economist

CHAFFEE: The elementary school was the setting Saturday for the annual Sew With Cotton judging and fashion show. The purpose of the contest is to encourage the "homemaker of tomorrow" to look her best in a quality garment she has sewn of quality cotton.

The contest is for all girls entered in FHA, 4-H, or Home Economics classes throughout the Scott county area. Each contestant is placed in a class according to age, sewing experience, and garment con struction. The garments must be made of 100% cotton.

There are five classes. The girls class for girls age 10, 11, and 12 includes skirt and blouse ensembles; the Junior Miss Class (for first year girls) includes ages 13, 14, and 15 girls. This group includes skirts and blouses or school dresses. The Junior Miss Class, ages 13, 14, and 15 and their entry is a better dress. The next group is Misses Class for ages 16 and up enrolled in high school. They may enter suits, formals, or better dresses. The fifth class is sportswear class ages 13 to 18 and they may enter beach wear, shorts, or slacks with shirt.

In the event Saturday were 50 young ladies representing many of the 4-H clubs, and schools in the county. There were entries from all of the represented towns in this county.

The winners from Scott county were: GIRLS CLASS -- Kim Sailer, JeKaren Biller, and Mariesa Crader. JUNIOR MISS (first year) -- Prissy Nunnelee, Nancy Johnson, and Carolyn Ashmore. JUNIOR MISS -- Jana Stroup, Bernice Landewee, and Vicki Gately. MISSES CLASS -- Mary Ellen Seibert (better dress) Saundra Gosche (suit), and Cindy Slusher (formal). SPORTSWEAR-- Karen Sue Harris, Connie Heisserer, and Mary Stabel.

Three winners are selected from each class to compete in the district judging to be held at the Poplar Bluff Junior High School Saturday, April 22.

County Chairman for the event this year were Miss Carolyn Anderson, Chaffee High School home economics instructor, and Miss Mary Ann Finch, Extension Area Home Economist. Chairman of the fashion show held Saturday was Mrs. Edna Frances. The narrater for the fashion show was Miss Janet Joyce of Oran High School. Helping to stage the fashion show and instruct the girls on modeling were Miss Janet Kielhofner, Oran High School, and Miss Judy Stroup, Kelly High School.

Judges of the event were Mrs. Beulah Nichols, Extension Area Home Economist; Mrs. Norbert Halter, Charleston; Mrs. Norbert Rowling, Charleston; and Mrs. John Joe Stricker.

After the show was completed, the county winners were presented gift certificates from the Scott County Ginners. The Gins participating were E. P. Coleman Gins, Sikeston Gin, McMullian Gin, Vanduser Gin, and Farmers Gin.

FARM LABOR BULLETIN

STATE SUMMARY

Heavy rains over most of Missouri the past week brought farm work to a standstill.

St. Louis and several Southeast Missouri offices are recruiting workers for the Florida citrus harvest. Positive recruitment starts next week in 22 colleges in Missouri for the food processing industry.

An interesting sidelight on the report received from Kansas City which states that due to the scarcity of farm help, a paraplegic handicap was referred to a farm job and after a week's trial the employer was very pleased and amazed, as the man could handle a chain saw, a post hole digger plus driving a tractor and other chores. The man was, perhaps, a little slow but his work was outstanding.

St. Joseph, Marvyille, Lexington and Marshall are starting their recruitment for crews to do corn and milo rogueing and corn detasseling. About seventeen crews will be needed this summer.

Present conditions indicate that the strawberry harvest in the Monett, Kennett and Sikeston areas will be underway about May 1 with the Northwest Missouri strawberry harvest ten days to two weeks later.

Farm hand graduation at Marshall will be May 26 with a new class starting May 29.

130 openings for year - round farm hands and 68 seasonal agriculture openings were reported this week, with 34 year-round and 52 seasonal placements made the past week.

SOUTHEAST

Sikeston: 202 South Kingshighway - Telephone: Granite 1-2731. Land preparation practically completed. More moisture is needed for cotton planting and some fields planted in corn will require a rain before coming to a stand. We are continuing to recruit labor for strawberry picking for local and out-of-area growers, citrus pickers for Florida and in-plant workers for asparagus for Illinois. Farm hand openings are mostly for good equipment operators, wages $50 and up, with housing furnished.

Farm Labor Information Station & Rest Camp, Route #2, Sikeston. The Camp served 96 migrants the past week, 16 were going to Indiana, 48 to Michigan and 32 to Ohio.

Caruthersville: 112 West Fifth Street - Telephone: Edison 3-2416. Very little farm activities this week as rain the first of the week and again last night kept the fields to wet to work. A few farmers have planted some cotton. Cotton planting will get into full swing as soon as the fields become dry enough to work. No demand for farm workers at this time.

Labor Mobility Office, Poplar Bluff. We have not received our listing of the Mobility applicants available for relocation from the Mobility FPR's, therefore, we cannot submit the listing of available applicants.

West Plains: 111 Walnut Street - Telephone: 256-3158. Area received welcome rain Thursday. Local orders still remain slow. Have made two referrals of farm hands to Oskaloosa, Iowa, area. Available applicants on file at present have limited background and may need MDTA training to qualify for good farm jobs.

Cape Girardeau: 231 North Main Street-Telephone: Edgewater 5-6666. Demand for seasonal farm workers has been light. A shortage of qualified farm hands for year-round farm work still exists. Need four farm families for immediate employment. Wages $45 to $50 per week, housing furnished at no cost to worker.

Poplar Bluff: 211 Pine Street-Telephone: Sunset 5-0606. Rain has fallen over this five county area, which was badly needed. Farmers will be able to return to the fields in about two days. Some corn has been planted to date. Farm orders are coming in very slow this spring. Most farmers in this area are hiring older men for tractor driving and farm work. No labor available for referral to other areas at the present time.

Kennett: 405 St. Francis Street - Telephone: Tuxedo 8-3184. The peach crop in the Campbell area looks real good, the growers report no damage from the recent freezing weather. Several farmers in the south end of the County have planted early cotton of which some cotton is breaking through the ground. Approximately two inches of much needed general rain has fallen this week. With weather somewhat cooler than normal, work in fields has been very limited, yet no damage reported to crops. The strawberries are coming on fast and look very good. Some field spraying of wheat is going on, and the wheat crop to this date is better than has been in several years if not the best. The labor supply is meeting the demand at this time.

Wheat, Barley Are Improving

By Leo A. Duclos

PORTAGEVILLE - In the early part of April aphids began to show up in wheat and barley in Northeast Missouri counties. Flernoy Jones and Dr. Armon Keaster, entomologists with the University of Missouri Delta center, inspected a large number of fields and found several fields with aphid populations large enough that spraying was recommended.

Since the yellow drarf virus of small grains is transmitted by aphids, there was much concern for this disease. Dr. Einar Palm, extension plant pathologist, University of Missouri, Columbia, inspected research plots of Dr. Leo Duclos here at the Delta Center April 4 and noted that much of the barley show symtoms of yellow dwarf. The yellow dwarf expression in barley is bright, yellow leaves, heavy tillering and dwarfing of plants. The expression in wheat is little to no yellowing of leaves, no increased tillering and short heads.

Most of the barley grown in this area is grown under an agreement with Anheuser-Busch. Dr. Paul Hoskins, agronomist with Anheuser-Busch at St. Louis, Dr. Duclos, research geneticist, Delta Center at Portageville, and Dave McCrate, owner of the grain elevator which stored and shipped barley for Anheuser-Busch in the Portageville area made an inspection on April 7 of all the Carstens barley being grown under the agreement. Most of the fields were suffering as a result of aphids, yellow dwarf virus and drought stresses. It was questionable as to whether the crop should be saved or plowed under and land prepared for other crops. However, another inspection of all fields was made Thursday after the rains during the previous weekend and considerable improvement was seen. All fields that were sprayed showed signs of excellent control of aphid and considerably increased plant growth. All the barley will be saved with the possible exception of one or two fields.

Powdery mildew is taking its toll in wheat this year. Several spots along the ends of the field where seeding and fertilizer rates were above normal and early succulent growth occurred, show extreme symptoms of this disease. The wheat in these infected areas will either die or yield will be considerably reduced. Presently, there is no economic means of control recommended for this disease in small grains.

The disease and insect problems this year have been attributed to the mild winter and early spring. Barley and wheat are also expected to mature approximately two weeks early this year which should allow higher yields than in previous years from a full season, soybean crop following small grain.

Farmers should give considerable attention to the barley and wheat during the next few weeks since early occurrance and heavy infestation of armyworm are expected due to the mild winter. Positive identification of the armyworm should be made before spraying since the larvae of many beneficial insects resemble the armyworm.

Weatherman Favors Setting Speed Limits For Road Conditions

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) Traffic safety experts do not pay sufficient attention to need for speed reductions when pavement is wet or icy, weather bureau spokesman says.

R. W. Harms, chief of the Milwaukee Weather Bureau told a 12-state safety conference Thursday that speeds on expressways and interstate highways should be held to 20 miles an hour when pavement is ice-glazed.

Snow, he said, should mean a speed limit of 35 m.p.h., and rain a limit of 50 m.p.h.

"Not enough attention is paid to weather in causing accidents," he said, and laws requring lowered speed are not strict enough.

Rain within a few hours after treatment may enhance the movement of the chemical to the rhizomes. Normally, very little leaf kill or browning of the plant will be noticed immediately after treatment. In fact, green leaves may remain on the plants up to disking time (three to six days after treatment). But, the combination of Dowpon plus disking breaks down the food reserve in the rhizomes and causes them to dry up. Do not neglect the disking treatment. However, by this time complete movement of the chemical to the rhizomes should have taken place. Thorough coverage is necessary and a wetting agent is used to increase distribution and penetration.

Additional diskings may be used during the period between the first disking after treatment and the planting of the soybeans. The additional disking will aid in the breaking up and exposing the rhizomes to drying conditions and the killing of germinating Johnsongrass seedlings. Additional diskings will help incorporate the Dowpon with moist soil for further breakdown, especially in the absense of rainfall from time of treatment to time of planting in low organic matter soils.

Treatments after Dowpon for follow-up Johnsongrass control consist of a preemergence herbicide application which may be helpful in controlling Johnsongrass seedlings, spot oiling of Johnsongrass clumps (or directional spraying at base of the soybean plant) and conventional cultivation.

Keep Johnsongrass from going to seed or producing additional rhizomes and the battle is nearly won. Although it is no easy job to keep Johnsongrass under control, it must be controlled for maximum soybean yields.

Forecasts of Weather 85 Per Cent Accurate

Leonard F. Hand

PORTAGEVILLE - People sometimes misunderstand the discomfort of the meteorologist caught in an unexpected weather change that brings three inches of snow instead of the flurries he predicted. Some see this as proof that the weather forecast is not perfect.

The surprising feature is that this proof is considered necessary. Meteorologists are being realistic, not humble or apologetic, when they suggest that forecast accuracy may be about 85 per cent.

Meteorology, like astronomy and physics, is a science. Even in those related scientific fields modern tools have led to recent discoveries that have unleashed the secrets of atomic energy and revised theories of the origin of the universe. Agricultural scientists are not yet masters of their field, else why would they conduct research.

All science is a questioning, curious, incomplete but increasingly knowledgeable investigation of man and his environment. Meteorology is a fast growing infant in the total field of science. Progress in the past 25 years has practically reformed forecast techniqes. Imaginative plans for the future offer possibilities for improved accuracy, longer range outlooks, and some measure of weather control.

Because we realize that forecasts frequently require revisions to meet changing conditions, forecasters are constantly examining hourly weather reports from hundreds of spots in the nation and around the northern hemisphere for keys to the nature of storm patterns. One function of the specialized forecast program and the ESSA Weather Wire Service established in the Missouri Bootheel is to bring updated forecasts to you as rapidly as possible.

Forecasts are made to provide the best possible advance information for millions of people affected by weather. They are never intended as evidence of our mastery over nature.

House Drops Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- At the sponsor's request the Missouri House Thursday struck from its calendar a bill to abolish the death penalty.

Rep. Raymond Howard, D-St. Louis, the bill's sponsor, said support for his legislation was growing but he did not believe the state was yet ready for its enactment.

He asked instead that the House pass a bill calling for a commission to consider the need for such legislation and whether capital punishment is a deterrent to major crime.

The House immediately began to debate that bill.

Offered by Rep. Jack J. Schramm, D-University City, it could set up a commission of 15 to study the problem of capital punishment. Membership would include five senators, five House members and five citizens appointed by the governor.

They could not go out of the state in pursuing their investigation.

Opponents called it a waste of state money.

The bill was advanced on a vote of 85-56, three more than the number needed for final passage later.

Sew With Cotton Winners

by Mary Ann Finch
Extension Area Home Economist

CHAFFEE: The elementary school was the setting Saturday for the annual Sew With Cotton judging and fashion show. The purpose of the contest is to encourage the "homemaker of tomorrow" to look her best in a quality garment she has sewn of quality cotton.

The contest is for all girls entered in FHA, 4-H, or Home Economics classes throughout the Scott county area. Each contestant is placed in a class according to age, sewing experience, and garment construction. The garments must be made of 100% cotton.

There are five classes. The girls class for girls age 10, 11, and 12 includes skirt and blouse ensembles; the Junior Miss Class (for first year girls) includes ages 13, 14, and 15 girls. This group includes skirts and blouses or school dresses. The Junior Miss Class, ages 13, 14, and 15 and their entry is a better dress. The next group is Misses Class for ages 16 and up enrolled in high school. They may enter suits, formals, or better dresses. The fifth class is sportswear class ages 13 to 18 and they may enter beach wear, shorts, or slacks with shirt.

In the event Saturday were 50 young ladies representing many of the 4-H clubs, and schools in the county. There were entries from all of the represented towns in this county.

The winners from Scott county were: GIRLS CLASS -- Kim Sailer, JeKaren Biler, and Mariesa Crader. JUNIOR MISS (first year) -- Prissy Nunnelee, Nancy Johnson, and Carolyn Ashmore. JUNIOR MISS -- Jana Stroup, Bernice Landewee, and Vicki Gately. MISSES CLASS -- Mary Ellen Seibert (better dress) Saundra Gosche (suit), and Cindy Slusher (formal). SPORTSWEAR--Karen Sue Harris, Connie Heisserer, and Mary Stabel.

Three winners are selected from each class to compete in the district judging to be held at the Poplar Bluff Junior High School Saturday, April 22.

County Chairman for the event this year were Miss Carolyn Anderson, Chaffee High School home economics instructor, and Miss Mary Ann Finch, Extension Area Home Economist. Chairman of the fashion show held Saturday was Mrs. Edna Frances. The narrater for the fashion show was Miss Janet Joyce of Oran High School.

Helping to stage the fashion show and instruct the girls on modeling were Miss Janet Kielhofner, Oran High School, and Miss Judy Stroup, Kelly High School.

Judges of the event were Mrs. Beulah Nichols, Extension Area Home Economist; Mrs. Norbert Halter, Charleston; Mrs. Norbert Rowling, Charleston; and Mrs. John Joe Stricker.

After the show was completed, the county winners were presented gift certificates from the Scott County Ginners. The Gins participating were E. P. Coleman Gins, Sikeston Gin, McMullian Gin, Vanduser Gin, and Farmers Gin.

FARM LABOR BULLETIN

STATE SUMMARY

Heavy rains over most of Missouri the past week brought farm work to a standstill.

St. Louis and several Southeast Missouri offices are recruiting workers for the Florida citrus harvest. Positive recruitment starts next week in 22 colleges in Missouri for the food processing industry.

An interesting sidelight on the report received from Kansas City which states that due to the scarcity of farm help, a paraplegic handicap was referred to a farm job and after a week's trial the employer was very pleased and amazed, as the man could handle a chain saw, a post hole digger plus driving a tractor and other chores. The man was, perhaps, a little slow but his work was outstanding.

St. Joseph, Marvyille, Lexington and Marshall are starting their recruitment for crews to do corn and milo rogueing and corn detasseling. About seventeen crews will be needed this summer.

Present conditions indicate that the strawberry harvest in the Monett, Kennett and Sikeston areas will be underway about May 1 with the Northwest Missouri strawberry harvest ten days to two weeks later.

Farm hand graduation at Marshall will be May 26 with a new class starting May 29.

130 openings for year - round farm hands and 68 seasonal agriculture openings were reported this week, with 34 year-round and 52 seasonal placements made the past week.

SOUTHEAST

Sikeston: 202 South Kingshighway - Telephone: Granite 1-2731. Land preparation practically completed. More moisture is needed for cotton planting and some fields planted in corn will require a rain before coming to a stand. We are continuing to recruit labor for strawberry picking for local and out-of-area growers, citrus pickers for Florida and in-plant workers for asparagus for Illinois. Farm hand openings are mostly for good equipment operators, wages $50 and up, with housing furnished.

Farm Labor Information Station & Rest Camp, Route #2, Sikeston. The Camp served 96 migrants the past week, 16 were going to Indiana, 48 to Michigan and 32 to Ohio.

Caruthersville: 112 West Fifth Street - Telephone: Edison 3-2416. Very little farm activities this week as rain the first of the week and again last night kept the fields to wet to work. A few farmers have planted some cotton. Cotton planting will get into full swing as soon as the fields become dry enough to work. No demand for farm workers at this time.

Labor Mobility Office, Poplar Bluff. We have not received our listing of the Mobility applicants available for relocation from the Mobility FPR's, therefore, we cannot submit the listing of available applicants.

West Plains: 111 Walnut Street - Telephone: 256-3158. Area received welcome rain Thursday. Local orders still remain slow. Have made two referrals of farm hands to Oskaloosa, Iowa, area. Available applicants on file at present have limited background and may need MDTA training to qualify for good farm jobs.

Cape Girardeau: 231 North Main Street-Telephone: Edgewater 5-6666. Demand for seasonal farm workers has been light. A shortage of qualified farm hands for year-round farm work still exists. Need four farm families for immediate employment. Wages $45 to $50 per week, housing furnished at no cost to worker.

Poplar Bluff: 211 Pine Street-Telephone: Sunset 5-0606. Rain has fallen over this five county area, which was badly needed. Farmers will be able to return to the fields in about two days. Some corn has been planted to date. Farm orders are coming in very slow this spring. Most farmers in this area are hiring older men for tractor driving and farm work. No labor available for referral to other areas at the present time.

Kennett: 405 St. Francis Street - Telephone: Tuxedo 8-3184: The peach crop in the Campbell area looks real good, the growers report no damage from the recent freezing weather. Several farmers in the south end of the County have planted early cotton of which some cotton is breaking through the ground. Approximately two inches of much needed general rain has fallen this week. With weather somewhat cooler than normal, work in fields has been very limited, yet no damage reported to crops. The strawberries are coming on fast and look very good. Some field spraying of wheat is going on, and the wheat crop to this date is better than has been in several years if not the best. The labor supply is meeting the demand at this time.

Wheat, Barley Are Improving

By Leo A. Duclos

PORTAGEVILLE - In the early part of April aphids began to show up in wheat and barley in Northeast Missouri counties. Flernoy Jones and Dr. Armon Keaster, entomologists with the University of Missouri Delta center, inspected a large number of fields and found several fields with aphid populations large enough that spraying was recommended.

Since the yellow drarf virus of small grains is transmitted by aphids, there was much concern for this disease. Dr. Einar Palm, extension plant pathologist, University of Missouri, Columbia, inspected research plots of Dr. Leo Duclos here at the Delta Center April 4 and noted that much of the barley show symtoms of yellow dwarf. The yellow dwarf expression in barley is bright, yellow leaves, heavy tillering and dwarfing of plants. The expression in wheat is little to no yellowing of leaves, no increased tillering and short heads.

Most of the barley grown in this area is grown under an agreement with Anheuser-Busch. Dr. Paul Hoskins, agronomist with Anheuser-Busch at St. Louis, Dr. Duclos, research geneticist, Delta Center at Portageville, and Dave McCrate, owner of the grain elevator which stored and shipped barley for Anheuser-Busch in the Portageville area made an inspection on April 7 of all the Carstens barley being grown under the agreement. Most of the fields were suffering as a result of aphids, yellow dwarf virus and drought stresses. It was questionable as to whether the crop should be saved or plowed under and land prepared for other crops. However, another inspection of all fields was made Thursday after the rains during the previous weekend and considerable improvement was seen. All fields that were sprayed showed signs of excellent control of aphid and considerably increased plant growth. All the barley will be saved with the possible exception of one or two fields.

Powdery mildew is taking its toll in wheat this year. Several spots along the ends of the field where seeding and fertilizer rates were above normal and early succulent growth occurred, show extreme symptoms of this disease. The wheat in these infected areas will either die or yield will be considerably reduced. Presently, there is no economic means of control recommended for this disease in small grains.

The disease and insect problems this year have been attributed to the mild winter and early spring. Barley and wheat are also expected to mature approximately two weeks early this year which should allow higher yields than in previous years from a full season, soybean crop following small grain.

Farmers should give considerable attention to the barley and wheat during the next few weeks since early occurrence and heavy infestation of armyworm are expected due to the mild winter. Positive identification of the armyworm should be made before spraying since the larvae of many beneficial insects resemble the armyworm.

Weatherman Favors Setting Speed Limits For Road Conditions

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) Traffic safety experts do not pay sufficient attention to need for speed reductions when pavement is wet or icy, weather bureau spokesman says.

R. W. Harms, chief of the Milwaukee Weather Bureau told a 12-state safety conference Thursday that speeds on expressways and interstate highways should be held to 20 miles an hour when pavement is ice-glazed.

Snow, he said, should mean a speed limit of 35 m.p.h., and rain a limit of 50 m.p.h.

"Not enough attention is paid to weather in causing accidents," he said, and laws requring lowered speed are not strict enough.

buildings and garages in a six-block area of Oak Lawn were leveled or left with only fragments of walls standing. A witness said it looked like a war zone.

Dozens of trees were uprooted and twisted into grotesque forms. Autos had been crushed by the trees. The sound of power saws and axes could be heard in the darkened streets into the early morning hours as 1,500 workmen attempted to clear the area of debris before dawn.

When the twister struck in Belvidere many students still were in the school. Teachers and pupils rushed into the library and cafeteria.

Bill Coleman, 17, a junior at the school, said he helped take 200 other students to the cafeteria.

"We were unaware of any damage while we were in there," he said. "Then we got out and looked and there was a bus halfway through the wall."

As the tornado neared the high school, other terrified students huddled against the library walls. The force of the wind smashed the library's windows, injuring dozens, police said.

Before touching down at the school, the twister hit a new Chrysler plant, the Highland Hospital and five subdivisions.

The Highland Hospital was evacuated after it sustained extensive damage, a hospital spokesman said. One patient was reported injured.

A twister ripped through a Belvidere supermarket. Police said only the roof and its supporting beams were left standing.

Authorities at Belvidere and Oak Lawn worked through the night, sifting debris for bodies and survivors. Dozens searched the ruins of 200 structures in Oak Lawn for survivors believed trapped in the basements covered with debris.

"We have all kinds of areas to the west of here where we haven't even broken ground yet," Dumke said in Oak Lawn.

Elsewhere in Illinois, there were scattered reports of damage from tornadoes, high winds and thunderstorms in Lake Zurich, Waukegan, Libertyville, Barrington, Orion, Moline, Rock Island, Harvard and scores of other communities.

Tornadoes also touched down in Missouri, Indiana and California and were sighted over Wisconsin where none was reported to have reached the ground. One house was damaged at Madera, Calif., about 25 miles northwest of Fresno.

The Chicago Weather Bureau said the twisters came out of a squall line which at 2:45 p.m. Friday extended from Madison, Wis., to southeast of Kansas City.

The bureau said the first twister was reported 32 miles southeast of St. Joseph, Mo., at 12:08 p.m. and that several others hit areas northeast of Kansas City in the next 1½ hours.

A twister hit 20 miles south and southeast of Rockford, Ill., at 3:40, another struck Belvidere at 3:45 p.m. and the tornado in suburban Oak Lawn touched down shortly before 5:15 p.m. The same squall line caused a twister in Indiana and another was sighted 15 miles west of Lansing, Mich., at 8:40 p.m.

Numerous tornadoes were spotted in Michigan. Fifty homes were destroyed and damage was estimated at $1 million in the Grand Rapids suburbs of Grandville and Wyoming. A woman was killed when a tree fell on her car.

band, he is ordered back.

If he goes ahead he runs the risk of being shot. Sheriff Joseph Woods of Cook County declared something like a state of martial law on 95th Street, where looters plagued tornado-shattered stores.

Woods issued orders to shoot looters on sight. A pedestrian walks down 95th Street with arms stretched out to show he is not concealing anything.

The closer he gets to what once was a shopping center, the more times he is stopped. Eventually he is stopped every 50 feet.

The remains of a Fairway supermarket and what was a fancy restaurant-The Sherwood--stand at the corner.

All that is left are a few pieces of wall. It smells like dead fish and it looks like a bomb has fallen.

Hundreds of firemen help earth-moving equipment shovel away the debris.

They are looking for bodies.

"There are people in there and we haven't found them," said Oak Lawn Village President Fred Dumke.

Work in the eerie glare provided by banks of floodlights powered by emergency generators. The harsh light outlines the shadows of the few trees left standing.

Dumke has set a deadline of 72 hours to clear the debris which the disaster scattered over this pleasant suburb.

"The worst damage is at the shopping center in terms of dollars and cents," Dumke said. "In terms of lives it was the trailer park."

The trailer park resembled a huge, awkward stack of lumber. It was leveled. Many died in the rubble. Dumke could not say how many.

hour later but spokesmen said the pictures were not clear enough to show whether the trench had been deepened.

At this point, the moon was beyond the horizon of the tracking station controlling the spacecraft and the operation was suspended.

A television camera, mounted just above the scoop's extendable arm, relayed a series of photographs of the history-making operation to its controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Surveyor 3 first dropped the scoop into the soil between two of its legs, creating a rectangular hole an inch to an inch and a half deep.

After a brief delay to let the electronics of Surveyor 3's over-heating camera cool off, the shovel was moved to the right and lowered again with its scoop opened.

The trench that resulted when the scoop was pulled back appeared sharply defined in photographs. This indicated the lunar soil was strongly cohesive, something like wet sand.

It was the first time pictures were relayed to earth of a scratch on the moon's surface put there by a man-made device.

A spokesman said the texture and grain of the soil around the spacecraft appeared about as expected — not too soft for a man to walk on nor so hard it would damage a landing vehicle.

Some geologists have theorized that the extreme heat and pressure during the moon's formation may have created diamonds and other precious stones in great quantity. These theories have never been confirmed.

Scientists had planned to hammer a series of holes into the soil before the trenching maneuver, but called this off as the television camera began to overheat in the 200-degree lunar daylight.

After making the first dent, scientists controlling the spacecraft across a quarter of a million miles moved immediately into the trenching operation.

Grow, They Are Built," reviewed the accomplishments over a five year span.

"It's not contractors, banks, chambers of commerce, etc., that caused our growth, but it was the banning of every person. Let me remind you that we did a silly thing two years ago, by reducing the city tax by 35 cents, as things were rolling along," he said.

Pence added, "We started with $9,600 for the plans, and in a few years added three and one-half million dollars in new building and additions, and with it came 50,000 new customers. On six occasions we increased the taxes and one each by a vote of 87 to 95 per cent. All this came about with a committee of 125 persons.

"Picture it yourself we had so many volunteers that on occasions there was a waiting list. We now have a tax structure in Flat River of $2.42 per $100, and over $4 million assessed valuation."

calling for rebellion against "monarch - fascism and dictatorship." The station called itself "the true voice of the Greeks."

One traveler from Athens said he heard a rumor that King Constantine's 21 - month - old daughter, Princess Alexia, had been kidnaped. His wife, Danish - born Queen Anne -Marie, is expecting another child next month.

Others heard that most of the arrested politicians had been detained at the Athens Hilton Hotel near the American Embassy and that the hotel was ringed with armored vehicles and soldiers with machine guns.

There has been no statement from the king since the coup. Diplomats in the Turkish capital of Ankara said that the coup may have been begun by a small group of military officers, with the king joining later. They described the coup as a "center-right" movement that apparently encountered no resistance anywhere in Greece.

The new government announced Friday night a program of far - reaching goals that indicated it did not plan an early return to civilian rule.

Constantine Kollias, sworn in as premier by Greek Orthodox Primate Archbishop Chrysostomos, said in a broadcast to the nation that the parliamentary elections scheduled next month would have led to bloodshed and chaos. He said the army intervened "to save the country from destruction."

The premier and "arsonist" and professional anarchists would be "isolated" while the rest can go ahead united for a radical change leading to prosperity and progress, and get rid of rottenness that had prevailed."

MU Physics Hall Dedicated

COLUMBIA (AP) - The University of Missouri's new $2.5 million physics building was dedicated today.

Chancellor John W. Schwada described the large structure as "a major step forward in the University of Missouri's program of teaching and research in a technological age in which physics is a pivotal science."

The building was accepted on behalf of the board of curators by Robert Neill of St. Louis, the board's president.

In recognition of the services of the late Dr. Oscar M. Stewart, professor of physics at the university from 1901 to 1940, Dr. Elmer Ellis, university president emeritus, presented an oil portrait of Dr. Stewart.

In his will the professor left a sum of money which now amounts to more than $350,000 to the physics department for scholarships and other uses. He died in 1944.

Would you give a little of your spare time for this rich little girl?

She just happened to be born lucky, that's all. Daddy's taking good care of his little girl. She gets everything she needs. Including a free country in which to grow up. All of which, of course, she takes for granted.

You can help keep that freedom by joining the Air Force Reserve. If you served as a pilot, navigator, panel engineer or loadmaster, you can especially help. If you are an inactive Reservist, you are urged to participate actively in the Ready Reserve.

All our little girls should keep on taking it all for granted.

Smoke from their chimney wrote that our neighbors had safely returned. Vesta M. Kelly

Would you give a little of your spare time for this rich little girl?

She just happened to be born lucky, that's all. Daddy's taking good care of his little girl. She gets everything she needs. Including a free country in which to grow up. All of which, of course, she takes for granted.

You can help keep that freedom by joining the Air Force Reserve. If you served as a pilot, navigator, panel engineer or loadmaster, you can especially help. If you are an inactive Reservist, you are urged to participate actively in the Ready Reserve.

All our little girls should keep on taking it all for granted.

buildings and garages in a six-block area of Oak Lawn were leveled or left with only fragments of walls standing. A witness said it looked like a war zone.

Dozens of trees were uprooted and twisted into grotesque forms. Autos had been crushed by the trees. The sound of power saws and axes could be heard in the darkened streets into the early morning hours as 1,500 workmen attempted to clear the area of debris before dawn.

When the twister struck in Belvidere many students still were in the school. Teachers and pupils rushed into the library and cafeteria.

Bill Coleman, 17, a junior at the school, said he helped take 200 other students to the cafeteria.

"We were unaware of any damage while we were in there," he said. "Then we got out and looked and there was a bus halfway through the wall."

As the tornado neared the high school, other terrified students huddled against the library walls. The force of the wind smashed the library's windows, injuring dozens, police said.

Before touching down at the school, the twister hit a new Chrysler plant, the Highland Hospital and five subdivisions.

The Highland Hospital was evacuated after it sustained extensive damage, a hospital spokesman said. One patient was reported injured.

A twister ripped through a Belvidere supermarket. Police said only the roof and its supporting beams were left standing.

Authorities at Belvidere and Oak Lawn worked through the night, sifting debris for bodies and survivors. Dozens searched the ruins of 200 structures in Oak Lawn for survivors believed trapped in the basements covered with debris.

"We have all kinds of areas to the west of here where we haven't even broken ground yet," Dumke said in Oak Lawn.

Elsewhere in Illinois, there were scattered reports of damage from tornadoes, high winds and thunderstorms in Lake Zurich, Waukegan, Libertyville, Barrington, Orion, Moline, Rock Island, Harvard and scores of other communities.

Tornadoes also touched down in Missouri, Indiana and California and were sighted over Wisconsin where none was reported to have reached the ground. One house was damaged at Madera, Calif., about 25 miles northwest of Fresno.

The Chicago Weather Bureau said the twisters came out of a squall line which at 2:45 p.m. Friday extended from Madison, Wis., to southeast of Kansas City.

The bureau said the first twister was reported 32 miles southeast of St. Joseph, Mo., at 12:08 p.m. and that several others hit areas northeast of Kansas City in the next 1½ hours.

A twister hit 20 miles south and southeast of Rockford, Ill., at 3:40, another struck Belvidere at 3:45 p.m. and the tornado in suburban Oak Lawn touched down shortly before 5:15 p.m. The same squall line caused a twister in Indiana and another was sighted 15 miles west of Lansing, Mich., at 8:40 p.m.

Numerous tornadoes were spotted in Michigan. Fifty homes were destroyed and damage was estimated at $1 million in the Grand Rapids suburbs of Grandville and Wyoming. A woman was killed when a tree fell on her car.

band, he is ordered back.

If he goes ahead he runs the risk of being shot. Sheriff Joseph Woods of Cook County declared something like a state of martial law on 95th Street, where looters plagued tornado-shattered stores.

Woods issued orders to shoot looters on sight. A pedestrian walks down 95th Street with arms stretched out to show he is not concealing anything.

The closer he gets to what once was a shopping center, the more times he is stopped. Eventually he is stopped every 50 feet.

The remains of a Fairway supermarket and what was a fancy restaurant-The Sherwood--stand at the corner.

All that is left are a few pieces of wall. It smells like dead fish and it looks like a bomb has fallen.

Hundreds of firemen help earth-moving equipment shovel away the debris.

They are looking for bodies.

"There are people in there and we haven't found them," said Oak Lawn Village President Fred Dumke.

Work in the eerie glare provided by banks of floodlights powered by emergency generators. The harsh light outlines the shadows of the few trees left standing.

Dumke has set a deadline of 72 hours to clear the debris which the disaster scattered over this pleasant suburb.

"The worst damage is at the shopping center in terms of dollars and cents," Dumke said. "In terms of lives it was the trailer park."

The trailer park resembled a huge, awkward stack of lumber. It was leveled. Many died in the rubble. Dumke could not say how many.

hour later but spokesmen said the pictures were not clear enough to show whether the trench had been deepened.

At this point, the moon was beyond the horizon of the tracking station controlling the spacecraft and the operation was suspended.

A television camera, mounted just above the scoop's extendable arm, relayed a series of photographs of the history-making operation to its controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Surveyor 3 first dropped the scoop into the soil between two of its legs, creating a rectangular hole an inch to an inch and a half deep.

After a brief delay to let the electronics of Surveyor 3's over-heating camera cool off, the shovel was moved to the right and lowered again with its scoop opened.

The trench that resulted when the scoop was pulled back appeared sharply defined in photographs. This indicated the lunar soil was strongly cohesive, something like wet sand.

It was the first time pictures were relayed to earth of a scratch on the moon's surface put there by a man-made device.

A spokesman said the texture and grain of the soil around the spacecraft appeared about as expected — not too soft for a man to walk on nor so hard it would damage a landing vehicle.

Some geologists have theorized that the extreme heat and pressure during the moon's formation may have created diamonds and other precious stones in great quantity. These theories have never been confirmed.

Scientists had planned to hammer a series of holes into the soil before the trenching maneuver, but called this off as the television camera began to overheat in the 200-degree lunar daylight.

After making the first dent, scientists controlling the spacecraft across a quarter of a million miles moved immediately into the trenching operation.

Grow, They Are Built," reviewed the accomplishments over a five year span.

"It's not contractors, banks, chambers of commerce, etc., that caused our growth, but it was the banning of every person. Let me remind you that we did a silly thing two years ago, by reducing the city tax by 35 cents, as things were rolling along," he said.

Pence added, "We started with $9,600 for the plans, and in a few years added three and one-half million dollars in new building and additions, and with it came 50,000 new customers. On six occasions we increased the taxes and one each by a vote of 87 to 95 per cent. All this came about with a committee of 125 persons.

"Picture it yourself we had so many volunteers that on occasions there was a waiting list. We now have a tax structure in Flat River of $2.42 per $100, and over $4 million assessed valuation."

calling for rebellion against "monarch - fascism and dictatorship." The station called itself "the true voice of the Greeks."

One traveler from Athens said he heard a rumor that King Constantine's 21 - month - old daughter, Princess Alexia, had been kidnaped. His wife, Danish - born Queen Anne - Marie, is expecting another child next month.

Others heard that most of the arrested politicians had been detained at the Athens Hilton Hotel near the American Embassy and that the hotel was ringed with armored vehicles and soldiers with machine guns.

There has been no statement from the king since the coup. Diplomats in the Turkish capital of Ankara said that the coup may have been begun by a small group of military officers, with the king joining later. They described the coup as a "center-right" movement that apparently encountered no resistance anywhehere in Greece.

The new government announced Friday night a program of far - reaching goals that indicated it did not plan an early return to civilian rule.

Constantine Kollias, sworn in as premier by Greek Orthodox Primate Archbishop Chrysostomos, said in a broadcast to the nation that the parliamentary elections scheduled next month would have led to bloodshed and chaos. He said the army intervened "to save the country from destruction."

The premier and "arsonist" and professional anarchists would be "isolated" while the rest can go ahead united for a radical change leading to prosperity and progress, and get rid of rottenness that had prevailed."

MU Physics Hall Dedicated

COLUMBIA (AP) - The University of Missouri's new $2.5 million physics building was dedicated today.

Chancellor John W. Schwada described the large structure as "a major step forward in the University of Missouri's program of teaching and research in a technological age in which physics is a pivotal science."

The building was accepted on behalf of the board of curators by Robert Neill of St. Louis, the board's president.

In recognition of the services of the late Dr. Oscar M. Stewart, professor of physics at the university from 1901 to 1940, Dr. Elmer Ellis, university president emeritus, presented an oil portrait of Dr. Stewart.

In his will the professor left a sum of money which now amounts to more than $350,000 to the physics department for scholarships and other uses. He died in 1944.
